Grants to local educational agencies.—Funds are allocated through four formulas—Basic Grants, Concentration Grants, Targeted Grants and Education Finance Incentive Grants—for local programs that provide extra academic support to help raise the achievement of eligible students, in high-poverty communities, or, in the case of schoolwide programs, help all students in high-poverty schools to meet challenging State academic standards. States must annually assess participating students in at least reading and mathematics, and school districts must identify for improvement, and provide assistance to, schools that for two consecutive years fail to make adequate yearly progress toward helping all groups of students reach the proficient level on the State assessments. Districts must provide students attending such schools the choice of attending another public school that is not identified for improvement. After three years of failure, students who remain in the school would be permitted to use Title I funds to obtain supplemental educational services from a public- or private-sector provider. Schools that continue to fail to meet State standards would be subject to progressively stonger corrective actions and, after six years of failure, reconstitution under a restructuring plan.

Reading first State grants.—Funds provide assistance to State and local educational agencies in establishing reading programs for students in grades K–3 that are grounded in scientifically based reading research, in order to ensure that every student can read at grade level or above by the end of third grade.

Early reading first.—Funds provide assistance to support local efforts, through competitive grants, to enhance the school readiness of young children, particularly those from low-income families, through scientific, research-based strategies and professional development that are designed to enhance the verbal skills, phonological awareness, letter knowledge, pre-reading skills, and early language development of children ages three through five.

Even start.—Funds support formula grants to States, which award grants for local projects to partnerships of local educational agencies and other organizations to operate projects integrating early childhood education, adult literacy, parenting education, and interactive literacy activities between parents and their children into “family literacy” programs for low-income families with children under age seven.

Literacy through school libraries.—Funds support competitive grants to local educational agencies to provide students with increased access to up-to-date school library materials and professional certified library media specialists.

State agency migrant program.—Funds support formula grants to States for educational services to children of migratory farmworkers and fishers, with resources and services focused on children who have moved within the past 36 months.

State agency neglected and delinquent program.—Funds support formula grants to States for educational services to children and youth under age 21 in State neglected, delinquent, or adult correction facilities.

Comprehensive school reform.—Funds support formula grants to States, which in turn award grants to local educational agencies to help participating schools initiate and implement comprehensive school reforms based on approaches and methods grounded in reliable research and practice.

Evaluation.—Funds support national activities to evaluate Title I programs and a national assessment of the program’s effectiveness in helping States, school districts, and schools raise the overall achievement of disadvantaged students and narrow the achievement gap.

Advanced placement.—Funds support formula grants to States to pay test fees for low-income students if they are enrolled in an Advanced Placement course and competitive grants to State educational agencies, local educational agencies, or national nonprofit educational entities for activities, such as teacher training and pre-advanced placement course development, designed to expand access for low-income individuals to Advanced Placement classes.

Migrant education projects.—Funds support grants to institutions of higher education and other nonprofit agencies that assist migrant students to earn a high school equivalency certificate or to complete their first year of college.

Impact Aid helps to replace the lost local revenue that would otherwise be available to educate federally connected children. The presence of certain students living on Federal property, such as students who are military dependents or who reside on Indian lands, can place a financial burden on local educational agencies that educate them. The property on which the children live or their parents work is exempt from local property taxes, denying local educational agencies access to the primary source of revenue used by most communities to finance education.

Basic support payments.—Payments will be made on behalf of approximately 1.1 million federally connected students enrolled in about 1,330 local educational agencies to assist them in meeting their operation and maintenance costs. Average per-student payments will be approximately $870.

Payments for Children with Disabilities.—Payments in addition to those provided under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act will be provided on behalf of approximately 54,000 federally connected students with disabilities in about 830 local educational agencies. Average per-student payments will be approximately $920.

Facilities maintenance.—Funds are used to provide emergency repairs for school facilities that serve military dependents and are owned by the Department of Education. Funds are also used to transfer the facilities to local educational agencies.

Construction.—Formula payments will be provided to approximately 170 local educational agencies with large proportions of federally connected students. Payments will be made on behalf of about 140,000 students who are military dependents or who reside on Indian lands. In addition, approximately 25 construction grants will be awarded competitively to local educational agencies.

Payments for Federal Property.—Payments are made to approximately 250 local educational agencies in which real property owned by the Federal Government represents 10 percent or more of the assessed value of real property in the local educational agency.

Improving teacher quality.—

Improving teacher quality State grants.—Funds support State and school district activities to prepare, train, and recruit high-quality teachers to improve student achievement.

National activities.—Funds support competitive grants to improve the knowledge and skills of early childhood educators who work in communities that have high concentrations of children living in poverty.

Mathematics and science partnerships.—Funds support State and local efforts to improve students' academic achievement in mathematics and science by promoting strong teaching skills for elementary and secondary school teachers, including integrating teaching methods based on scientifically-based research and technology into the curriculum.

Troops-to-teachers.—Funds assist eligible members of the armed forces to obtain certification as teachers and to become highly qualified teachers.

Transition to teaching.—Funds support competitive grants to establish programs to recruit and retain highly qualified mid-career professionals and recent college graduates as teachers in high-need schools.

Teaching of traditional American history.—Funds support competitive grants to school districts for activities to improve history instruction and provide professional development for teachers of American history.

Educational technology.—

Educational technology State grants.—Funds support formula grants to States, which target funds to high-poverty school districts, to acquire computers, connections, software, and teacher training to enable schools to integrate technology effectively into curricula.

Ready-to-learn television.—Funds support the development, distribution and production of educational video for preschool children, elementary school children, and their parents to facilitate student academic achievement.

21st Century community learning centers.—

Funds support formula grants to States, which award subgrants to communities to provide academic enrichment opportunities and related services to students, primarily students who attend high-poverty schools, and their families during before-school, after-school, weekend, and summer hours.

School choice and innovation.—

State grants for innovative programs.—Funds support formula grants to States and local educational agencies to help implement innovative strategies for improving student achievement.

Charter schools grants.—Funds support competitive grants to State educational agencies and charter schools to support the planning, design, initial implementation, and dissemination of information regarding charter schools. These schools are created by teachers, parents, and members of the community, and are exempt from certain local, State, and Federal regulations.

Credit enhancement for charter school facilities.—Funds support competitive grants to State and local governments, nonprofit entities, and public and nonprofit consortia, to assist charter schools in acquiring, leasing, and renovating school facilities.

Voluntary public school choice.—Funds support competitive grants to State educational agencies or local educational agencies to implement programs that provide students, particularly students who attend low-performing schools, with expanded public school choice options.

Magnet schools assistance.—Funds support competitive grants to local educational agencies to establish and operate magnet school programs that are part of an approved desegregation plan.

Choice demonstration fund.—Funds support grants to State educational agencies, local educational agencies, institutions of higher education, governmental agencies, or other public or private entities for research projects to measure the effects on student, school, and district achievement of providing parents—particularly low-income parents—with school choice options.

Fund for the Improvement of Education (FIE).—Funds support nationally significant projects to improve the quality of elementary and secondary education to help all children meet challenging State content and student achievement standards, including initiatives to improve teacher quality. In addition, funds support the distribution of books to promote childhood literacy and projects to design and implement character education programs.

Safe and drug-free schools and communities.—

State Grants.—Funds provide formula grants to States to support research-based drug and violence-prevention programs and to implement strategies to improve school safety.

The Indian Education program supports the efforts of local educational agencies and tribal schools to improve teaching and learning for the Nation's American Indian and Alaska Native Children.

Grants to local educational agencies.—Formula grants support local educational agencies in their efforts to reform elementary and secondary school programs that serve Indian students, with the goal of ensuring that such programs assist participating students in meeting the same academic standards as all other students. In 2001, the Department made 1,212 formula grants to local educational agencies and tribal schools serving more than 462,000 students.

Special programs for Indian Children.—The Department makes competitive awards for demonstration projects in early childhood education, professional development grants, American Indian Teacher Corps grants, and grants for the American Indian Administrator Corps. The professional development awards in this activity are designed to improve the quality of teachers and administrators in school districts with concentrations of Indian students.

National activities.—Funds support research, evaluation, data collection, and related activities.

Vocational rehabilitation State grants.—The basic State grants program provides Federal matching funds to State vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies to assist individuals with physical or mental impairments to become gainfully employed. Services are tailored to the specific needs of the individual. Priority is given to serving those with the most significant disabilities. Current law requires that between 1.0 percent and 1.5 percent of the funds appropriated for the VR State grants program be set aside for Grants for Indians in 2003.

The table below presents national data on selected performance measures for the VR State grants program. The data are based on the number of individuals whose service records were closed in fiscal years 1999 (370,742) and 2000 (376,510).

CONSUMER OUTCOMES (CASES CLOSED)

	1999 actual	2000 actual
Individuals achieving employment outcomes	231,714	236,210
Percent with significant disabilities	84.9%	87.1%
Employment outcomes as a percent all of individuals receiving services	62.5%	62.7%

The 2003 budget request reflects a multi-year Administration effort to reform job training programs, target resources to programs with documented effectiveness, and eliminate funding for duplicative and overlapping programs. Consistent with this crosscutting reform, the budget consolidates funding for three programs in this account (Supported Employment State Grants, Projects with Industry, and the Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers program) within the Vocational Rehabilitation State Grants program.

Vocational rehabilitation incentive grants.—Under this new program, incentive grants would be used to encourage State VR agencies to improve their performance in helping individuals with disabilities obtain competitive employment. Grants would be awarded to State VR agencies based on program performance.

Client assistance State grants.—Formula grants are made to States to provide assistance in informing and advising clients and applicants of benefits available under the Rehabilitation Act and, if requested, to pursue legal or administrative remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of individuals with disabilities.

Training.—Grants are made to States and public or non-profit agencies and organizations, including institutions of higher education, to increase the number of skilled personnel available for employment in the field of rehabilitation and to upgrade the skills of those already employed.

Demonstration and training programs.—Grants are made for programs that expand and improve the provision of rehabilitation services, or that further the purposes of the Rehabilitation Act.

Protection and advocacy of individual rights.—Formula grants are made to State protection and advocacy systems to protect the legal and human rights of individuals with disabilities.

Independent living.—Grants are awarded to States and non-profit agencies to assist individuals with significant disabilities in their achievement of self-determined independent living goals. Grants are also awarded to provide support services to older blind individuals to increase their ability to care for their own needs.

Program improvement.—Funds are used to promote broad-based planning and coordination, improve accountability, and enhance the Department's ability to address critical areas of national significance in achieving the goals of the Rehabilitation Act. Examples of program improvement activities include technical assistance, dissemination, and performance measurement activities.

Evaluation.—Studies are conducted to evaluate the impact and effectiveness of various programs authorized under the Rehabilitation Act.

Helen Keller National Center for Deaf-Blind Youths and Adults.—The Center provides services to deaf-blind youths and adults and provides training and technical assistance to professional and allied personnel at its national headquarters center and through its regional representatives and affiliate agencies.

National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research.—The Institute carries out a comprehensive and coordinated program of rehabilitation research and related activities. Through grants and contracts, it supports the conduct and dissemination of research aimed at improving the lives of individuals with disabilities. The Institute also promotes the development and utilization of new technologies to assist these individuals in achieving greater independence and integration into society.

Assistive technology.—Activities include the Assistive Technology State grant program, protection and advocacy services, and technical assistance designed to develop and implement consumer-responsive comprehensive statewide programs of technology-related assistance for individuals with disabilities. Grants also are made to States to establish alternative financing programs to increase access to assistive technology for individuals with disabilities.

Access to telework fund.—Federal matching funds are awarded to States to provide loans for individuals with disabilities to purchase computers and other equipment so that they can telework from home.

The College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program and the Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program are administered separately, but are consolidated for presentation purposes.

College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program.—Funds for this activity pay the Federal costs for administering the College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans (CHAFL), College Housing Loans (CHL), and Higher Education Facilities Loans (HEFL) programs. Prior to 1994, these programs provided financing for the construction, reconstruction, and renovation of housing, academic, and other educational facilities. Although no new loans have been awarded since fiscal year 1993, costs for administering the outstanding loans will remain for at least 30 more years. Agreements exist with the Department of Health and Human Services to provide architectural and engineering services and with the Federal Reserve Bank to provide loan servicing. The 2003 budget request provides funding for personnel compensation and other administrative costs. In accordance with the Federal Credit Reform Act, loan servicing costs for CHL and HEFL are paid from their respective collections.

Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program.—The Historically Black College and University (HBCU) Capital Financing Program provides HBCUs with access to capital financing for the repair, renovation, and construction of classrooms, libraries, laboratories, dormitories, instructional equipment, and research instrumentation. The Higher Education Amendments of 1992 granted the Department authority to enter into insurance agreements with a private for-profit Designated Bonding Authority to guarantee no more than $375,000,000 in outstanding principal and unpaid accrued interest combined. The bonding authority issues the loans and maintains an escrow account in which 5 percent of each institution's principal is deposited. This amount is estimated to be sufficient to cover all potential delinquencies and defaults. No subsidy appropriations are required. The 2003 budget provides funds for continuing Federal administrative activities only.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) purchases bonds issued by the HBCU Designated Bonding Authority. Under the policies governing Federal credit programs, bonds purchased by the FFB and supported by the Department of Education with a letter of credit create the equivalent of a Federal direct loan. HBCU bonds are also available for purchase by the private sector, and these will be treated as loan guarantees. However, the Department anticipates that all HBCU loans will be financed by the FFB.

The Administration's 2003 budget for the SFA account is $12.768 billion, an increase of $482 million, or 4 percent, over the 2002 appropriation, which together with matching funds (less allowable administrative costs) would provide nearly 7.5 million awards totalling more than $14.2 billion in available aid.

Federal Pell Grants.—Undergraduate students establish eligibility for these grants under award and need determination rules set out in the authorizing statute and the annual appropriations act.

The Administration proposes $10.863 billion, an increase of $549 million over the 2002 appropriation level. The budget also proposes a 2002 supplemental appropriation of $1.276 billion to fully fund the $4,000 maximum award in academic year 2002-2003. (For more information, please see the Supplemental Proposals chapter of this document.)

Pell Grant costs are highly dependent on volatile and economic trends, making it difficult to project the required funding level for a given maximum award at the time of the appropriation, which may be nine or more months prior to the affected academic year. Accordingly, the Administration is proposing that the Secretary of Education use the most recent program cost projections to set the maximum award for each upcoming academic year immediately prior to the publication of the Pell Grant payment schedule, which must occur by February 1 each year. Under current estimates, the Administration's request for 2003 would maintain the Pell Grant maximum award at $4,000 for academic year 2003-2004, the highest level ever and a full $700, or 21 percent, above the level only three years earlier. Nearly 4.5 million students would receive awards under this request, an increase of 55,000 over 2002.

Campus-based programs.—The Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Federal Work-Study, and Federal Perkins Loan programs are called the "campus-based" programs because participating institutions are responsible for administering the programs on their own campuses. These programs provide aid administrators with considerable flexibility in the packaging of financial aid awards to best meet the needs of students.

Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG).—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which use these funds to award grants to undergraduate students. While institutions have discretion in awarding these funds, they are required to give priority to Pell Grant recipients and other students with exceptional need. The Federal share of such grants may not exceed 75 percent of the total grant. The Administration proposes $725 million for the SEOG program in 2003, the same as the 2002 level. This level of funding would provide approximately $918 million in available aid to an estimated 1.2 million needy students.

Federal Work-Study.—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which develop and provide part-time jobs for eligible undergraduate and graduate students with demonstrated need. Hourly earnings under the program must be at least equal to the Federal minimum wage. Federal funding in most cases pays 75 percent of a student's hourly wages, with the remaining 25 percent paid by the employer. The Administration proposes $1.011 billion, the same as the 2002 appropriation, for the Work-Study program, which will provide $1.2 billion in aid to nearly 1 million students.

Perkins Loan Program.—Institutions award low-interest loans from institutional revolving funds, which are comprised of Federal Capital Contributions, institutional matching funds, and student repayments on outstanding loans. The Administration proposes $100 million in new budget authority for the Perkins loan program, the same as the 2002 level. This level of funding would provide $1.2 billion in available aid to some 715,000 needy undergraduate and graduate students in the 2003–2004 award year.

Perkins Loan Program—Cancellations.—Under the Perkins Loan cancellation program, institutional revolving funds are reimbursed for indebtedness canceled as a result of a borrower engaging in certain public service activities, as specified in the Higher Education Act. Amendments to the Higher Education Act in 1992 and 1998 greatly expanded the number of borrowers with loans eligible for cancellation. The Administration's budget proposal for Perkins Loan cancellations is $67.5 million, the same as the 2002 level.

Loan Forgiveness for Child Care Providers.—Under this demonstration program, student loan borrowers who have earned degrees in early childhood education and worked for two full years as child care providers in low-income communities may have a portion of their loan obligation forgiven. Additional forgiveness is awarded for each additional consecutive year of service, up to a total of 100 percent of the borrower's outstanding balance after five full years. Awards are made on a first-come, first-served basis. The Administration proposes $1 million for Loan Forgiveness for Child Care Providers in 2003, the same as the 2002 level. Fewer than 100 recipients are expected in either 2002 or 2003.

Funding Tables.—The following tables display student aid funds available, the number of aid awards, average awards, and the unduplicated count of recipients from any Federal student aid program. The tables include the aid from programs in the Student Financial Assistance account, as well as aid from the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program, and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan program. Loan amounts reflect the capital actually loaned, not the Federal cost of those loans. The data in these tables include the effects of matching funds wherever applicable.

The Department of Education manages Federal student aid programs that will provide over $67 billion in Federal student aid grants and loans to over 8 million students and parents in 2003. Primary responsibility for administering these programs lies with the Office of Postsecondary Education and the performance-based Office of Student Financial Assistance (SFA). SFA was created by Congress in 1998 with a mandate to improve service to students and other student aid program participants, reduce the cost of student aid administration, and improve accountability and program integrity.

The Department's student aid administrative activities are funded from four main sources: (1) funds appropriated on a permanent basis under section 458 of the Higher Education Act; (2) a portion of the Department's general Program Administration funds; (3) a discretionary appropriation partially supporting administrative activities associated with the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program; and (4) permanent funds from the Direct Loan program subsidy account supporting the origination of Direct Consolidation Loans. Student aid administrative funds totaled $887 million in 2002, $180 million of which supported the payment of account maintenance fees to FFEL guaranty agencies.

The budget for 2003 includes $936 million for student aid administration. In order to improve accountability and simplify program oversight and operations, the Administration is proposing to consolidate funding for student aid administrative activities into a single discretionary account. Funding levels for this account will be based on a workload-based methodology consistent with the goals of the performance-based organization.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1998 clarified that reserve funds held by public and non-profit guaranty agencies participating in the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program are Federal property. These reserves are used to pay default claims from FFEL lenders and fees to support agency efforts to successfully avert defaults. The Federal Government reimburses these reserves for default claim payments. In addition, optional borrower guarantee fees are deposited into the reserves (agencies may charge borrowers up to 1 percent of loan principal as a guarantee fee). The following schedules reflect the balances in these guaranty agency funds.

The Federal Government operates two major student loan programs: the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program—formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program—and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan (Direct Loan) program. For 2003, the President is committed to improving the efficiency of both programs and allowing individual institutions to choose which of these two programs best meets their needs and the needs of their students.

This summary section outlines the structure of these two programs, highlights their differences and similarities, and provides text tables displaying program cost data; loan volume, subsidy, default, and interest rates; and other descriptive information. As part of his 2003 budget, the President is proposing a change to the loan forgiveness provisions of the Direct Loan and FFEL programs. This proposal is discussed as part of this program description.

From its inception in 1965 through 2000, the FFEL program has provided over $347 billion in loans to postsecondary students and their parents. Since July 1, 1994, the Direct Loan program has provided $92 billion in new and consolidation loans to students and parents. Taken together, the FFEL and Direct Loan programs will make almost $38 billion in new loans available in 2002. Because funding for these two programs is provided on a permanent indefinite basis, for budget purposes they are considered separately from other Federal student financial assistance programs. The FFEL and Direct Loan programs should be viewed in combination with these other programs, however, and with Perkins Loans in particular, as part of the overall Federal effort to ensure access to higher education.

Loan capital in the FFEL program is provided by private lenders. State and private nonprofit guaranty agencies act as agents of the Federal Government, providing a variety of services including collection of some defaulted loans, default avoidance activities, and counseling to schools, students, and lenders. The Government provides substantial payments to these guaranty agencies. The Government also pays interest subsidies to lenders for certain borrowers, as well as most costs associated with loan defaults and other write-offs.

The Direct Loan program was created by the Student Loan Reform Act of 1993. Under this program, the Federal Government provides loan funds to postsecondary institutions directly or through an alternative originator. The Direct Loan program began operation in academic year 1994–1995 with 7 percent of overall loan volume and is expected to account for 30 percent in academic year 2001–2002. All eligible institutions are free to participate in either the Direct Loan or FFEL program.

The Direct Loan and FFEL programs share many basic elements. Each program offers four types of loans: Stafford, Unsubsidized Stafford, PLUS for parents, and Consolidation. Evidence of financial need is required for a student to receive a subsidized Stafford loan. The other three loan programs are available to borrowers at all income levels. Loans can be used only to meet qualified educational expenses.

The borrower interest rate for new Stafford Loans equals the 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 1.7 percent during in-school, grace, and deferment periods, and the 91-day Treasury bill plus 2.3 percent at all other times, with a cap of 8.25 percent, adjusted annually. Interest payments for these loans are fully subsidized by the Government while a student is in school and during grace and deferment periods. Unsubsidized Stafford loans carry the same borrower interest rate as Stafford loans, but have no interest subsidy. For new PLUS loans, the borrower interest rate equals the 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 3.1 percent, with a cap of 9 percent and no interest subsidy.

In the FFEL program, lenders may receive an interest subsidy, called a special allowance, from the Government to ensure a guaranteed rate of return on their loans. Special allowance payments vary by loan type, are determined quarterly, and are based on current borrower interest rates and market-yield formulas. For new Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans, for example, the Federal Government must pay lenders a special allowance if the average 3-month commercial paper rate for a given quarter plus 2.34 percent—or 1.74 percent during in-school, grace, or deferment periods—is higher than the current interest rate charged borrowers.

Consolidation loans allow borrowers to combine loans made under Title IV of the Higher Education Act—FFEL, Direct Loans, and Perkins Loans—as well as some loans made under the Public Health Service Act. The interest rate for new FFEL and Direct Consolidation loans equals the weighted average of the interest rate on the loans consolidated, rounded up to the nearest one-eighth of one percent. Lenders may choose to offer a lower rate. Interest rates for all new FFEL and Direct Consolidation Loans are capped at 8.25 percent.

FFEL borrowers pay an origination fee to the Government equal to 3 percent of principal, and are also liable for a guaranty agency insurance premium of up to 1 percent of principal. Guaranty agencies have the option of waiving this premium and FFEL lenders have the option of paying some or all of a borrower's origination fee for Stafford Loan borrowers. Direct Loan borrowers are charged an origination fee equal to 3 percent of principal, which partially offsets Federal program operation costs. Borrowers in both programs may be offered financial incentives to encourage prompt repayment.

Loan limits are also identical across the two programs. In addition, loans made under both programs are discharged when borrowers die, are totally and permanently disabled, or, under some circumstances, declare bankruptcy.

Under both programs, new borrowers after October 1, 1998, who are employed as teachers in schools serving low-income populations for five consecutive, complete school years, qualify for up to $5,000 in loan forgiveness. The Administration is proposing to increase this benefit to a maximum of $17,500 for mathematics, science, and special education teachers considered highly qualified under criteria established in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001.

Borrowers under Direct Loans may choose from among five repayment plans including income-contingent repayment ("pay-as-you-can"), under which annual repayment amounts vary based on the income of the borrower and the amount borrowed, and payments can be made over 25 years. Borrowers may switch between repayment plans at any time. (Income-contingent repayment is not available to Direct PLUS borrowers).

FFEL borrowers may choose from among four repayment plans. Repayment periods under standard, graduated, and income-sensitive repayment may not exceed 10 years. An extended repayment plan of up to 25 years is available for new borrowers with outstanding loans totalling more than $30,000. FFEL borrowers may change repayment plans annually.

Student loan program administration activities are supported from a variety of sources, including a permanent appropriation authorized under Section 458 of the Higher Education Act, a small discretionary appropriation partially supporting FFEL program administration, a portion of funds appropriated under the Department's discretionary Program Administration account, and subsidy funds associated with the origination of Direct Consolidation Loans. In order to improve accountability and simplify the funding process for these administrative activities, the President is proposing to create a unified, discretionary Student Aid Administration account.

The following tables display performance indicators and program data; including projected overall Direct Loan and FFEL costs; loan volume, number of loans, and average loan amount; descriptive data, and program activity under the President's budget and legislative request.

¹ Subsidy rates represent the Federal portion of non-administrative costs—principally interest subsidies and defaults—associated with each borrowed dollar. For example, a $1,000 loan with federal subsidy costs of $100 would have a subsidy rate of 10 percent.

³ These represent average borrower interest rates during repayment for a typical borrower under standard repayment over the life of the loan.

For Direct Loans, no data is included for the Alternative repayment plan, since borrowers are not expected to participate in this plan due to the flexibility available under the other options. Income-contingent repayment is not available for Direct PLUS borrowers.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1998 broadened the availability of alternative repayment plans in the FFEL program. As noted in the table above, data on the extent to which FFEL borrowers will take advantage of these plans is not yet available.

Consistent with the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, the Office of Management and Budget establishes procedures for the estimation of subsidy rates for the Federal student loan programs. Subsidy costs for each loan type are estimated separately and, because costs can vary widely within a program depending on the characteristics of the individual borrower, cost estimates are aggregated from data for homogeneous groups within risk categories.

Risk categories for Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford Loans are based on the type of school attended by the borrower. Since PLUS loan borrowers are all parents, they are assumed to share similar risk profiles and are grouped together in a single category. For Consolidation Loans, risk categories distinguish between standard Consolidation Loans—in which borrowers in repayment consolidate a number of outstanding loans—and loans consolidated out of default.

Default rates are a major cause of differences in subsidy between risk categories. The default rates in the following tables reflect estimates of the percent of borrowers who will default over the lifetime of the loans. These estimates are revised annually based on an analysis of default trends. Within each risk group, it is assumed that borrowers choosing similar repayment plans will have similar default rates, regardless of whether they borrow under the FFEL or Direct Loan program.

² For 2003, no funds are requested for loan administration, as these costs would be part of the proposed discretionary Student Aid Administration account.

³ A number of expenses related to the administration of the student assistance programs are paid out of Student Aid Management funds. One of these expenses, account maintenance fee payments to guaranty agencies, is shown as a separate line.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this program account records the subsidy costs associated with Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL), formerly guaranteed student loans (GSL), committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as certain administrative expenses of the program. Administrative expenses include discretionary expenses for salaries, expenses and overhead of employees working directly on the program. Consistent with the Administration's proposal to consolidate student aid administrative activities in a single discretionary account, these expenses are not reflected for 2003. For a discussion of this proposal, see the narrative description above in the Student Aid Administration account. Beginning with the 1993 cohort, mandatory administrative costs, specifically contract collection costs, are included in the FFEL subsidy estimates of each year's cohort. Subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

A description of the FFEL program and accompanying tables are included under the Federal Direct Student Loan program account.

Research and dissemination.—The Administration's proposal will address needed improvements in the quality and relevance of the Department's research activities. Funds will support a diverse portfolio of directed research, field-initiated studies, research and development centers, and interagency initiatives. New research on reading comprehension, early childhood education, and learning and cognition will expand the understanding of how children learn. Funds also will support fellowships for doctoral students to increase the nation's educational research capacity and dissemination activities that provide parents, teachers, and schools with valid information on effective educational practice.

Regional educational laboratories.—Funds will be used to continue current contracts for the network of regional laboratories. The laboratories conduct applied research and development, dissemination, and technical assistance activities to address needs in their regions.

Statistics.—Funds support the Department’s statistical data collection activities, which are conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES). NCES collects, analyzes, and disseminates statistics on education at all levels, from preschool through postsecondary and adult education, including statistics on international education activities.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. No funds appropriated in this Act may be used for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to overcome racial imbalance in any school or school system, or for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to carry out a plan of racial desegregation of any school or school system.

SEC. 302. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to require, directly or indirectly, the transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest the student's home, except for a student requiring special education, to the school offering such special education, in order to comply with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. For the purpose of this section an indirect requirement of transportation of students includes the transportation of students to carry out a plan involving the reorganization of the grade structure of schools, the pairing of schools, or the clustering of schools, or any combination of grade restructuring, pairing or clustering. The prohibition described in this section does not include the establishment of magnet schools.

SEC. 303. No funds appropriated under this Act may be used to prevent the implementation of programs of voluntary prayer and meditation in the public schools.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 304. Not to exceed [1] 3 percent of any discretionary funds (pursuant to the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended) which are appropriated for the Department of Education in this Act may be transferred between appropriations, but no such appropriation shall be increased by more than [3] 10 percent by any such transfer: Provided, That the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are notified at least 15 days in advance of any transfer.

[SEC. 305. (a) Section 1543(a) of the Higher Education Amendments of 1992 (20 U.S.C. 1070 note) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

“(2) AWARD DETERMINATION.—The amount of the financial assistance provided to an athlete described in paragraph (1) shall be determined in accordance with criteria, and in amounts, specified in the application of the center under subsection (c). Such assistance shall not exceed the athlete's cost of attendance as determined under section 472 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1087ll).

“(3) INFORMATION ON DISTRIBUTION OF ASSISTANCE.—Each center providing such assistance shall annually report to the Secretary such information as the Secretary may reasonably require on the distribution of such assistance among athletes and institutions of higher education. The Secretary shall compile such reports and submit them to the Committees on Education and the Workforce and Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committees on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions and Appropriations of the Senate.”

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to any funds appropriated pursuant to section 1543(d) of the Higher Education Amendments of 1992, including funds appropriated pursuant to that section in fiscal years 2000 and 2001, that are available for financial assistance under section 1543 on or after the date of enactment of this Act.】

【SEC. 306. (a) Notwithstanding sections 413D, 442, and 488 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, the Secretary of Education may reallocate, from funds made available under the heading “Student Financial Assistance” to carry out part C of title IV of that Act, excess allocations for fiscal year 2002 in an amount not to exceed $1,000,000 in the aggregate to institutions of higher education described in subsection (b) for the purposes described in subsection (c). The reallocation to each such institution shall be made in accordance with subsection (d). Such excess allocations shall remain available for obligation until March 31, 2004.

(b) An institution of higher education may receive a reallocation under subsection (a) if the institution—

(1) is, on the date of enactment of this Act, participating in the Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant and Federal Work Study programs under subpart 3 of part A, and part C of title IV of that Act, respectively;

(2) initially began participating in both such programs during or after 1989, but not later than 1999;

(3) has a current enrollment of not less than 2,000 students;

(4) provides educational programs for which the institution awards baccalaureate and graduate degrees;

(5) has experienced an actual enrollment increase of 75 percent or more since the institution began participating in such programs; and

(6) charged, for academic year 2000–2001, in-State tuition and fees for a full-time undergraduate student that were less than such tuition and fees charged by the institution for academic year 1998–1999.

(c) An institution of higher education that receives a reallocation under subsection (a) may use that reallocation for Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants or Federal Work Study awards.

(d)(1) A reallocation made under subsection (a) to an institution described in subsection (b) shall be determined by calculating the difference between—

(A) the amount (commonly referred to as the “base guarantee”) that the institution received under section 413D(a) or 442(a) of that Act, as the case may be; and

(B) the amount that the institution would receive pursuant to section 413D(a)(2)(B)(ii) or 442(a)(2)(B)(ii) of that Act, as the case may be, if the institution were beginning its program participation in the 2002–2003 academic year.

(2) If the amounts available for reallocation under subsection (a) are insufficient to fully fund the amounts determined under paragraph (1) of this subsection to each institution described in subsection (b), then the amount to be reallocated to each such institution shall be ratably reduced.

(e) The Secretary may use such data as he determines appropriate in order to carry out this section.】

【SEC. 307. If this Act is enacted before H.R. 1, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001, is enacted, then references to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 or to any other Acts that would be amended by H.R. 1 shall be read to be references to those Acts as they would be amended by H.R. 1 (including amendments made by H. Con. Res. 289, as passed by the House and the Senate).】

SEC. 305. (a) DISCRETIONARY FUNDING.—Section 458(a)(1) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1087h(a)(1)), is amended—

(1) in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by striking “there shall be available to the Secretary, from funds not otherwise appropriated, funds to be obligated for—” and inserting in lieu thereof, “there are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as may be necessary, for—”; and

(2) in the flush language at the end thereof,

(A) by striking “such”;

(B) by inserting “and” after “2001,” and

(C) by striking “, and $795,000,000 in fiscal year 2003”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall be effective beginning in fiscal year 2003.

SEC. 306. Section 1202 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 is amended by inserting the following subsection at the end thereof:

“(g) SUPPLEMENT, NOT SUPPLANT.—State or local educational agency shall use funds received under this subpart only to supplement the level of non-Federal funds that, in the absence of funds under this subpart, would be expended for activities authorized under this subpart, and not to supplant those non-Federal funds.”. Naval Reactors.—This program performs the design, development, and testing necessary to provide the Navy with safe, militarily effective nuclear propulsion plants in keeping with the Nation’s nuclear-powered fleet defense requirements. During 2003, the program expects to exceed 124 million miles safely steamed by the nuclear fleet, and will continue to support and improve operating reactors and plant components, and carry out test activities and verification. Additionally, Naval Reactors will continue to develop nuclear reactor plant components and systems for the Navy’s new attack submarine and next-generation aircraft carriers, and continue to maintain the highest standards of environmental stewardship by responsibly inactivating shut down prototype reactor plants.

Beginning in 2001, programs in the Weapons Activities appropriation have been managed by the National Nuclear Security Administration (NNSA).

Weapons activities provides for the maintenance and refurbishment of nuclear weapons to sustain confidence in their safety, reliability, and performance; expansion of scientific, engineering, and manufacturing capabilities to enable certification of the enduring nuclear weapons stockpile; and manufacture of nuclear weapon components under a comprehensive test ban. Weapons activities also provide for continued maintenance and investment in the Department's enterprise of nuclear stewardship, including maintaining the capability to return to the design and production of new weapons and to underground nuclear testing, if so directed by the President. The major elements of the program include the following:

Directed stockpile work.—Encompasses all activities that directly support specific weapons in the stockpile. These activities include maintenance and day-to-day care; planned refurbishment; reliability assessments; weapon dismantlement and disposal; and research, development, and certification technology efforts to meet future stockpile requirements.

Campaigns.—Focuses on scientific and technical efforts to develop and maintain critical capabilities and tools needed to support continued assessment and certification of the stockpile for the long term.

Readiness in technical base and facilities (RTBF).—Provides the underlying physical infrastructure and operational readiness for the Directed Stockpile Work and Campaign activities. These activities include ensuring that facilities are operational, safe, secure, and compliant with regulatory requirements, and that a defined level of readiness is sustained at facilities funded by the Office of Defense programs.

Facilities and infrastructure.—Focuses on a multi-year effort to restore physical infrastructure of the weapons complex. This activity provides funds to accomplish deferred maintenance while improving facility management practices to preclude further deteriorating.

Secure transportation asset.—Provides for the safe, secure movement of nuclear weapons, special nuclear material, and weapon components between military locations and nuclear complex facilities within the United States.

Weapons Safeguards and Security.—Provides for all safeguard and security requirements (except for personnel security investigations) at NNSA landlord sites, specifically the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Los Alamos National Laboratory, Sandia National Laboratory, the Nevada Test Site, Kansas City Plant, Pantex Plant, Y-12 Plant, and the Savannah River Site Tritium Facilities.

Weapons program direction.—In FY 2002, this activity which provides personnel and contractual services for Federal management and administration was moved to the Office of the Administrator appropriation account.

The mission of this program is to (1) prevent the spread of materials, technology, and expertise relating to weapons of mass destruction; (2) detect the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction worldwide; (3) provide for international nuclear safety, and (4) eliminate inventories of surplus fissile materials usable for nuclear weapons. The program addresses the danger that hostile nations or terrorist groups may acquire weapons of mass destruction or weapons-usable material, dual-use production technology or weapons of mass destruction expertise. In 2003, work will be done in the following major areas.

Nonproliferation and Verification Research and Development will conduct applied research, development, testing, and evaluation leading to prototype demonstrations and detection systems that strengthen the U.S. response to current and projected threats to national security and world peace posed by the proliferation of nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons, and diversion of special nuclear material. The program will increase the transition of technologies to organizations responsible for combating terrorism.

Nonproliferation and International Security (formerly Arms Control) efforts will help prevent the outflow of scientific expertise from the New Independent States (NIS) that could help develop nuclear or other weapons of mass destruction; control export of items and technology useful for weapons of mass destruction (WMD) proliferation; monitor treaties and agreements; develop and implement policy in support of international security efforts aimed at securing high-risk nuclear material; develop and implement transparency measures to assure that international nonproliferation and arms control agreements are in compliance, and that nuclear materials are secure; implement international safeguards in conjunction with the IAEA; and explore and implement innovative approaches to improve regional security.

Russian Transition Assistance encompasses the efforts of the Initiatives for Proliferation Prevention (IPP) and the Nuclear Cities Initiative (NCI) programs to reduce the risk of adverse migration of former Soviet nuclear and other WMD expertise, and to work with the Russians in downsizing their nuclear weapons complex.

International Nuclear Materials Protection and Cooperation (also known as MPC&A) will continue to improve the security for nuclear material and weapons in Russia by installing basic rapid upgrades and through comprehensive security improvements. Even before the September 11, reducing the potential for diversion of nuclear warheads and materials has been a critical priority for the United States. Since the recent terrorist attacks, Russia and the United States have agreed to expand cooperation in this area significantly.

HEU Transparency Implementation will continue to work with Russia to convert highly enriched uranium (HEU) from its military stockpile into a non-weapons usable form of low enriched uranium (LEU) for commercial reactor fuel. The 1993 U.S.-Russia HEU Purchase Agreement, which provides for Russian HEU to be down blended and used to fuel reactors here in the United States, remains an extremely impressive nonproliferation achievement.

International Nuclear Safety and Cooperation strengthens national security by helping to prevent nuclear incidents and accidents at foreign nuclear facilities, to mitigate the consequences of accidents should they occur, and to enhance nuclear nonproliferation by assisting the Russian Federation in ceasing its production of weapons-grade plutonium production by providing replacement energy production capacity. The program is completing its efforts focused in former Soviet Union countries to increase the operating safety of nuclear power reactors and enhance the resident safety culture, and is now reorienting its activities to address critical nuclear safety issues in countries of concern through an integrated and risk-based approach. Initial efforts will focus on improving nuclear safety in Vietnam.

Fissile Materials Disposition conducts activities in both the United States and Russia to dispose of fissile materials that would pose a threat to the United States if acquired by hostile nations or terrorist groups. In FY 2003 it will continue transferring surplus HEU from the Y-12 Plant to the United States Enrichment Corporation; begin deliveries of off-specification HEU and low enriched uranium to TVA; complete Title II design of the mixed oxide (MOX) fuel fabrication facility; continue limited production mode testing, technology demonstrations and continue with Title II design of the Pit Disassembly and Conversion Facility; and continue the design of industrial-scale plutonium conversion and MOX facilities in Russia, VVER-1000/BN-600 reactor work, and assist with the development of relevant licensing regulations.

As of FY 2002 all program direction funding has been transferred to the Office of the Administrator of NNSA.

Cerro Grande Fire Activities.—Emergency funding in 2001 will be used to continue restoration activities at the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico. Initial funding was provided in 2000 as an emergency supplemental appropriation shortly after the Cerro Grande Fire was contained in May 2000. Activities will continue on repair of damaged laboratory assets, risk mitigation against future fire-related emergencies, restoration of destroyed and damaged laboratory facilities and equipment, and full resumption of laboratory programmatic activities.

Environmental management.—The Environmental Management (EM) program is responsible for addressing the environmental legacy resulting from the production of nuclear weapons. The nuclear weapons complex generated waste, pollution, and contamination that pose unique problems, including unprecedented volumes of contaminated soil and water, radiological hazards from special nuclear material, and a vast number of contaminated structures. Factories, laboratories and thousands of square miles of land were devoted to producing tens of thousands of nuclear weapons. Much of this infrastructure, waste, and contamination still exists and is largely maintained, decommissioned, managed, and remediated by the EM program, which is sometimes referred to as the “cleanup program.” EM’s responsibilities include facilities and sites in 30 states and one territory, and occupy an area equal to that of Rhode Island and Delaware combined—or about 2.1 million acres.

EM activities include: environmental restoration, which provides for assessments, characterization, remediation, and decontamination and decommissioning of contaminated DOE facilities and sites; waste management, which provides for the safe treatment, storage, and disposal of wastes generated by defense activities; and, nuclear material and facility stabilization, which provides for stabilization, safeguarding, interim storage, and stewardship of excess nuclear materials, including spent nuclear fuel, awaiting ultimate disposition.

EM will continue to improve the efficiency of its programs through a variety of management and contracting strategies with emphasis on the reduction of support costs and implementation of performance-based contracts.

The EM program has established a goal of cleaning up as many of its contaminated sites as possible by 2006, in a manner that is safe and protects the environment. By working toward this goal, EM can reduce the hazards presently facing its workforce and the public, and reduce the financial burden on the taxpayer. The 2003 budget request continues to reflect the program’s emphasis on site closure and project completion.

The 2003 budget request will support the following major program areas:

Site/project completion.—Includes sites and/or projects planned to be completed by 2006 at EM laboratories or other facilities where DOE will continue to have a presence beyond the year 2006. Examples of sites with projects included in this account are Sandia National Laboratories, New Mexico; Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho; Richland; and Savannah River.

Post 2006 completion.—Includes projects that will continue after 2006. Included are various projects at Albuquerque, New Mexico; Richland, Washington; Savannah River, South Carolina; Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho; Nevada Test Site, Nevada; Oak Ridge Reservation, Tennessee; and the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant in Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Safeguards and security.—This account provides funding to support safeguards and security activities to ensure appropriate levels of protection against: unauthorized access, theft, diversion, loss of custody or destruction of Department of Energy assets and hostile acts that may cause unacceptable adverse impacts on national security or the health and safety of DOE and contractor employees, the public or the environment.

Office of Science and Technology.—Conducts a national program to deliver and support fully developed deployable scientific and technological solutions to Environmental Management and long-term environmental stewardship problems.

EM program direction.—Provides salaries and benefits, travel and other contractual support costs for the Federal workforce at Headquarters and in the field which support the Environmental Management Program.

Excess Facilities.—Provides funding to manage the final disposition of excess contaminated physical facilities transferred to the EM program. Activities in 2003 will be limited to surveillance and maintenance to keep the facilities in a safe condition. The account includes excess facilities at the Pantex Plant, Texas, Savannah River, South Carolina, and the Y-12 plant, Tennessee transferred from the Offices of Defense Programs and Nuclear Energy.

Multi-Site Activities.—Provides funding for technical integration efforts managed at Headquarters that assure disposition of waste and materials; activities to efficiently transfer excess facilities to the EM program for decommissioning; pollution prevention programs; environmental and regulatory analysis; emergency preparedness activities; and coordination of packaging and transportation for waste and nuclear material shipments. Other support activities include analytical laboratory management, training for hazardous waste operations, and maintenance of nuclear criticality safety expertise. In addition, this account funds the Federal Government’s contribution to the Uranium Enrichment Decontamination and Decommissioning Fund.

Environmental management privatization.—Provides funding necessary to proceed with privatization of various DOE environmental management projects that will treat some of DOE's most contaminated soil and highly radioactive waste, as well as deactivate contaminated nuclear facilities that are excess to DOE's needs. This contracting approach to cleanup relies on the private sector to construct and operate facilities or proceed with cleanup actions on a fixed-price, fee-for-service basis. These competitively awarded projects are expected to result in substantial savings over the life-cycle of the projects, when compared to DOE's traditional approach of designing, constructing and operating a government-owned facility. Funds in this account will allow DOE to enter into these contracts and assures private investors that funds will be available to pay for services once the facilities are built.

Under the Environmental Management program, the Department of Energy enters into compliance and cleanup agreements with Federal and State regulatory officials at sites managed by the Department. The Administration is committed to ensuring that these agreements are managed efficiently to protect the health and safety of the public and the environment. The purpose of this new account is to provide an incentive for the parties to these agreements to renegotiate cleanup strategies to achieve greater risk reduction, decrease cleanup costs, and accelerate cleanup schedules, while protecting human health and the environment. These funds will be available only when the Department enters into revised agreements that have the potential for significant life-cycle cost savings over the current baseline cleanup approach. When the Department reaches agreement with regulatory officials, establishes a new funding profile and estimates the cost savings for the alternate cleanup strategy, these funds will be transferred to other cleanup accounts to fund the new projects or supplement funding for ongoing projects.

Intelligence.—The Department's intelligence activities consist of providing the Department, other U.S. Government policy makers, and the Intelligence Community with timely, accurate high impact foreign intelligence technical analyses including support to counterintelligence; providing quick-turn-around, specialized technology applications and operational support to the intelligence, special operations, and law enforcement communities; and ensuring that the Department's technical, analytical and research expertise is made available to the Intelligence Community in accordance with executive Order 12333, "United States Intelligence Activities."

Counterintelligence.—The Office of Counterintelligence mission is to develop and implement an effective Counterintelligence Program throughout the Department of Energy to identify, neutralize and deter foreign government or industrial intelligence activities directed at or involving DOE programs, personnel, facilities, technologies, classified information and unclassified sensitive information. The program provides the analytical, investigative, inspection, information and special technologies, polygraph, and evaluation capabilities necessary to identify and address foreign intelligence targeting and collection activities directed at DOE facilities.

Security.—Security consists of the following programs: Nuclear Safeguards and Security, Security Investigations and Program Direction. Key mission areas are: physical, information, cyber security policy and personnel security; technology development; materials control and accountability; critical infrastructure; declassification/classification; foreign travel visits and assignments; plutonium, uranium, and special nuclear material inventory; and security investigations. These programs provide policy, programmatic direction and training for the protection of the Department's nuclear weapons, nuclear materials, classified and unclassified information, and facilities. The programs: ensure protection of certain critical national infrastructures against physical and cyber attacks; and provide security clearances for federal and contractor personnel. Before FY 2003, Security was budgeted under Security and Emergency Operations.

Energy Security and Assurance.—This newly established program supports the national security of the United States by working to protect the Nation against significant energy supply disruptions. This will be accomplished in close collaboration with the private sector, by providing technical expertise to assess vulnerabilities in the national energy infrastructure and technical expertise to help mitigate any adverse impacts that may result from such a disruption. America's energy supply is essential to a strong economy and national security. The program includes: Energy Security and Assurance, the National Infrastructure Simulation and Analysis Center (NISAC), and Program Direction.

Worker and community transition.—This program provides for the development, implementation, and funding of plans under section 3161 of the National Defense Authorization Act of 1993, to provide options to assist workers affected by workforce restructuring including preference in hiring, outplacement assistance, and relocation assistance. This program also provides impact assistance to local communities, as well as disposition of assets excess to current Department needs.

Environment, safety and health (Defense).—The Office of Environment, Safety and Health is a corporate resource that provides Departmental leadership and management to protect the workers, public, and environment. The programs in the other defense activities are oversight, health studies, radiation effects research foundation, and employee compensation support as well as program direction.

Independent oversight and performance assurance.—This program provides an independent assessment of the effectiveness of Departmental policies and site performance in the areas of environment, safety, health safeguards, security, emergency management, cyber security, and other critical functions. Appraisals are performed to determine whether site programs are effectively implemented and achieving Department-wide and site specific objectives.

All other.—This category includes obligations for a portion of the projects reviewed under the Independent Assessment of DOE project funding. In addition, obligations are included for the National Security Programs Administrative Support and the Office of Hearings and Appeals. Responsibilities of the Office of Hearings and Appeals include adjudications of matters involving employees' eligibility for security clearances, appeals of adverse determinations under the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, complaints of reprisals by contractor-employees for "whistleblowing", and requests for exception from DOE orders, rules, and regulations.

This appropriation was established by Congress as part of the 1993 Energy and Water Development Appropriation (P.L. 102-377) in lieu of payment from the Department of Energy into the Nuclear Waste Fund for activities related to the disposal of defense high-level waste.

The program's cost estimates reflect DOE's best projections, given the scope of work identified and planned schedule of required activities. Future budget requests for the Program have yet to be established and will be determined through the annual executive and congressional budget process.

Since passage of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, as amended, the Nuclear Waste Fund has incurred costs for activities related to disposal of high-level waste generated from the atomic energy defense activities of the Department of Energy. At the end of 2001 the balance owed by the Federal Government to the Nuclear Waste Fund was approximately $1,350 million (including principal and interest). The "Defense Nuclear Waste Disposal" appropriation was established to ensure payment of the Federal Government's contribution to the nuclear waste repository program. Through 2001, a total of approximately $1,436 million has been appropriated to support nuclear waste repository activities attributed to atomic energy defense activities.

High energy physics.—This research program focuses on gaining insights into the fundamental constituents of matter, the fundamental forces in nature, and the transformations between matter and energy at the most elementary level. The program encompasses both experimental and theoretical particle physics research and related advanced accelerator and detector technology R&D. The primary mode of experimental research involves the study of collisions of energetic particles using large particle accelerators or colliding beam facilities.

Research in 2003 will continue to focus on studies of known fundamental particle constituents, the search for new particle constituents, and the pursuit of a unified description of the four fundamental forces in nature.

In addition to contributing to breakthrough discoveries such as the existence of the top quark, high energy physics research enhances national economic competitiveness. State-of-the-art technology developed for accelerators and detectors contribute to progress in fields such as fast electronics, high-speed computing, superconducting magnet technology, and high-power radio frequency devices. High energy physics research also continues to make major contributions to accelerator technology and provides the expertise necessary for the expansion of such technology into fields such as medical diagnostics, and applied research using synchrotron light sources.

The 2003 high energy physics budget request will support the continued operation of two of the Department's major high energy physics facilities: the Fermilab Tevatron and the Stanford B-Factor. Fixed target operations for the Alternate Gradient Synchrotron HEP program are terminated. In addition, $60 million is provided for the Department's 2003 contribution to continued U.S. participation in the large hadron collider project at the European Center for Nuclear Research.

The high energy physics R&D request provides funding for advanced accelerator and detector R&D that is necessary for next-generation high energy particle accelerators. The request also includes $20.1 million for the neutrinos at the main injector project.

Nuclear Physics.—The goal of the nuclear physics program is to understand the interactions and structure of atomic nuclei and to investigate fundamental particles and forces of nature as manifested in nuclear matter. In 2003, the program will continue to focus on the role of quarks in the composition and interactions of nuclei, the application of nuclear physics methods to astrophysical problems, the properties of neutrinos, and the mechanisms by which colliding nuclei exchange mass, energy, and angular momentum.

The nuclear physics program supports and provides experimental equipment to qualified scientists and research groups conducting experiments at nuclear physics accelerator facilities. These facilities provide new insights and advance our knowledge of the nature of matter and energy and develop the scientific knowledge, technologies and trained manpower needed to underpin the DOE's missions for nuclear related national security, energy and environmental quality.

The Thomas Jefferson National Accelerator Facility/Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility experimental program began in 1996 and will continue in 2003. At the MIT/Bates accelerator a new program of research utilizing the BLAST large acceptance detector will begin. Experimental operations at the Radioactive Ion Beam facility in Oak Ridge National Laboratory will continue in 2003. Operation of ATLAS (ANL), and the 88-inch cyclotron (LBNL) will be supported, as will the operation of the university-based accelerator laboratories.

The Relativistic Heavy Ion Collider (RHIC) research program will continue as RHIC and its four major detectors approach their full design potential, allowing researchers to explore a new regime of nuclear matter and nuclear interactions that up to now have only been characterized theoretically.

Biological and environmental research.—This program develops the knowledge base necessary to identify, understand, and anticipate the long-term health and environmental consequences of energy use and development and utilizes the Department's unique scientific and technological capabilities to solve major scientific problems in the environment, medicine, and biology. Planned 2003 activities include programs in global climate change; terrestrial, atmospheric and marine environmental processes; molecular, cellular and systemic studies on the biological effects of radiation; structural biology; medical applications of nuclear technology; and the Human Genome Program. Funding for the Human Genome

Program is provided to allow for high throughput human DNA sequencing. The program also supports science related to carbon sequestration and sequencing of genomes of microbes that use carbon dioxide to produce methane and hydrogen. In conjunction with the ASCR program a global systems application is continued to accelerate progress in coupled general circulation model development through use of enhanced computer simulation and modeling. The "genomes to life" activity, aimed at understanding the composition and function of biochemical networks that carry out essential processes of living organisms is funded at $36.7 million. In FY 2003, the Environmental Management Science Program and the Savannah River Ecology Laboratory are transferred from the Office of Environmental Management to the Office of Science.

Basic Energy Sciences.—The basic energy sciences (BES) program funds basic research in the physical, biological and engineering sciences that support the Department's nuclear and non-nuclear technology programs. The BES program is responsible for operating large national user research facilities, including synchrotron light and neutron sources, a combustion research facility, as well as smaller user facilities such as materials preparation and electron microscopy centers.

The BES program supports a substantial basic research budget for materials sciences, chemical sciences, energy biosciences, engineering and geosciences. The program supports a number of research areas that are unique within the Federal government; in many basic research areas, such as materials science, funding provided by the BES program represents a large percentage, or even the sole source, of Federal funding.

The 2003 BES budget request includes continued support to maintain utilization of the Department's large state-of-the-art science facilities. The proposed funding will maintain the quality of service and availability of facility resources to users, including university and government scientists, as well as private companies who rely on unique BES facilities for their basic research needs. Research areas that will benefit from the facilities funding include structural biology, materials science, superconductor technology, and medical research and technology development.

In addition, the BES request includes $225.0 million in 2003 to continue construction at Oak Ridge National Laboratory for the Spallation Neutron Source (SNS) to meet the Nation's neutron scattering needs. The request includes $5 million to begin design and construction of additional instruments beyond the initial instrument suite included in the construction project data sheet. The SNS will provide significant scientific, technical, and economic benefits that derive from neutron scattering and materials irradiation research. This world class Neutron source will enable the Nation to carry out major research activities in areas such as biology, materials science, superconductivity, pharmaceuticals, and electronic materials, that are critical for future U.S. economic competitiveness and national security. The multi-agency national nanotechnology program is $129.0 million and includes PED and construction funding for NSRC's at 3 national laboratories.

Fusion Energy Sciences Program.—The fusion energy sciences program for 2003 continues to implement the recommendations of the reports by the National Research Council, the Secretary of Energy Advisory Board and recommendations of the Fusion Energy Science Advisory committee. The mission of the program is to advance plasma science, fusion science, and fusion technology. The program emphasizes the underlying basic research in plasma and fusion sciences, with the long-term goal of harnessing fusion as a viable energy source. The program centers on the following goals: understanding the physics of plasmas; identification and exploration of innovative and cost effective development paths to fusion energy; and exploration of the science and technology of energy producing plasmas, as a partner in an international effort.

The budget request provides for support of basic research in plasma science in partnership with NSF, plasma containment research, and investigation of tokamak alternatives, along with continued operation of DIII-D, Alcator C-Mod, and the National Spherical Torus Experiment. Research on alternate concepts is continued to develop a fuller understanding of the physics of magnetically confined plasma and to identify approaches that may improve the economical and environmental attractiveness of fusion. Fabrication of the new National Compact Stellarator experiment will be initiated at Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory. The inertial fusion energy activity is exploring an alternative path for fusion energy that would capitalize on the major R&D effort in inertial confinement fusion which is carried out by NNSA for stockpile stewardship purposes. Theory and modeling efforts will be supported to develop a predictive capability for the operation of fusion experiments. Enabling technology research will also be conducted in support of the science experiments.

Energy research analyses.—This activity involves objective assessments to evaluate the quality and impact of DOE research programs and projects.

Science laboratories infrastructure.—The goal of the science laboratories infrastructure program is to provide funds for rehabilitating, replacing or demolishing deficient common-use utilities, roads, and buildings and to correct Environment, Safety and Health deficiencies at the civilian science laboratories. An “excess facilities disposal” subprogram, first funded by Congress in FY 2002 as the Facilities and Infrastructure program, is included in FY 2003 in the Science Laboratories Infrastructure program. The Oak Ridge Landlord activity is also funded here.

Advanced Scientific Computing Research (ASCR).—This program includes research in mathematical, information, and computational sciences and laboratory technology research activities. The purpose of the ASCR program is to support advanced computational research—applied mathematics, computer science, and networking—to enable the analysis, simulation and prediction of complex physical phenomena. The program also supports the operation of large supercomputer user facilities. The request includes research, integrated with other science programs, on application of computer simulation and modeling to science problems.

Safeguards and security.—The mission of this program is to ensure appropriate levels of protection and provide against: unauthorized access, theft, diversion, loss of custody, or destruction of Department of Energy assets and hostile acts that may cause adverse impacts on fundamental science, or the health and safety of DOE and contractor employees, the public, or the environment. The 2003 request provides funding for physical protection, protective forces, physical security, protective systems, information security, cyber security, personnel security, materials control and accountability and program management activities. In FY 2003, costs for safeguards and security at Argonne National Laboratory—West are transferred from the Office of Science to the Office of Environmental Management.

The purpose of Energy Supply Research and Development activities is to develop new energy technologies and improve existing energy technologies. Included in this mission are basic and applied research and targeted programs in technology development.

This account provides funds for operating expenses, and capital equipment for the advancement of the various energy technologies under examination in the energy supply, research and development mission.

The detailed budget structure shown in lines 00.01 through 10.00 above is intended to clarify the nature and management of Energy Supply activities

Renewable Energy Resources.—A sound, viable program is proposed for 2003 to lead the Nation in research and development of renewable energy and related technologies to meet the growing need for clean and affordable energy. Program activities range from basic research in universities and national laboratories to cost-shared applied research, development, and field validation in partnership with the private sector. Specific goals and activities of the 2003 program include: (1) Biomass and Biofuels Energy Systems: continue

R&D to achieve further reductions in biopower and biofuels production costs, and develop high-efficiency thermochemical and biochemical conversion technologies. Additionally, pursue a multi-sectoral approach, in collaboration with the Department of Agriculture, to take advantage of the emerging technology synergies amongst biomass power, biofuels, and the production of bio-based products. These developments will lead to the deployment of biorefineries and raise the prospect of reduction in foreign oil dependency, improved rural economic development, increased environmental benefits in both urban and rural areas, and new global market opportunities for U.S. industry. (2) Geothermal Technology Development: begin development of an enhanced geothermal system that will allow the broader use of geothermal energy throughout the western United States, and conduct cooperative research with industry to reduce the cost of geothermal development and to identify new resources. (3) Hydrogen research and development: reduce the cost of hydrogen production. Increase the capacity and reduce the cost of hydrogen storage systems. Develop more efficient, lower cost fuel cell systems that incorporate accurate hydrogen sensors for leak detection and safety measurements. (4) Hydropower: continue development of "fish-friendly" turbine systems to address the primary environmental mitigation issues associated with licensing and sustaining hydropower production. (5) Solar Energy: develop more efficient photovoltaic materials and cell devices, lower-cost thin-film technologies, improved manufacturing and large-area processing, and more reliable modules and systems as part of an industry-led research effort and focus on cooperative industry and utility efforts to effectively use advanced solar technology for water-heating. (6) Wind Energy Systems: develop in partnership with industry low wind speed technology to allow wind power to be cost-competitive in these more prevalent, lower wind resources areas, and support related technology base advances.

Electric Energy Systems and Storage: Reliable delivery of electricity is becoming an increasingly important concern that is not being addressed by market mechanisms. The inherent losses in conventional electric conductors represent a long-standing inefficiency that may soon be addressed by the emerging technology of high-temperature superconductivity. The 2003 program activities will include: (1) High-Temperature Superconductivity: super-efficient generators, transformers, and transmission cables that reduce energy losses by 50 percent and allow equipment to be half the size of current systems; (2) Distributed Energy Systems: develop advanced technologies to enhance the reliability, capacity, and power quality of electric power transmission and distribution. Work in partnership with industry to develop and integrate energy storage systems and distributed power generation. Develop and test real-time system controls to ensure reliability during both normal and emergency power system operations.

Renewable Support and Implementation: encourage municipal and public power entities to acquire renewable energy generation resources through the Renewable Energy Production Incentive; encourage the deployment of U.S. renewable energy technologies in the developing world through the International Renewable Energy Program; facilitate the identification and responsible development of renewable energy resources on Native American lands; and encourage the use of renewable energy technologies in remote areas of the U.S. through the competitive solicitation program. The Departmental Energy Management program will continue to fund, through internal competition, the most worthwhile direct funding opportunities to improve energy efficiency through the use of renewable technologies in DOE's facilities.

Nuclear fission.—The 2003 budget request continues to support the Nuclear Energy Research Initiative (NERI), an investigator-initiated, peer-reviewed research and development program that addresses key issues affecting the future of nuclear energy, including nuclear waste storage and disposal, nuclear plant economics and operational safety, and potential for weapons proliferation.

The Department also continues to support the University program, preserving the education and training infrastructure needed to develop the next generation of nuclear scientists and engineers. In addition, Administration's proposal supports the Nuclear Energy Technologies program, which includes Generation IV systems to pursue the development of next generation nuclear energy and nuclear fuel cycle technologies in collaboration with the international community and the Nuclear Power 2010 program to pursue regulatory approvals and design completion in a phased approach, leading to construction and startup of new nuclear plants in the U.S. by 2010.

Nuclear fission programs also support the Department's critical infrastructure necessary to enable research on advanced nuclear power systems for U.S. national security and other federal agencies, the production of radioisotopes for medical and other research purposes and maintain and operate the Department's nuclear facilities, including the Advanced Test Reactor and hotcells, in a safe, environmentally compliant and cost-effective manner.

Environment, safety and health.—The Office of Environment, Safety and Health is a corporate resource that fosters protection of workers, the public, and the environment. The office develops and improves policies; monitors environment, safety, and health performance; and provides guidance, resources, and information sharing.

Note that the budget request for the Office of Environment, Safety and Health programs is contained in two accounts: Energy Supply and Other Defense Activities. The funding in this account supports policy, standards and guidance and DOE-wide ES&H programs as well as program direction.

Technical information management program.—This program provides timely, accurate technical information to DOE's researchers and the public by collecting, preserving, and disseminating scientific and technical information, the principal product resulting from the multi-billion dollar Department of Energy research and development (R&D) program. The TIM program also provides worldwide energy scientific and technical information to the Department of Energy (DOE), the United States, industry, academia, and the public through interagency and international scientific and technical information exchange agreements and coordinates technical information-related activities across DOE and its laboratories.

Environmental management.—The Environmental Management (EM) program is responsible for addressing the environmental legacy resulting from nuclear energy and energy research activities. The nuclear energy research and development efforts of the Department of Energy and its predecessors focused on peaceful uses of nuclear energy and generated waste, pollution, and contamination that pose unique problems, including unprecedented volumes of contaminated soil and water, radiological hazards from special nuclear material, and a vast number of contaminated structures. Much of this infrastructure, waste, and contamination still exists and is largely maintained, decommissioned, managed, and remediated by the EM program, which is sometimes referred to as the “cleanup program.” EM’s responsibilities include facilities and sites in 30 states and one territory, and occupy an area equal to that of Rhode Island and Delaware combined—or about 2.1 million acres.

EM activities include: environmental restoration, which provides for assessments, characterization, remediation, and decontamination and decommissioning of contaminated DOE facilities and sites; waste management, which provides for the safe, treatment, storage, and disposal of wastes generated by defense activities; and, nuclear material and facility stabilization, which provides for stabilization, safeguarding, interim storage, and stewardship of excess nuclear materials, awaiting ultimate disposition.

EM will continue to improve the efficiency of its programs through a variety of management and contracting strategies with emphasis on the reduction of support costs and implementation of performance-based contracts.

The EM program has established a goal of cleaning up as many of its contaminated sites as possible by 2006, in a manner that is safe and protects the environment. By working toward this goal, EM can reduce the hazards presently facing its workforce and the public, and reduce the financial burden on the taxpayer. The 2003 budget request continues to reflect the program’s emphasis on site closure and project completion—in other words, finishing the work as quickly as possible.

The 2003 budget request will support the following major program areas:

Site closure.—This account provides funding for completing cleanup and closing facilities with no enduring Federal presence on site, except for stewardship activities. The Department has established a goal of completing cleanup activities budgeted for in this account by 2006.

Site/project completion.—This account provides funding for environmental management projects that will be completed by 2006 at (1) EM sites where overall site cleanup will not be fully accomplished by 2006; and (2) DOE sites where all EM projects will be completed by 2006 (except for long-term stewardship activities), but where there will be a continuing federal workforce at the site to carry out enduring non-EM missions, such as nuclear weapons support or scientific research, and the necessary waste management to handle newly generated wastes from these missions. This account includes projects and sites under the following operations offices: Albuquerque, Chicago, Idaho, Oakland, and Richland.

Post 2006 completion.—This account funds projects that are expected to require work beyond 2006. This includes projects at the following operations offices and sites: Idaho, Oakland, Albuquerque, and West Valley, New York.

Excess Facilities.—Provides funding to manage the final disposition of excess contaminated physical facilities transferred to the EM program. Activities in 2003 will be limited to surveillance and maintenance to keep the facilities in a safe condition. The account includes excess facilities at the Los Alamos, New Mexico, Brookhaven National Laboratory, New York, and Oak Ridge, Tennessee transferred from the Office of Science.

This account includes remedial action, the depleted uranium hexafluoride conversion project, and other costs associated with environmental cleanup activities at sites leased and operated by the United States Enrichment Corporation, as well as DOE facilities at these and other sites. These activities were previously funded in the Uranium Enrichment Decontamination and Decommissioning Fund. A portion of the fund will be used to reimburse current owners of uranium and thorium sites for a portion of their remediation costs for tailings attributable to the sale of uranium or thorium to the Federal Government.

This fund includes projects at the East Tennessee Technology Park and Oak Ridge Reservation, Tennessee; Paducah gaseous diffusion plant, Kentucky; and Portsmouth gaseous diffusion plant, Ohio.

Other Uranium Activities support important government activities related to the Federal Uranium Enrichment Program that were not transferred to the United States Enrichment Corporation. These activities include maintenance of facilities and inventories, and pre-existing liabilities.

The Fossil Energy Research and Development program supports high-priority, high risk and crosscutting research that will improve the Nation's ability to use coal, oil and natural gas cleanly and efficiently, and enhance the economic recovery of our oil and gas reserves. The program funds research and development that strengthens the technology base industry uses in developing new products and processes to support these national goals. Fossil Energy R&D supports activities ranging from early concept research in universities and national laboratories to applied R&D and proof-of-concept projects in private sector firms.

President's Clean Coal Research Initiative.—This year, the budget consolidates all coal research under one umbrella: the President's Clean Coal Research initiative. This approach will increase the efficiency and management of the effort, eliminating duplication, as well as provide for a more transparent budget structure. The Department will continue to increase involvement of the private sector and academia to help conduct and direct research toward the most critical barriers to expansion of coal use for power generation in the United States. This cooperative effort will require industry to share in the cost of research work, with the industry share increasing as technologies approach commercial stages. Technologies will be selected with the goal of accelerating development and deployment of coal technologies that will economically meet environmental standards, while increasing the efficiency and reliability of coal power plants. The coal R&D program will focus on addressing the energy and environmental demands of the post-2000 domestic market, and includes three elements: (1) Central systems, which includes the technologies for advanced coal-fueled power systems, and innovations for existing plants; (2) Sequestration R&D, which focuses on greenhouse gas capture and reduction; and (3) Advanced research, which, through early concept research, bridges fundamental research and engineering development. The program goals of these elements are integrated through the Vision 21 concept, aimed at doubling the existing power plant efficiency with the flexibility to produce high value products from coal and other fuels while achieving near-zero pollution and reducing energy costs.

Other Power Systems.—Other Power Systems focuses on novel power generation systems, distributed power generation systems including fuel cell technology, and supporting technology for all power systems.

Oil and Gas.—The Oil and Gas programs aim to develop revolutionary technologies for exploration and production of oil and gas from deeper geologic formations, harsher environments and more complex reservoirs, as well as methane hydrates. Other areas include providing small operators with tools to boost environmental performance and recovery efficiency of marginal wells via technology transfer. Natural gas infrastructure research activities previously carried out under this heading are transferred to the Department of Transportation's Office of Pipeline Safety to reduce duplication and streamline efforts.

Program direction and management support.—The program provides the funding for all headquarters and indirect field personnel and overhead expenses in Fossil Energy. In addition, it provides support for day-to-day project management functions.

Environmental restoration.—The Department of Energy is managing the environmental cleanup of former and present Fossil Energy project sites. Activities include environmental protection, onsite cleanup, and cleanup at several former off-site research and development locations in Wyoming and Connecticut and environmental efforts at the National Energy Technology Laboratory (NETL) Morgantown and Pittsburgh sites, and the Albany Research Center (ARC).

Import/Export Authorization.—This program will continue regulatory reviews and oversight of the transmission of natural gas and electricity across the U.S. borders.

The Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves has historically managed, operated, maintained and produced the reserves to achieve the greatest value and benefit to the Government. From FY 1976 through FY 2000, NPOSR production activities generated a net income of $21 billion for the U.S. Treasury. As a result of the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 1996, NPR-1 (Elk Hills) was sold to Occidental Petroleum Corporation and all three naval oil shale reserves (NOSR) have been transferred outside the Department. Administrative jurisdiction for NOSR-1 and NOSR-3 were transferred to the Department of the Interior to be made available for leasing. The third oil shale reserve, NOSR-2, was transferred to the UTe Indian Tribe in January 2000 in accordance with the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001. The U.S. retains a 9% royalty interest in the value of any oil, gas, other hydrocarbons, and other minerals produced from the conveyed land, which will be applied to costs for remediation of the uranium mill tailings site near Moab, Utah. The most significant post-sale activity is the settlement of ownership equity shares with the former unit partner in the NPR-1 field, Chevron USA Inc. Geologic petroleum and reservoir engineering services are required to prepare and support the Government's equity position before an independent petroleum engineer and the Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy, who is to impartially determine final equity shares. Each percentage point change in equity is worth millions of dollars to the Government. Under the Rocky Mountain Oilfield Testing Center (RMOTC) program, the naval petroleum reserves offers NPR-3 (Teapot Dome) to the oil industry for use as a working laboratory on a cost sharing basis. The FY 2003 budget request is structured to consolidate the operations and management activities for the three remaining activities—Naval Petroleum Reserve Number 2, Naval Petroleum Reserve Number 3, and the Rocky Mountain Oilfield Testing Center. The Elk Hills closeout work includes reservoir engineering analysis to determine final equity percentages; legal support for all sale-related issues; and environmental remediation and cultural resource activities required as a result of the sale agreement. Responsibilities for the other properties include management and environmental compliance of the 17 NPR-2 leases; operation and maintenance of NPR-3 field operations; and environmental remediation of NPR-3.

The Administration's energy efficiency programs produce substantial benefits for the Nation—both now and in the future—in terms of economic growth, increased energy security and a cleaner environment through the research and development of energy efficiency and pollution prevention technologies. These programs carry out the Department's responsibility under the Energy Policy Act of 1992 and other authorizing legislation.

Independent estimates suggest that the dollar benefits of these programs—to industries, homeowners, and commercial firms—far exceed program costs. Furthermore, the technologies developed in these programs create jobs and global market opportunities for U.S. firms.

In total, the Department projects that its energy efficiency programs will save consumers and businesses over $30 billion per year by the year 2010. Our transportation technologies research is designed to reduce oil consumption, thus reducing pollution and vulnerability to oil price shocks.

The activities and programs contained in the 2003 budget request represent a balanced portfolio of applied research and development. Virtually all of the research and development programs are conducted jointly with industrial partners who share significantly in research costs. Similarly, demonstration and deployment programs are specifically designed to leverage the existing programs and the efforts of utilities and existing state and local government programs in energy efficiency and pollution prevention.

Building technology, State, and community sector.—In partnership with the buildings industry, the program will continue to develop, promote, and integrate energy technologies and practices to make buildings more efficient and affordable and communities more livable. The Building Research and Standards program accelerates the availability of highly efficient buildings technologies and practices through research and development; increases the minimum efficiency of buildings and equipment through building codes, and appliance standards, and guidelines; and encourages the use of energy-efficient and renewable energy technologies and practices in residential and commercial buildings.

In addition, the Buildings Research and Standards program integrates research and development activities to improve the energy efficiency of appliances, building equipment, and the building envelope by developing test procedures and building efficiency codes and standards.

The Building Technology Assistance program complements the Research and Standards program by moving advanced technologies into the marketplace, producing near-term energy savings with associated economic and environmental benefits. The Building Technology Assistance program is designed to promote the adoption of energy efficient and renewable energy technologies among States, municipalities, institutions, and by private citizens through community outreach and Energy Star programs. These voluntary partnerships help lower the barriers to adoption of cost-effective technologies advanced through collaborations with manufacturers, utilities, state and local government and community organizations. Conservation grants programs—the weatherization assistance program and the State energy program—assist States and localities in promoting energy efficiency.

Federal Energy Management Program.—The Federal Energy Management Program (FEMP) reduces the cost and environmental impact of the Federal government by advancing energy efficiency and water conservation, promoting the use of renewable energy, and managing utility costs in Federal facilities and operations. FEMP helps Federal agencies use energy savings performance contracts (ESPC) and utility energy savings contracts (UESC) to finance energy savings improvements at no net cost to taxpayers. FEMP also provides project-specific design assistance, energy audits, training, and technical information to help agencies implement energy efficiency, water conservation, and renewable energy technology projects. The program issues technical information, including Federal Technology Alerts and Product Energy Efficiency Recommendations, to help agencies make smarter energy investments. FEMP also assists agencies in meeting annual energy reporting requirements to Congress and the President, and disseminates educational information through its web site, newsletter, and other guidance materials.

Industrial sector.—The program focuses on funding cost-shared research in critical technology areas identified by industry. Through its "Industries of the Future" (Specific) program the Office of Industrial Technologies (OIT) encourages the most energy-intensive industries to develop a strategic vision and a "technology roadmap" to help achieve that vision. By identifying and prioritizing their technology needs, the industries help target R&D resources toward where they can provide the largest benefit. OIT has targetted the most energy-intensive and environmentally sensitive industries including: chemicals, forest products, steel, aluminum, metal casting, agriculture, mining, and glass. The focus is on high risk but promising technologies that decrease these industries' use of raw materials and depletable energy resources and reduce generation of wastes and pollutants. The Industries of the Future (Crosscutting) program develops technologies that are useful to multiple industries simultaneously, such as combustion equipment including gasification of biomass waste, and sensors and controls. It delivers information and tools to help plant managers make informed decisions on technology choices today that result in energy, waste and dollar savings. In addition, these programs develop advanced materials which address a multitude of wear and corrosion problems. Several Industries of the future sub-programs also contribute to the Department's Integrated Biomass initiative, including Agriculture, Industrial Gasification, and a portion of Forest Products.

Transportation sector.—This program funds the Office of Transportation Technologies (OTT), which conducts research and development of technologies that have the potential to significantly alter current projections of U.S. and world demand for energy, particularly oil. This program is the focal point for much of the Government's direct support for cooperative research programs with the automotive and truck industries, including the Administration's new FreedomCAR initiative. The program's goals include contributing to substantial improvements in fuel economy, as well as major reductions in environmental emissions, including criteria pollutants and carbon dioxide. Program priorities encompass a suite of technologies, including fuel cells, lightweight materials, electronic power control, high power storage, and hybrid electric drive motors. This program also supports research specifically aimed at improving the efficiency of energy conversion in advanced combustion engines and development of cleaner, more available, and more diverse transportation fuels, and demonstrating advanced alternative fuel vehicles. The program also implements the Energy Policy Act provisions that are intended to accelerate the use of alternative fuels and vehicles. OTT's public education programs are consistent with the President's National Energy Policy to expand consumer understanding of alternative fuel and energy efficient vehicles.

Power sector.—The program continues research and development to transform the current, inefficient electrical generation sector to a smarter, flexible and efficient energy system through the development and integration of distributed generation and combined heat and power technologies. Distributed generation refers to the production of electricity at or near the point of consumption in the residential, commercial, industrial or utility sector. Combined heat and power refers to energy systems that maximize efficiency by utilizing the heat generated from the production of electricity. Collectively, distributed generation and combined heat and power are referred to as Distributed Energy Resources (DER). Specifically, the public-private partnerships develop low cost, efficient, and clean energy choices for consumers that increase reliability and power quality as well as increase energy security in the U.S. These choices include fuel-flexible microturbines, gas turbines, reciprocating engines, fuel cells, desiccants, absorption chillers, and package or hybrid systems. In addition, the program addresses barriers to integrating these technologies with current building practices. Program priorities focus on increasing generation technology efficiencies to greater than 40 percent (compared to the current average grid efficiency of 33 percent), doubling the system efficiency at the customer site to greater than 70 percent while reducing emissions, and improving indoor air quality.

The object of this program is to reduce the vulnerability of the United States to energy supply disruptions by maintaining a crude oil stockpile capable of rapid deployment at the direction of the President. This program enables the President to meet the Nation's membership commitments within the International Energy Agency's coordinated energy emergency response plans and programs to deter the use of energy supply disruptions and to take effective, co-ordinated action should such an energy supply disruption occur. During 2000, the Department established a two million barrel heating oil component of the reserve in the Northeast to help protect Americans from possible fuel shortages.

The account provides for ongoing operations and maintenance activities, vapor pressure control, planning studies, and program administration, as well as petroleum reserve storage facility construction.

The key measure of program performance is expressed as capability to comply with Level 1 Performance Criteria. These criteria are specific engineered performance and reliability standards applied to critical inventory storage, drawdown, and distribution systems required for drawing down and distributing crude oil inventory.

This account provides for the acquisition, transportation, and injection of petroleum into the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and for its drawdown and distribution. The budget proposes $11 million to fund fill of the SPR to its 700 million barrel capacity. The Department of Energy will add approximately 108 million barrels of oil to the SPR through placement into the SPR of royalty oil from federal offshore leases.

The funding will provide incremental costs of terminalling, transportation, power, and third party inspections. Filling the SPR addresses the President's initiative to enhance the energy security of the United States by strengthening the nation's capability to respond to potential oil supply disruptions.

This program supports energy information activities which are designed to provide timely, accurate and relevant energy information for use by the Administration, the Congress, and the general public. The activities funded in this program include the design, development and maintenance of information systems on petroleum, natural gas, coal, nuclear, electricity, alternate fuel sources, and energy consumption. This includes collecting data and ensuring its accuracy; preparing forecasts of alternative energy futures; and preparing reports on energy sources, end-uses, prices, supply and demand, and associated environmental, economic, international, and financial matters. In addition, the National Energy Information Center disseminates statistical and analytical publications, reports, and data files in hard-copy and electronic formats, and responds to public inquiries. Finally, this activity provides survey and statistical design standards, documentation

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (Commission) regulates key interstate aspects of the electric power, natural gas, oil pipeline, and hydropower industries. The Commission chooses regulatory approaches that foster competitive markets whenever possible, assures access to reliable service at a reasonable price, and gives full and fair consideration to environmental and community impacts in assessing the public interest of energy projects. Regulated businesses pay fees and charges sufficient to recover the Government's full costs of operations.

Energy Infrastructure.—The Commission must promote a secure, high quality and environmentally responsible infrastructure through consistent policies to meet market and operational demands. To ensure that needed new infrastructure is financially viable, the Commission determines just and reasonable rates for the interstate transportation of natural gas and oil on the pipelines subject to the Commission's jurisdiction and sets rates for the interstate transmission and wholesale sales of electric energy. It approves rates for all Federal power marketing administrations, but not for TVA. The Commission also certifies three special classes of power generators: cogeneration facilities, small power production facilities, and exempt wholesale generators. Furthermore, the Commission authorizes tariff provisions, as appropriate, to allow the gas and oil pipelines to adjust their services to meet their customers' needs and the pipelines' needs to meet competition in their markets. The Commission has and will continue to develop creative and flexible pricing policies and new incentive mechanisms to promote the development of the nation's electric and gas infrastructures and support the competitive marketplace.

The Commission will continue to ensure that environmental concerns involving energy projects are properly addressed and that the public interest is protected when new hydropower projects are licensed or relicensed and when new natural gas pipeline services are authorized. The Commission issues preliminary permits, exemptions, licenses and relicenses for non-federal hydroelectric projects, enforces their terms and conditions, and performs dam safety inspections. It regulates over 1,660 hydroelectric projects, which supply about 5 percent of the electric energy generated in the United States. The Commission investigates to determine the amount of headwater benefits derived from federally owned and FERC-licensed headwater improvements, collects this amount from licensees, and returns it to the U.S. Treasury. The Commission also issues certificates authorizing natural gas pipelines to construct and operate new facilities and to provide new services.

Competitive Energy Markets.—The Commission fosters nationwide competitive energy markets as a substitute for traditional regulation. Since enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992, the Commission has introduced a number of initiatives to foster wholesale competition in the generation sector of the electric utility industry. In 1996, the Commission issued Order Nos. 888 and 889, which require all jurisdictional public utilities to provide open access transmission service to all wholesale customers under standard terms and conditions. At the end of 1999, the Commission issued Order No. 2000, which called on utilities to voluntarily form regional transmission organizations (RTOs). As a result, many utilities have proposed to turn over control of their transmission systems to RTOs. This requires Commission approval. For the development of RTOs with consistent ways of doing business and that operate efficiently on a regional basis, the Commission will encourage standardized business rules and practices to maximize market efficiency, ease market entry, and reduce transactions costs. The Commission will use balanced, industry-led organizations to develop reliability and business practice standards, and will ensure that RTOs will have responsibility for regional transmission planning.

Market Oversight.—The Commission must protect customers and market participants through vigilant and fair oversight of the transitioning energy markets. The Commission will strengthen the role of RTO market monitoring units and will count on them as the first line of defense against problems. The Commission will ensure procompetitive market structures by identifying and remedying problems, assessing market and infrastructure conditions against objective benchmarks, and periodically reviewing and revising market rules for sustained, long-term development of energy markets. To this end, the Commission will publish a Seasonal Market Assessment in advance of the summer cooling season and again before the winter heating season, assessing conditions and prioritizing actions needed for improvement of market performance. This will allow for correction of major potential problems in the markets before they become serious. In addition, the Commission will continue to ensure that mergers and consolidations are consistent with pro-competitive goals. The Commission will detect abuses of market power quickly and use prohibitions and penalties as necessary to remove, prevent, and deter abuses. The Commission will conduct investigations as warranted and act on complaints, using litigation before administrative law judges as necessary.

Resource Administration.—Efficient administration of resources facilitates the Commission's ability to accomplish its regulatory mission. Resource administration includes human resources management and development, financial management, procurement, strategic planning, information technology, and external communications.

Public Law 99–190, making continuing appropriations for 1986, provided $400 million from funds in the Energy Security Reserve in the Department of the Treasury for a new clean coal technology program in the Department of Energy. This program was authorized under the clean coal technology reserve proviso of Public Law 98–473 to subsidize the construction and operation of facilities to demonstrate the potential commercial feasibility of such technologies.

Remaining funds are transferred to the Fossil Energy Research and Development account to increase efficiency by placing the entire federal coal research effort under one umbrella, the President's Coal Research Initiative. These funds can continue to be used to meet previous commitments in the earlier program, with surplus funds available for ongoing projects or the newer initiative within the reorganized program.

The alternative fuels program was established in 1980 for the purpose of expediting the development and production of alternative fuels from coal.

When the Synthetic Fuels Corporation was declared to be operational in 1982, the uncommitted and unobligated funds remaining in the program were transferred to the Energy Security Reserve for use by the Synthetic Fuels Corporation, with the exception of the loan guarantee for the Great Plains gasification project, which remained under the jurisdiction of the Department of Energy. The Department exercised its authority to borrow from the Treasury to repay the Federal Financing Bank upon default of the borrower in 1985. This loan was repaid, along with accrued interest, by a supplemental appropriation in 1986. The Department acquired ownership of the Great Plains plant by foreclosure, which was completed on July 14, 1986, and continued operation of the plant without the expenditure of appropriated funds. On October 31, 1988, the Department completed the process of establishing an asset purchase agreement for the Great Plains Gasification Plant by settlement with Basin Electric Power Cooperative Association. Responsibilities for other related agreements—trust agreement, gas transportation agreement, gas purchase agreement—were also settled. Under the terms of the asset purchase agreement a check for $85 million was provided to the Government as an initial payment. These agreements were the subject of litigation between the Department, Dakota Gasification Company (DGC) and the four pipeline companies which purchased synthetic gas from the plant. Future revenue sharing payments to the Department are dependent upon natural gas prices.

The parties to litigation negotiated settlement agreements in principle in December 1993. Settlement agreements dated February 16, 1994, have been signed. These settlement agreements resolve all past disputes as well as restructure the Gas Purchase Agreements pricing provisions. The settlement agreements have received final Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approval. In a separate agreement with DOE, DGC agreed to pay DOE $25 million over the 7 year period of time DGC receives the demand payments from the pipeline companies.

Title XXXIV, Subtitle B of Public Law 104–106 required the Department to sell the government's interest in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills) pursuant to the terms of the Act. The sale occurred in February 1998, following a statutorily-required 31-day congressional review period.

Section 3415 of the Act required, among other things, that the Department make an offer of settlement based on the fair value of the State of California's longstanding claims to two parcels of land ("school lands") within the Reserve. Under the Act, nine percent of the net proceeds were reserved in contingent fund in the Treasury for payment to the State. In compliance with the Act and in order to remove any cloud over title which could diminish the sales value of the Reserve, the Department entered into a settlement agreement with the State on October 11, 1996. That agreement calls for payment to the State, subject to appropriations, of nine percent of the net proceeds of sale, payable over a seven-year period (without interest), commencing in 1999. Under the settlement agreement and provided that funds are appropriated, the first five installments are for $36 million each year, and the remaining balance is to be paid in two equal installments in years six and seven. In addition to the $36 million already appropriated for 2003, the budget requests $36 million in 2003 for the fifth installment payment.

ARCTIC NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE, ALTERNATIVE ENERGY

(Legislative proposal, subject to PAYGO)

The budget includes a proposal to use the Federal share of bonus bids from opening a small portion of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil and gas exploration to supplement the funding for renewal and related energy research. The budget assumes that 1.2 billion of the bonus bids that would come to the Federal Government in 2004 would be spent on alternative energy programs over a period of seven years.

On July 10, 2000 the President directed the Department of Energy to establish a 2-million barrel home heating oil component of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) in the Northeast. The intent was to create a buffer loose enough to allow commercial companies to compensate for interruptions in supply or severe weather, but not so large as to dissuade suppliers from responding to increasing prices as a sign that more supply is needed. Two million barrels of oil would give Northeast consumers adequate supplies for approximately 10 days, the time required for ships to carry heating oil from the Gulf of Mexico to New York harbor for distribution. The Department issued a solicitation to exchange crude oil from the SPR for two million barrels of distillate heating oil stocks and for storage facilities in the Northeast. Contracts were awarded on August 17, 2000, for two million barrels of heating oil and storage tank capacity in Connecticut and in New Jersey. In November 2000, Congress amended the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 2000 providing clear authority for the reserve. On March 6, 2001 Energy Secretary Abraham formally notified Congress that the Administration would establish the Reserve as a permanent part of America's energy readiness effort, separate from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. On August 6, 2001 the Secretary approved the relocation of 250,000 barrels of heating oil inventory from Connecticut to Rhode Island, giving the reserve a third location from which it could distribute fuel. The FY 2001 budget request for the Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve was financed with $8 million (new BA of $4 million and a transfer of $4 million from the SPR Petroleum Account). The request included continued leasing of commercial storage space, third party inspections, and development of an internet sales platform. For 2002, the Department requested $8 million in new budget authority that supports the continued operation of the reserve, solicitation support from Defense Energy Support Center, and lease of commercial storage space. The FY 2003 ($8 million) request continues operation of the reserve, solicitation support from the Defense Energy Support Center, and lease of commercial storage space.

Growing quantities of spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste have been accumulating at commercial nuclear reactor sites and storage facilities across the country for half a century. They come from nuclear plants generating commercial electric power, nuclear weapons production, the operation of naval reactors, and Federal research and development activities. At Congress's direction, DOE has investigated the suitability of a storage site at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, for over 20 years. Based on sound science and compelling national interests, the Secretary of Energy has informed the Governor of Nevada of his intent to recommend the Yucca Mountain site to the President for development as a geologic repository for the Nation's nuclear waste. Should the site be formally designated this year, current plans call for the repository to open in 2010. The budget provides sufficient funding for DOE to prepare a license application to meet that deadline. If the site is designated, the Administration also will seek additional funding to begin essential transportation-related activities and provide a long-term management and financing plan for the entire licensing and construction effort. The Administration is committed to ensuring the environmentally sound and safe disposal of the Nation's radioactive waste.

In 2001, actual interest earnings were $1,243 million, and they are estimated to decline to $688 million in 2002 and $742 million in 2003. The reason for the decline is that the decrease in market interest rates in 2001 significantly increased the market value of the zero-coupon bonds held by the fund, and the interest on these bonds is calculated as the change in market value. In 2002 and 2003, interest earnings are projected based on the effective yield method, instead of estimating the change in market value. We use the effective yield approach, because interest rates are impossible to predict accurately and because it is a simple method of projecting what will happen in the future "on average." The effective yield method is consistent with a small increase in market value.

The charter of the Department of Energy (DOE) isotope production and distribution program covers the production and sale of isotope products and related services to the user community utilizing Government-owned facilities. The isotopes produced by the Department are those that can be produced in existing DOE production and research facilities dedicated to the products required by the isotope production and distribution program. The isotopes are sold at their market value or at a price determined to be in the best interest of the government for use in medical diagnoses and therapy, medical and scientific research, and industrial applications.

The Alaska Power Administration (APA) was created in 1967 by the Secretary of the Interior to assume the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation in Alaska—the operations, maintenance, transmission, and power marketing of the two Federal hydroelectric projects (Eklutna and Snettisham), and the investigation of future water and power development programs.

The Alaska Power Administration Asset Sale and Termination Act (Public Law 104-58), signed into law on November 28, 1995, authorizes and directs the sale of all Alaska Power Administration assets and the subsequent termination of APA. The Eklutna project was sold on October 2, 1997, for a cash payment of $5,953,000. The Snettisham project was sold on August 18, 1998, for $81,966,177.

All remaining Alaska activities of APA, including the Juneau headquarters office, were terminated on September 30, 1998. Unobligated transition and termination balances were used to complete remaining close-out activities and report preparation in Washington, D.C. in 1999.

The Southeastern Power Administration (SEPA) markets power generated at Corps of Engineers hydroelectric generating plants in an eleven-State area of the Southeast. Deliveries are made by means of contracting for use of transmission facilities owned by others. There are 23 projects now in operation.

SEPA sells wholesale power primarily to publicly and cooperatively-owned electric distribution utilities. SEPA does not own or operate any transmission facilities. Its long-term contracts provide for periodic electric rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operation and capital invested in power, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements.

Program direction.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of transmission and power contracts, collection of revenues, development of wholesale power rates, the amortization of power investment, energy efficiency and competitiveness program, investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatch of power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administration of contractual operation requirements, and determination of methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources. Proprietary receipts deposited in the Treasury were $87 million for fiscal year 2001 and are estimated to be $165 million for 2002 and $98 million for 2003.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Between 2001 and 2004, the Southeastern Power Administration will phase-out Federal financing of purchase power and wheeling activities. Authority to spend power revenues to pay for purchase of power and wheeling activities will end after 2004. Industry restructuring and resulting competition now make it attractive for Southeastern's customers to shop for power and transmission services. Southeastern may continue to support customer bill crediting, net billing and other alternative financing arrangements for these activities.

Based on Administration policy, the Southeastern Power Administration will set rates consistent with current law to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and post-retirement health benefits for its employees.

Beginning in 2003, the Administration proposes that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' operation and maintenance costs in Southeastern's service area be funded from Southeastern receipts derived from the sale of power and related services.

Note.—The proprietary receipts estimate for 2003 assumes implementation of a proposal to fund power-related Corps of Engineers operation and maintenance expenses directly from Southeastern receipts.

A continuing fund of $50 thousand, maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power in the southeastern area, is available to defray expenses necessary to ensure continuity of service (16 U.S.C. 825s-2). The fund was activated during 2001 to finance power purchases associated with below normal hydropower generation due to drought.

The Southwestern Power Administration (Southwestern) operates in a six-State area as a marketing agent for hydroelectric power produced at Corps of Engineers dams. It also operates and maintains some 2,225 kilometers (1,380 miles) of high voltage transmission line, 23 substations and switching stations, and 46 VHF radio and microwave stations. Southwestern sells its power at wholesale primarily to publicly and cooperatively owned electric distribution utilities. Its power sales contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of operation and all capital invested in power, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements.

Southwestern also is responsible for scheduling and dispatching power, negotiating power sales contracts, and constructing facilities required to meet changing customer load requirements.

Program direction.—This activity provides for program costs related to the operation, maintenance, and support functions of the power system and includes salaries and benefits, travel, support services, rent, communications, and other related expenses.

Systems operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for engineering assessments of issues and alternatives that could adversely impact or optimize the operation of Southwestern's hydroelectric resources. Provision also is made for maintenance and improvement of the transmission system and related facilities to ensure reliable service, negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates and the amortization of the power investment. Actual proprietary receipts in the amount of $81 million were deposited in the Treasury in 2001. Proprietary receipts are estimated to be $91 million in 2002 and $39 million in 2003.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Between 2001 and 2004, the Southwestern Power Administration will phase-out Federal financing of purchase power and wheeling activities. Authority to spend power revenues to pay for purchase of power and wheeling activities will end after 2004. Industry restructuring and resulting competition now make it attractive for Southwestern's customers to shop for power and transmission services. Southwestern may continue to support customer bill crediting, net billing and other alternative financing arrangements for these activities.

Construction.—The construction program provides for transmission, substation, switching and control facility replacements and improvements to transmit power generated at Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric projects in the Southwest. This program is coordinated with the Corps of Engineers' construction program and customer requirements.

Reimbursable program.—This program involves services provided by Southwestern Power Administration to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Based on Administration policy the Southwestern Power Administration will set rates consistent with current law to recover the full cost of the civil service retirement system and post-retirement health benefits for its employees.

Beginning in 2003, the Administration proposes that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' operation and maintenance costs in Southwestern's service area be funded from Southwestern receipts derived from the sale of related services.

Note.—Proprietary receipts estimate for 2003 assumes implementation of proposal to find power-related corps of Engineers operation and maintenance expenses directly from Southwestern receipts.

The Western Area Power Administration (Western) markets electric power in 15 western States from federally-owned power plants operated primarily by the Bureau of Reclamation, Corps of Engineers, and the International Boundary and Water Commission. Western operates and maintains almost 17,000 circuit-miles of high-voltage transmission line, 264 substations/switchyards, and associated power system control, communication and electrical facilities for 15 separate power projects. Western also constructs additions and modifications to existing facilities.

In keeping with statutory requirements, Western's long-term power contracts allow for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operation, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investment in power facilities, with interest.

Power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. Receipts are deposited in the Reclamation fund, the Falcon and Amistad operating and maintenance fund, the general fund, the Colorado River dam fund, and the Colorado River basins power marketing fund.

Systems operation and maintenance.—The systems operation and maintenance activity provides essential electrical and communication equipment replacements, and upgrades, capitalized moveable equipment, technical services, and supplies and materials necessary for safe reliable operation and cost-effective maintenance of the power systems.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Between 2001 and 2004, the Western Area Power Administration will phase-out Federal financing of purchase power and wheeling activities. Authority to spend power revenues to pay for purchase power and wheeling activities will end after 2004. Industry restructuring and resulting competition now make it attractive for Western's customers to shop for power and transmission services. Western may continue to support customer bill crediting, net billing and other alternative financing arrangements for these activities.

System construction.—Western's construction and rehabilitation activity emphasizes replacement and upgrades of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable power delivery to its customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall operational efficiency. Western will continue to participate in joint construction projects to encourage more widespread transmission access.

Program direction.—This activity provides compensation and all related expenses for the workforce that operates and maintains Western's high voltage interconnected transmission system (systems operation and maintenance program), and those that plan design, and supervise the construction of replacements, upgrades and additions (system construction program) to the transmission facilities.

Utah mitigation and conservation.—This account is earmarked primarily for environmental mitigation expenditures covering fish and wildlife, and recreation resources impacted by the Central Utah Project and the Colorado River Storage Project in the State of Utah. The FY 2003 President's Budget proposes to end Western's mitigation funding of this activity. Western sells and transmits power from two projects in Utah and provides mitigation funding separately for these operations. Western does not transmit power from the Central Utah Project or from any other projects in Utah.

Reimbursable program.—This program involves services provided by Western to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Western will continue to spend directly out of the Colorado River dam fund for operations and maintenance activities associated with the Boulder Canyon Project. The Colorado River dam fund is a revolving fund operated by the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation. Authority for Western to obligate directly from the Colorado River dam fund comes from section 104(a) of the Hoover Power Plant Act of 1984.

Based on Administration policy, the Western Area Power Administration will set rates consistent with current law to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and post-retirement health benefits for its employees.

Beginning in FY 2003, the Administration proposes that financing of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' operation and maintenance costs in Western's service area, allocated to the power function for repayment, may be funded from Western receipts derived from the sale of power and related services.

Pursuant to section 423(c) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, Western Area Power Administration is requesting an appropriation from the Falcon and Amistad operating and maintenance fund, to defray operations, maintenance, and emergency (O,M&E) expenses for the hydroelectric facilities at Falcon and Amistad dams on the Rio Grande river. Most of these funds will be made available to the United States Section of the International Boundary and Water Commission through a reimbursable agreement. $200,000 in the fund is for an emergency reserve that will remain unobligated unless unanticipated expenses arise. Revenues in excess of O,M&E will be paid to the General Fund to repay the costs of replacements and the original investment with interest. Revenues resulting from the Falcon and Amistad dams power system operations are deposited to the Falcon and Amistad operating and maintenance fund.

Public enterprise funds:BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION FUND

Expenditures from the Bonneville Power Administration Fund, established pursuant to Public Law 93-454, are approved for official reception and representation expenses in an amount not to exceed $1,500.

During fiscal year [2002] 2003, no new direct loan obligations may be made. (Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act, 2002; additional authorizing legislation required.)

Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) is the Federal electric power marketing agency in the Pacific Northwest. BPA markets hydroelectric power from 21 multipurpose water resource projects of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and 9 projects of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, plus some energy from non-Federal generating projects in the region. These generating resources and BPA's transmission system, planned by the end of 2002 to consist of an estimated 15,000 circuit miles of high-voltage transmission lines and 324 substations, are operated as an integrated power system with operating and financial results combined and reported as the Federal Columbia River Power System (FCRPS). BPA is the largest power wholesaler in the Northwest and provides about forty-five percent of the region's electric energy supply and about three-fourths of the region's electric power transmission capacity.

BPA is responsible for meeting the net firm power requirements of its requesting customers through a variety of means, including energy conservation programs, acquisition of renewable and other resources, and power exchanges with utilities both in and outside the region.

BPA will finance its operations on the basis of the self-financing authority provided by Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act of 1974 (Transmission Act) (Public Law 93-454) and the borrowing authority provided by the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (Pacific Northwest Power Act) (Public Law 96-501) for energy conservation, renewable energy resources and capital fish facilities. Authority to borrow is available to the BPA on a permanent, indefinite basis. The amount of borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $3.75 billion. The FY 2003 budget includes a proposal to increase BPA borrowing authority by $700 million to finance planned infrastructure investments.

Operating expenses: Transmission services business line.—Provides funding from revenues for electric transmission research and development and program support of the capital investment program described below for transmission services. Provides for operating an estimated 15,000 miles of line and 324 substations, and for maintaining the facilities and equipment of the Bonneville transmission system in 2003.

Power business line.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective resources. These resources are needed to serve BPA's portion of the region's forecasted net electric load requirements. Also includes protection, mitigation and enhancement of fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. Provides for payment of the operation and maintenance (O&M) costs of the 30 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation hydro projects, and amortization on the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation capital investment in power generating facilities and irrigation assistance at Bureau facilities. Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation. Also provides for extending the benefits of low cost Federal power to the residential and small farm customers of investor-owned and publicly-owned utilities, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act and for activities of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council required by the Pacific Northwest Power Act.

Interest.—Provides for payments to the U.S. Treasury for interest on borrowings to finance BPA's transmission services, conservation, capital equipment, fish and wildlife, and associated projects capital programs under $3.75 billion borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act as amended by the Pacific Northwest Power Act and replenished by Public Law 98-50. In implementing the new borrowing authority, Bonneville will encourage private-sector or other non-federal financing or joint financing of transmission line expansions and additions, develop a five-year investment plan with the participation of the regional Infrastructure Technical Review Committee or its successor in the region, use funds only for authorized purposes, include the proposed use of the funds in its annual budget submissions, and select projects based on cost effectiveness criteria for achieving the objective. This category also includes interest on Corps of Engineers, BPA and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation appropriated debt.

Capital Investments: Transmission services business line.—Provides for the planning, design and construction of transmission lines, substation and control system additions, replacements, and enhancements to the FCRPS transmission system for a reliable, efficient and cost-effective regional transmission system. Provides for planning, design, and construction work to repair or replace existing transmission lines, substations, control systems, and general facilities of the FCRPS transmission system.

Power business line.—Provides for direct funding of additions, improvements, and replacements at existing Federal hydroelectric projects in the Northwest. Also provides for capital investments to implement environmental activities, and protect, mitigate, and enhance fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. Also provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation.

Capital equipment/Capitalized bond premium.—Provides for general purpose ADP equipment, office furniture and equipment, and software capital development in support of all BPA programs. Also provides for bond premiums incurred for refinancing of bonds.

Contingencies.—Although contingencies are not specifically funded, the need may arise to provide for purchase of power in low-water years; for repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies, including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; for unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments, including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims and relocations, or for payment of a retrospective premium adjustment in excess nuclear property insurance.

Financing.—The Transmission Act provides for the use by BPA of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of BPA. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and wheeling services. The Transmission Act also provides for authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. As amended by the Pacific Northwest Power Act and replenished by Public Law 98-50, it allows for $3.75 billion of borrowing to be outstanding at any time. The 2003 capital obligations are estimated to be $631 million. To the extent BPA capital borrowing authority is insufficient in 2003, BPA would use cash reserves generated by revenues from customers, if available, to finance some of these investments.

In 2001, BPA made payments to the Treasury of $588 million and also expects to make payments of $691 million in 2002 and $718 million in 2003. The 2003 payment will be distributed as follows: interest on bonds and appropriations ($471 million), and amortization ($247 million). BPA also received credits totaling $593 million applied against its Treasury payments to reflect amounts diverted to fish mitigation efforts in the Columbia and Snake River systems.

Direct loans.—During 2003, no new direct loan obligations may be made.

Operating results.—Total revenues are forecast at approximately $3.7 billion in 2003.

It should be noted that BPA's revenue forecasts are based on several critical assumptions about both the supply of and demand for Federal energy. During the operating year, deviation from the conditions assumed in a rate case may result in a variation in actual revenues of several hundred million dollars from the forecast.

Consistent with Administration policy, BPA will continue to fully recover, from the sale of electric power and transmission, funds sufficient to cover the full cost of Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits for their employees. The entire cost of BPA employees working under the Federal Employees Retirement System is already fully recovered in wholesale electric power and transmission rates.

Western's operation and maintenance (O&M) and power marketing expenses for the Colorado River storage project, the Colorado River basin project, the Seedskadee project, the Dolores project and the Fort Peck project are financed from power revenues.

Program direction.—Western operates and maintains approximately 4,000 miles of transmission lines, substations, switchyards, communications and control equipment associated with this Fund. The personnel compensation and related expenses for all these activities are quantified under Program Direction. Wholesale power is provided to utilities over interconnected high-voltage transmission systems. In keeping with statutory requirements, long-term power contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of O&M and all capital invested in power, with interest.

Colorado River storage project.—Western markets power and operates and maintains the power transmission facilities of the Colorado River Storage Project. Western also purchases electricity and pays wheeling fees to meet firm and nonfirm commitments.

Colorado River basin project.—The Colorado River Basin Project includes Western's expenses associated with the Central Arizona Project and the United States entitlement from the Navajo coal-fired powerplant. Revenues in excess of operating expenses are transferred to the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund.

Fort Peck project.—Revenue collected by Western is used to defray operation and maintenance and power marketing expenses associated with the power generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck Project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, to defray emergency expenses, and to ensure continuous operation. The Corps operates and maintains the power generating facilities, and Western operates and maintains the transmission system and performs power marketing functions.

Seedskadee project.—This activity includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from Fontenelle Dam's powerplant in southwestern Wyoming.

Dolores project.—This activity includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from powerplants at McPhee Dam and Towaoc Canal in southwestern Colorado.

PI represents the Department in interagency discussions on energy and related policy, and addresses all aspects of the U.S. energy sector including energy availability, reliability, and economic efficiency. PI also develops and leads the Department's bilateral and multilateral cooperation and investment and trade activities with other nations and international agencies. PI works closely with the various organizational elements of the Department and other relevant federal organizations and agencies and domestic institutions to coordinate and align national security and energy emergency activities.

Office of Management, Budget and Evaluation.—On July 26, 2001, the Secretary of Energy announced the reorganization of the former Offices of Management and Administration and the Chief Financial Officer into the Office of Management, Budget and Evaluation. Consolidating the functions of these two organizations will facilitate better integration of budgeting and more efficient management of resources. The Office of Management, Budget and Evaluation provides the Department with centralized direction and oversight of the full range of financial and planning activities, as well as management administration services contributing to the strategic objective: "Demonstrate efficient, effective, and economical management of the Department's human capital, financial resources, and physical assets." Financial activities include strategic planning and program evaluation; budget formulation, presentation and execution; oversight of DOE-wide internal controls; operation and maintenance of the Department's payroll and financial management systems; project management and contract oversight; and program evaluation. Management and administration activities include establishing Departmental human resource and procurement policies, providing human resource and procurement services to DOE headquarters staff, managing headquarters facilities, and providing an array of other administrative services critical to the proper functioning of the Department of Energy. The budget for the Office of Management, Budget and Evaluation also supports the activities of the Secretary of Energy Advisory Board (SEAB), an external advisory board chartered under the Federal Advisory Committee Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-436).

Chief Information Officer.—In FY 2003, the Office of the Chief Information Officer will be transferred from the Office of Security and Emergency Operations, in the Other Defense Activities account to the Departmental Administration account.

The Chief Information Officer program defines and implements policies to ensure efficient, economical and effective management, planning and acquisition of information resources in support of the Department's missions. The office manages and oversees all public affairs efforts, which includes public information, press and media services, the departmental newsletter DOE This Month, speech writing, special projects, editorial services, the Department's home page, and review of proposed publications and audiovisuals.

General Counsel.—This office is responsible for providing legal services to all energy activities except for those functions belonging exclusively to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which is served by its own General Counsel. Its responsibilities entail the provision of legal opinions, advice and services to administrative and program offices, and the conduct of both administrative and judicial litigation, as well as legal advice and support for enforcement activities. Further, the General Counsel appears before State and Federal agencies in defense of national energy policies and activities. The office is responsible for the coordination and clearance of proposed legislation affecting energy activities and testimony before Congress. The General Counsel is also responsible for ensuring consistency and legal sufficiency of all energy regulations; administering and monitoring standards of conduct requirements; and conducting the patents program.

Office of the Secretary.—Directs and leads management of the Department and provides policy guidance to line and staff organizations in the accomplishment of agency objectives.

Board of Contract Appeals.—Adjudicates disputes arising out of the Department's contracts and financial assistance programs and provides for neutral services and facilities for alternative dispute resolution.

The office is also responsible for initiatives which promote inclusion in all aspects of the Department's human capital and financial resources by increasing diversity in hiring, contracting, internships, mentoring, and other developmental programs; administering a departmental small and disadvantaged business program; serves as the Department's enforcer to ensure that the civil rights of employees are protected and complaints are processed within applicable regulatory timeframes; implements the Department's environmental justice strategy; and is responsible for the Office of Employee Concerns which manages the whistle blower reform initiative; employee surveys; and eliminating practices of racial profiling.

Cost of work for others.—This activity covers the cost of work performed under orders placed with the Department by non-DOE entities which are precluded by law from making advance payments and certain revenue programs. Reimbursement for these costs is made through deposits of offsetting collections to this account.

Corporate management information program (CMIP).—This initiative began in 1998 and supports the objectives of the National Performance Review to provide better delivery of information and more efficient support to DOE's customers through modernized corporate information systems using more cost effective and current information technology. Funding in the amount of $53.0 million has been provided from 1999 through 2002 to support modernization of corporate administrative systems at DOE.

Current CMIP investment projects support the following initiatives: Business Management Information Systems; Architecture and Planning; and Infrastructure. CMIP will establish common business solutions, supporting data, and associated software applications consistent with the Departmental Information Architecture to meet business needs, and legislative and regulatory mandates. In FY 2002, the CMIP project was funded by the Office of Security and Emergency Operations (SO), and Departmental Administration for $15 million. In FY 2003, the Chief Information Officer will provide for the continued development and on-going maintenance of this important modernization investment initiative.

The Vaccine improvement program was established pursuant to Public Law 99-660 and Public Law 100-203, and serves as a source of funds to pay claims for compensation for vaccine related injury or death. Payment of claims associated with vaccine related injury or death occurring before October 1, 1988 are financed from the General Fund and are reflected in this account. Given sufficient carry-over funds from prior years' appropriations to pay for the balance of the pre-1988 backlog of claims yet to be adjudicated, no appropriation is requested in 2003 to cover payment of pre-1988 claims. Payment of claims associated with vaccine related injury or death occurring after October 1, 1988 are reflected in the Vaccine improvement trust fund account.

Title VII, part C of the Public Health Service Act established a revolving fund from which health professions schools could borrow in order to provide loans to their students.

Public Law 89-751, the Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966, amended the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Federal Government to pay the difference between the interest paid by students to the schools and the interest payable by the schools to the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Treasury.

Title VI and subsequently title XVI of the Public Health Service Act established a loan and loan guarantee fund for medical facilities with a maximum amount allowable for the Government's liability. Direct loans were made available for public facilities and guaranteed loans for private, nonprofit facilities. Funds under this authority were established in the amount of $50 million for use in fulfilling guarantees in event of default, $30 million as a revolving fund for direct loans and an amount for interest subsidy payments on guaranteed loans. Unobligated balances will be used to pay defaults and interest subsidy payments.

Appropriations in this Act to the Indian Health Service shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the maximum rate payable for senior-level positions under 5 U.S.C. 5376; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; purchase of medical equipment; purchase of reprints; purchase, renovation and erection of modular buildings and renovation of existing facilities; payments for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and for uniforms or allowances [therefore] therefor as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5901-5902; and for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities.

In accordance with the provisions of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, non-Indian patients may be extended health care at all tribally administered or Indian Health Service facilities, subject to charges, and the proceeds along with funds recovered under the Federal Medical Care Recovery Act (42 U.S.C. 2651-2653) shall be credited to the account of the facility providing the service and shall be available without fiscal year limitation. Notwithstanding any other law or regulation, funds transferred from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Indian Health Service shall be administered under Public Law 86-121 (the Indian Sanitation Facilities Act) and Public Law 93-638, as amended.

Funds appropriated to the Indian Health Service in this Act, except those used for administrative and program direction purposes, shall not be subject to limitations directed at curtailing Federal travel and transportation.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds previously or herein made available to a tribe or tribal organization through a contract, grant, or agreement authorized by title I or title III of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (25 U.S.C. 450), may be deobligated and reobligated to a self-determination contract under title I, or a self-governance agreement under title III of such Act and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation.

None of the funds made available to the Indian Health Service in this Act shall be used to implement the final rule published in the Federal Register on September 16, 1987, by the Department of Health and Human Services, relating to the eligibility for the health care services of the Indian Health Service until the Indian Health Service has submitted a budget request reflecting the increased costs associated with the proposed final rule, and such request has been included in an appropriations Act and enacted into law.

[Funds made available in this Act are to be apportioned to the Indian Health Service as appropriated in this Act, and accounted for in the appropriation structure set forth in this Act.]

With respect to functions transferred by the Indian Health Service to tribes or tribal organizations, the Indian Health Service is authorized to provide goods and services to those entities, on a reimbursable basis, including payment in advance with subsequent adjustment. The reimbursements received therefrom, along with the funds received from those entities pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination Act, may be credited to the same or subsequent appropriation account which provided the funding. Such amounts shall remain available until expended.

Reimbursements for training, technical assistance, or services provided by the Indian Health Service will contain total costs, including direct, administrative, and overhead associated with the provision of goods, services, or technical assistance.

The appropriation structure for the Indian Health Service may not be altered without advance [approval of] notice submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002.)

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) supports a number of categorical programs designed to improve the health and safety of all Americans. These programs include immunization, HIV prevention, chronic disease prevention and health promotion, infectious disease control, occupational safety and health, injury prevention and control, environmental health, and programs that reduce the occurrence of birth defects and developmental disabilities. CDC also supports bioterrorism and emergency response activities. Funding for these activities is included in the Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund provided to CDC from the Office of the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

In 2002, CDC modified and consolidated several budget categories to simplify its budget, and move towards budgeting its activities by organization. The new budget categories represent total costs of a program, including both administrative costs and CDC's centralized services. The comparable table above displays funding levels in 2001, 2002, and 2003 using the new categories as if they were implemented in 2001.

The 2003 Budget also creates a new HHS Health Facilities Construction and Management Fund within the Office of the Secretary that will fund facilities construction for CDC and the National Institutes of Health centrally rather than in the individual agency accounts. Through this mechanism, the Department will prioritize and fund construction projects competitively across the two agencies.

ATSDR is financed through the EPA Superfund.

NIH is working to meet the management challenges that can arise when an agency receives a substantial infusion of resources over a short period of time. NIH is in the process of identifying strategies and policies that would be implemented in 2003 and beyond to maximize budgetary and management flexibility in the future. Such strategies could include funding the total costs of an increasing number of new grants in the grant's first year and supporting some one-time activities such as high-priority construction and renovation projects.

This program provides Federal support for treatment and prevention in the areas of alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health. The Administration has proposed to retain the language of the HHS General Provisions dealing with the penalty in Sec. 1926 of the Public Health Service Act, known as the Synar Amendment. The only penalty allowed under the current law is disproportionately severe, and could penalize those needing substance abuse services. The Administration looks forward to working with Congress to achieve a permanent statutory change that would establish a more fair and sustainable penalty structure.

This schedule reflects the Administration's Medicaid proposals, as well as the Administration's Transitional Medicare Low-Income Drug Assistance program. This program would provide comprehensive drug coverage for low-income Medicare beneficiaries. The budget also proposes to extend the subsidy of Medicare Part B premiums for certain qualified individuals. This schedule also reflects the Medicaid effects of the Administration's Supplemental Security Income and child support enforcement proposals.

As part of the Administration's continuing effort to identify and eliminate barriers to community living for people with disabilities, the Administration is proposing new demonstrations to integrate people with disabilities into society. These proposals include a demonstration that will finance home- and community-based alternatives for children in psychiatric residential treatment facilities and two new demonstrations that will finance respite care services for adults, and respite care services for children with substantial disabilities.

Administration on Aging.—The proposed level will provide continued funding for core formula grant programs that provide nutrition, supportive services and caregiver support services through the aging network. AoA programs are part of a comprehensive system of support for older people and their families.

In order to improve program management, the budget proposes to merge funding from the smaller Department of Agriculture nutrition program for the elderly with AOA's nutrition programs. Although both Departments currently fund these services, HHS is the lead agency and has greater interaction with service providers. This merger will improve program oversight and streamline reporting requirements.

Departmental management (DM) is a consolidated display of accounts that fund activities which provide leadership, policy, legal, and administrative guidance to HHS components; carry out the Department's civil rights and nondiscrimination enforcement programs; and support research to develop policy initiatives and improve existing HHS programs. DM also includes the activities of the Office of Public Health and Science, including adolescent family life, disease prevention and health promotion, physical fitness and sports, minority health, research integrity, women's health, emergency preparedness, as well as programs to counter bioterrorist threats.

The 2003 Budget creates a new HHS Health Facilities Construction and Management Fund within the Office of the Secretary. Through this mechanism, the Department will prioritize and fund health facility construction projects competitively across the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. In addition, HHS will establish a process to include the Indian Health Service (IHS) and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) facility projects in its Department-wide priority-setting process, with the goal of including funding for IHS and FDA facilities in this Fund in the 2004 Budget.

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the budget estimates and program justifications for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). HUD's core mission is to promote adequate and affordable housing, economic opportunity and a suitable living environment free from discrimination. The 2003 Budget for HUD reflects the continuation of a multi-year comprehensive reform effort that will enhance the effectiveness of programs, reduce high unobligated and obligated balances, and return HUD to its core mission. Congress has provided significant increases in several HUD programs over the past three years.

The Department continues to emphasize expanding homeownership opportunities for all. Homeownership is addressed through FHA program efforts, recent public housing homeownership opportunities, HOPE VI, and expanded housing counseling. In addition, the HOME Investment Partnerships Program is increased by $238 million. This increase includes a four-fold increase for the down payment initiative. The 2003 budget increases the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (SHOP) three-fold in an effort to accelerate homeownership by lower-income families.

The 2003 budget proposes to allow housing authorities to use up to $120 million from the Capital Fund and up to $130 million from the Operating Fund for a new initiative to facilitate the financing of capital improvements and to encourage development-based financial management. This initiative will improve physical conditions for public housing residents by enabling housing authorities to attract private capital to address the existing $20 billion backlog in capital housing improvement needs. It will also put these developments on a sound management and financial footing by focusing on property-based planning and management. These objectives would be achieved by authorizing HUD to approve, on a property-by-property basis, housing authority requests to convert public housing developments or portions of developments to project-based voucher assistance. Converting to project-based vouchers also would relieve housing authorities from many of the complex rules governing the public housing programs, and would give residents of converted developments additional housing choices, since they could choose to move with their vouchers after one year. This initiative will make it possible for housing authorities to secure private financing to rehabilitate their aging properties by using each property to secure private loans for capital improvements. The capital needs of a substantial part of the public housing stock may be addressed through private financing, without significant annual subsidy increases. The initial year of any contract for project-based assistance under this proposal may be funded with amounts appropriated for the public housing Capital Fund or Operating Fund or from other amounts appropriated for this purpose. Any renewal of such contracts would be funded in the future with amounts appropriated for Section 8 vouchers.

The 2003 budget includes 34,000 incremental vouchers. In addition, this Administration reaffirms the long-held commitment to renew all expiring Section 8 contracts, to protect residents from displacement by substantially increasing funding for Section 8 renewals, to provide Section 8 tenant-based assistance for displaced families, and for the replacement of affordable housing due to opt-outs from the project-based Section 8 program. The Department will also continue to fully renew contracts to assist rental of low-income elderly units in the Housing for the Elderly Program (under Section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959).

This year HUD commits itself to addressing the problem of chronic homelessness. The Department is proposing legislative language that would consolidate its homeless assistance programs into a single grant program. This reform will improve service delivery and further support the announced goal of ending chronic homelessness in ten years.

As part of the 2003 budget, the Administration is transferring administration of the Emergency Food and Shelter Program from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), to HUD. This transfer will allow for better coordination of homeless assistance.

Funding in the 2003 budget for the Fair Housing Assistance and Fair Housing Initiatives programs (FHAP and FHIP) will strengthen the ability of public and private fair housing groups, and partnerships between them, to enforce the laws protecting all Americans against illegal housing discrimination. Funds dedicated in past budgets to completing a national survey of housing discrimination will be redirected in 2003 to both FHIP and FHAP, with emphasis on increasing enforcement efforts and addressing accessibility issues.

The Department proposes a $16 million initiative to improve housing and economic conditions in the Colonias area, which is largely funded by shifting resources from wealthier communities within the Community Development Block Grants program (CDBG).

HUD is one of five Departments that are leading the Federal Government in tapping the potential of faith-based and community organizations to improve housing and help develop communities.

The 2003 budget includes a 20 percent increase in lead hazard reduction grants to continue the ten-year program to eradicate lead hazards in housing.

In order to ensure the effective implementation of its programs, the Department's Office of Policy Development and Research (PD&R) will be provided with funds necessary to ensure timely provision of data, provide research and analysis of national housing and economic conditions, and measure the performance of programs, consistent with the Government Performance and Results Act of 1994.

The Department will continue the management reform effort initiated in 2001 and undertake further efforts in 2003 to refocus HUD on its core mission and key programs as part of a continuing series of planned reforms to improve program performance.

Contract Renewals. Contract renewals provide funding to renew expiring Section 8 rental assistance contracts covering certificates, vouchers, and moderate rehabilitation (renewed as vouchers), Loan Management, New Construction/Substantial Rehabilitation, Property Disposition, and Preservation, and contracts authorized under section 441 of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act. It also includes $52 million to renew funding for Family self-sufficiency coordinators.

Incremental Rental Assistance—For 2003, the Department is requesting approximately 34,000 vouchers and $204 million in budget authority.

These rental vouchers will address many local needs, including assistance to needy families some of which could be transitioning out of public assistance, homeless, affected by an “elderly-only” designation in public housing, or by the recent Olmstead decision requiring community living services for disabled families. The rental vouchers may also be used for downpayment assistance in those areas that choose to offer this assistance.

Public and Indian Housing

Tenant Protection Vouchers. The Housing Certificate fund supports families living in public and assisted housing units affected by changes in the status of the units. Income-eligible families who are affected by the demolition, disposition, revitalization or other capital improvement through no fault of their own, receive relocation/replacement vouchers through the Housing Certificate Fund.

Housing

Tenant Protection Set-Asides. The Housing Certificate Fund also serves a role in supporting families in FHA-insured, privately owned assisted housing projects affected by changes in project status. It is intended that income-eligible families who, through no fault of their own, are affected by HUD’s management of the multifamily inventory or owners’ decision to prepay their mortgage or opt-out of project-based section 8 contracts, be aided through the Housing Certificate Fund.

Verifying the right person gets the right benefit.—HUD research has determined that there is a significant error rate in calculating subsidies. HUD has established a goal of a 50 percent reduction in the frequency of subsidy calculation and processing errors by 2005.

Since the sources and cause of subsidy payment errors are many and often interrelated, a comprehensive corrective action plan is needed. HUD’s prior corrective action focus has been on developing and implementing a large scale computer matching program with IRS and SSA data bases to better address the unreported tenant income issue. While this and other improvement initiatives are ongoing, a multi-organizational HUD Working Group has been tasked with developing viable options for a more comprehensive corrective action plan to be considered by the new administration. The Working Group is considering options for: (1) Program simplification; (2) Structured forms, training, and automated tools needed to determine rent correctly; (3) Tenant education; (4) Increased use of automated tenant income data sources at the local and national level; (5) Improves targeting of on-site management and occupancy reviews based on risk indicators; (6) Intermediary performance incentives and sanctions; (7) Improved automated billing verifications; and (8) An on-going quality control program.

The Moving-to-Work demonstration provides unprecedented autonomy and flexibility to a select group of high-performing public housing authorities (PHAs) in order to assess the potential impacts of Federal deregulation on resident households, housing developments, and local housing programs. Through waivers of requirements of the 1937 Housing Act, as amended, and related Federal regulations, participating PHAs can combine Federal funding allocated for public housing operating subsidy, capital subsidy, and Section 8 certificates and vouchers into a flexible housing assistance fund.

PHAs may provide incentives to families that work, are seeking work, or are preparing for work, PHAs are also allowed to change administrative procedures and management policies so they can reallocate resources to better address local housing needs and priorities. No additional funding is being requested for this demonstration.

The Public Housing Capital Fund, a comprehensive formula-driven program based on need, is designed to respond to the capital and management improvement requirements of public housing. The fund is a consolidation of the following programs: public housing modernization; public housing development; Major Reconstruction of Obsolete Public Housing Projects (MROP); and public housing amendments.

Of the $2.426 billion requested for the Public Housing Capital Fund, approximately $2.2 billion is provided to cover annual accrual needs. Up to $120 million may be used for a new initiative that has the promise to address the public housing capital backlog by enabling housing authorities to privately finance their properties. Other uses include up to $55 million to provide supportive services to public housing residents under the Resident Opportunities and Supportive Services (ROSS) program, up to $75 million for emergencies or disasters, up to $54 million for technical assistance, up to $19 million for the Working Capital Fund, and up to $15 million for Neighborhood Networks.

The budget provides a means by which Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) can privately finance the capital needs of properties that can be underwritten to market standards. A loan loss reserve would be established as a credit enhancement to protect lenders in the case of default. Properties recapitalized under this new financing model would be converted to project-based vouchers. Conversion would allow capital needs to be financed on a property basis as is done in the private sector, and the project-based voucher program gives additional choice and mobility to residents in the selection of their housing. In addition, such conversion will facilitate PHA management and finance on a property-by-property basis and thus increase accountability for efficient management, and will relate ongoing Federal subsidies more closely to the rental market. Many housing authorities should be able to take advantage of this voluntary initiative to improve the living conditions of their residents and their own management.

Legislation is being proposed to accompany this proposal. It provides changes in the applicability of the project-based voucher so that the program is workable for current public housing sites; allows for the creation of a loan loss reserve; authorizes the use of up-front capital contributions where necessary (for which up to $50 million in HOPE VI grants would be made available in FY 2003); and provides other necessary details.

Operating subsidies are provided to public housing authorities (PHAs) to assist in funding the operation and maintenance expenses of public housing units in accordance with Section 9(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. It is anticipated that $2.4 billion provides 100 percent of subsidy requirements in 2003.

The following tables display the sources of housing authorities' expected revenue and expenditures by category for 2003. The distribution is based on historical data reported by housing authorities to HUD on the Statement of Operating Receipts and Expenditures.

Table 1. Sources of Housing Authorities' Operating Revenue (in millions of dollars)

Operating Subsidies.—Represent HUD's contributions to a housing authority's operating budget. Under the current formula-based approach, HUD sets a formula-determined allowable expense level (AEL) for each PHA and separately computes utility and audit costs. The PHA's dwelling rental income is also projected and the subsidy is the difference between the projected AEL, utility, and audit expenses and projected dwelling rental income.

Dwelling Rental.—Income derived from tenants' rents.

Investment Income.—Income from interest earned on general fund investments.

Other Income.—Includes income from other sources such as renting rooftop space for signs or broadcasting and from operating services for tenants, such as laundromats or day care centers.

Table 2. Housing Authorities' Operating Expenditures (in millions of dollars)

Category	Annual expenditures	Percent of total
Utilities	1,465	22%

Total, Operating Expenses	6,660	100%

Utilities.—Includes water, sewer, electricity, gas, and fuel.

Administration.—Includes administrative salaries, legal expenses, staff training, travel, accounting fees, auditing fees, sundry, and outside management costs.

General Operating Expenses.—Includes insurance, payments made to local governments in lieu of taxes, terminal leave payments, employees benefit contributions, collection losses, interest on administrative and sundry notes, and other general expenses.

Ordinary Maintenance and Operations.—Consists of expenses for labor, materials, contracts and garbage fees associated with the day-to-day operation of the public housing authority.

Tenant Services.—Cover salaries, recreation, publication, contract costs, training, and other expenses.

Protective Services.—Includes expenses for labor, materials, and contract costs.

Capital Expenditures.—Includes extraordinary maintenance, casualty losses, and property betterments (e.g. roofs and furnaces).

Operating reserves.—Provides working capital funds and is a reserve for emergencies.

The Public Housing Drug Elimination Grants program was terminated in the 2002 Budget. The program was found to have limited impact; current regulatory tools, such as eviction, are effective in reducing drug-related crime in public housing; and finally, fighting crime and drugs is not directly related to HUD's core mission—it is the mission of federal law enforcement and other agencies whose programs help combat illegal drugs and crime in public housing communities. PHAs can supplement other public housing security efforts using operating funds if they choose.

Title I of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act (NAHASDA) of 1996 (P.L. 104-330) authorized the Native American Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds on a formula basis to Indian tribes and their tribally designated housing entities to help them address housing needs within their communities.

The Native American Housing Block Grant program includes a guaranteed loan provision (Title VI). A guarantee level of $17 million is proposed for this loan guarantee program for 2003. The subsidy rate for this program is set at 11.07 percent with a federal guarantee of 80 percent. A primary goal of the Title VI program is to encourage private lenders to provide financing in Indian country. Therefore, the program provides for the federal guarantee of notes or other obligations issued by Indian tribes or tribally designated housing entities for the purpose of financing affordable housing activities described in section 202 of the Act.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1998 and beyond (including modifications of guarantees that resulted from obligations in any given year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Hawaiian Homelands Homeownership Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-568) amended the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 by adding Title VIII, which authorized the Native Hawaiian Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds to assist and promote affordable housing activities to develop, maintain and operate affordable housing for eligible low-income Native Hawaiian families.

It authorizes annual grants to the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands (DHHL) for housing and housing-related assistance, pursuant to an annual housing plan, within the area in which DHHL is authorized to provide that assistance. DHHL uses performance measures and benchmarks that are consistent with the national goals of the program, but it can base these measures on the needs and priorities that it establishes in its five- and one-year housing plans.

2299 Guaranteed amount of guaranteed loans outstanding, end of year	2,464	2,186	1,908

The Low-Rent Public Housing Loan Fund provides direct Federal loans to fund remaining Public Housing Agency and Indian Housing Authority construction, acquisition, and modernization activities reserved under the Annual Contributions appropriation through 1986. These loans are made by borrowing from the Treasury. Under legislation enacted during 1986 (Public Law 99-272), amounts borrowed from the Treasury are forgiven at the end of each fiscal year and the loans to PHAs/IHAs are forgiven as construction, acquisition, and modernization activities are completed. Under the provisions of this legislation, $25 million borrowed from the Treasury was forgiven in 2001, an estimated $40 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 2002, and an estimated $40 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 2003.

Since 1987, new reservations of capital funds for construction, acquisition, and modernization activities have been provided directly from the Public Housing Capital Fund appropriations.

The Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS program provides States and localities with resources and incentives to devise long-term comprehensive strategies for meeting the housing needs of persons with HIV/AIDS and their families.

Up to $2 million is used for technical assistance to grantees and project sponsors to strengthen management of programs and ensure responsiveness in meeting client needs. States and metropolitan areas receive 90 percent of the remaining funds by formula based on the number of cases of AIDS and, for metropolitan areas, the incidence of AIDS in that area. The final 10 percent is awarded competitively to States, local governments, and private nonprofit entities, including faith-based organizations, for projects of national significance with priority for renewal of the projects providing permanent supportive housing. Awards are also made to States and local governments for projects in jurisdictions which do not qualify for a formula allocation. The requested funding for 2003 will support an additional 3,800 households, for a total of approximately 55,900 housing units for persons with HIV/AIDS and their families.

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to make grants to units of general local government under the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program and States to fund local community development programs.

The 2003 Budget allocates $72.5 million to Indian tribes as authorized by Section 106(a)(1) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Since its inception, funds made available to Native American communities have supported a wide variety of community development activities, predominantly, but not exclusively, community facilities, infrastructure and buildings to help meet the basic needs of low and moderate income community members. Since the vast majority of eligible tribes and Alaska Native Villages have non-existent tax bases, this program has helped to finance those public facilities needed to maintain or establish community viability. While it has had a significant impact on many Native American communities throughout the Nation, basic community development needs throughout Indian Country remain substantial. Up to $1,500,000 is for the continuing operation of the Native American Economic Development Access Center. Unemployment on Indian reservations and other Indian areas is extremely high. This Federal interagency project provides economic development information to Indian and non-Indian individuals and enterprises.

Seventy percent of CDBG formula funds are allocated to metropolitan cities and urban counties that receive their grants using the higher of two objective formulas. States and small cities receive 30 percent of the formula funds. The budget proposes to reduce by fifty percent the formula funds which would otherwise be available for entitlement communities that have a per capita income two or more times the national average. These savings allow for the funding of a $16 million Colonias Gateway Initiative which will help direct considerable assistance to very low income communities. The proposed level of funding for CDBG and the Section 108 Loan Guarantee Program will support an estimated 122,987 and 15,000 jobs, respectively. These funds will also help to rehabilitate 180,260 housing units.

Section 107 Grants include funding for technical assistance to support local and State grantees, management information systems support, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Hispanic serving Institutions, the Community Development Work Study, Community Outreach Partnership Centers (COPC), Tribal Colleges and Universities and Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian Serving Institutions programs. There is also a legislative proposal to move the funding for the Insular areas out of Section 107 and into Section 106, the Formula program.

As authorized by Section 4 of the HUD Demonstration Act of 1993, the National Community Development Initiative (NCDI) helps build capacity of community-based development corporations and housing development organizations, and assist such corporations and organizations to carry out community development and affordable housing activities. The 2003 Budget includes $25 million for this program. In addition, $4.5 million is set aside for Habitat for Humanity capacity building programs. Both programs will target their efforts to increasing minority homeownership.

The Youthbuild program provides resources to educate, train and supply stipends for economically disadvantaged young adults through their participation in the construction and rehabilitation of housing for low-income and homeless families and individuals. The program expands the supply of affordable housing and, at the same time, enables high school drop-outs to obtain the education and employment skills necessary to achieve self-sufficiency. The 2003 request for $65 million will provide more than 3,774 young people with skills they need to obtain jobs. Funding of $65 million is provided for the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (Shop) which is targeted at very low-income populations. The three-fold increase reflects the growing capacity of self-help housing organizations to expand upon recent successes in making home ownership a viable option. In addition, $3 million is provided for the Housing Assistance Council as well as $2.2 million for the Native American Indian Housing Council to meet unserved rural and Native American housing needs.

The 2003 Budget also includes $3 million in competitive grants to Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCU) to provide resources to build, expand, renovate and equip facilities. In addition, $2.4 million is provided to assist Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian Serving institutions.

The Budget also provides $16 million for the Colonias Gateway Initiative to enhance the availability of affordable housing, economic opportunity, and infrastructure in the Colonias by establishing a non-profit entity with the mission of improving the coordination of public, private, and community-based resources in the Colonias. Colonias are rural communities within 150 miles of the U.S. Mexican border that lack adequate infrastructure and other basic services.

The goal of the Empowerment Zone (EZ) initiative is to revitalize city neighborhoods by attracting business development and providing employment opportunities to residents of empowerment zones. Empowerment Zone principles include a strategic vision for change, a community-based partnership, providing economic opportunity and sustainable community development.

The VA HUD Appropriations Act of 2001 (P.L. 106-377 and P.L. 106-554) provided $185 million for Round II Urban Empowerment Zones. The VA HUD Appropriations Act of 2002 (P.L. 107-73) provided $45 million for Round II Urban Empowerment Zones that will bring the total funding for Round II urban EZs through 2002 to $330 million. No new funding is proposed for EZ's in FY 2003.

Funding provides for a broad range of activities aimed at assisting residents, businesses and organizations in urban EZs, including: community policing; health care; neighborhood development; brownfields clean-up and redevelopment; support for financing of capital projects; education; work force preparation and job creation efforts linked to welfare reform; leveraging private sector resources, repayment of debt financing by municipal bonds; financing of projects in conjunction with the Section 108 loan guarantee program and other economic development projects; support for project-based rental assistance; and, financing other housing activities.

EZs are helping to stimulate billions of dollars in private investment, reviving inner city neighborhoods and supporting jobs, and helping families move from welfare to work.

The Community Renewal and Tax Relief Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-554) authorized the designation of a third round of 7 urban and 2 rural empowerment zones. The Community Renewal and Tax Relief Act of 2000 also authorized the creation of a Renewal Communities program to be administered by HUD that includes 40 competitively selected communities.

The Brownfields Redevelopment initiative provides competitive economic development grants, which may be done in conjunction with Section 108 loan guarantees, for qualified brownfield projects. Previously Brownfields grants had to be used with section 108 loan guarantees. Eligible communities are invited to submit proposals to return contaminated sites to productive and employment-generating uses, with an emphasis on creating substantial numbers of jobs for lower-income people in physically and economically distressed neighborhoods.

Grants are made in accordance with section 108(q) selection criteria and such other criteria deemed appropriate for brownfield projects, including the extent to which an applicant is currently operating a brownfields program and is working with appropriate environmental regulatory agencies.

The Brownfields Redevelopment initiative has received annual appropriations of $25 million since its inception in 1998. The 2003 request of $25 million will enable communities to reclaim and redevelop approximately 19 Brownfield sites.

Act, as amended; the supportive housing program as authorized under subtitle C of title IV of such Act; the section 8 moderate rehabilitation single room occupancy program as authorized under the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, to assist homeless individuals pursuant to section 441 of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act; and the shelter plus care program as authorized under subtitle F of title IV of such Act, [$1,122,525,000] $1,129,500,000, to remain available until September 30, [2004] 2005: Provided, That not less than 30 percent of funds made available, excluding amounts provided for renewals under the shelter plus care program, shall be used for permanent housing: Provided further, That all funds awarded for services shall be matched by 25 percent in funding by each grantee: Provided further, That the Secretary shall renew on an annual basis expiring contracts or amendments to contracts funded under the shelter plus care program if the program is determined to be needed under the applicable continuum of care and meets appropriate program requirements and financial standards, as determined by the Secretary: Provided further, That all awards of assistance under this heading shall be required to coordinate and integrate homeless programs with other mainstream health, social services, and employment programs for which homeless populations may be eligible, including Medicaid, State Children's Health Insurance Program, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Food Stamps, and services funding through the Mental Health and Substance Abuse Block Grant, Workforce Investment Act, and the Welfare-to-Work grant program: Provided further, That [$2,000,000] $11,000,000 of the funds appropriated under this heading shall be available for the national homeless data analysis project: Provided further, That $6,600,000 of the funds appropriated under this heading shall be available for technical assistance: Provided further, That no less than [$5,600,000] $1,500,000 of the funds appropriated under this heading shall be transferred to the Working Capital Fund: for the development of and modifications to information technology systems which serve activities under "Community Planning and Development": Provided further, That [$500,000] $1,000,000 shall be made available to the Interagency Council on the Homeless for administrative needs. (Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002.)

The Homeless Assistance Grants program funds the Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, Emergency Shelter Grants, and Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Single Room Occupancy programs. These funds will enable localities to continue to shape and implement comprehensive, flexible, coordinated approaches to solving rather than institutionalizing homelessness. In fact, in recent years, many communities have made great strides in developing holistic approaches to solving homelessness. Requested funding would be available for a wide range of activities to assist homeless persons and prevent future homelessness and will support the Department's effort to end chronic homelessness in 10 years. The Administration will propose legislation to combine HUD's three competitive programs, Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, and Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Single Room Occupancy into a single program with enough flexibility to meet community needs. The Department is also continuing to pursue expanded interagency efforts to meet the needs of the homeless. The 2003 request will fund over 50,000 new and renewal transitional and permanent beds, all linked to supportive services.

Funding is also requested for technical assistance to provide needed assistance to grantees to resolve problems that hinder successful project completion and implementation, and for management information systems support, including the continuing operation of tracking systems required by House Report 105-610.

Legislation will be submitted to transfer this program from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to HUD. This transfer reduces the number of Federal agencies administering homeless programs—for HUD, ending chronic homelessness is part of its core mission. The Emergency Food and Shelter program distributes funds rapidly and equitably to local jurisdictions to supplement community efforts to provide emergency food and shelter services. Funds will be obligated to a National Board, which will be chaired by HUD and whose non-profit partners (American Red Cross, The Salvation Army, United Way of America, and others) provide professional expertise. This National Board then works through similarly composed local boards to advertise the availability of funds, assess community needs, and make allocation choices. These community-based Local Boards also assure coordination of effort and development of systems to

The 2002 VA-HUD and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act (P.L. 107-73) provided $25 million to the Rural Housing and Economic Development program. This program is located in the Office of Community Planning and Development and is used to encourage new and innovative approaches to serving the housing and economic development needs of the nation's rural communities. The 2003 Budget proposes no new funding for this program.

As authorized by section 4 of the HUD Demonstration Act of 1993, this program provides funding to the National Community Development Initiative to build the capacity of community-based development corporations and housing development organizations and to assist such corporations and organizations to carry out community development and affordable housing activities. Funding for this program was provided under the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing account in 1996. Public Law 105-18 amended authorizing legislation to include additional eligible recipients and provided funding for this program through a transfer from the Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere Grants account in 1997. Funding of $28 million was provided for this program in 2001 in Public Law 106-377 as a set-aside within the CDBG program. P.L. 107-73 provided $29 million for this program in 2002. $29.5 million is being requested in 2003, again as a set-aside within CDBG.

Shelter Plus Care provides rental assistance that, when combined with social services, supplies supportive housing for homeless people with disabilities and their families. Homeless people with disabilities often need more than shelter to live independently, such as medical care or other social services. Shelter Plus Care provides for a variety of housing choices such as group homes or individual units, coupled with a range of supportive services (which are funded by other sources). Grantees must match the rental assistance with supportive services that are at least equal in value to the amount of HUD's rental assistance. The Shelter Plus Care renewal funding renews contracts on a one-year basis and provides funding to amend contracts that were previously extended but which will run out of funding. The FY 2002 VA HUD Appropriations Act (P.L. 107-73) provided funding for Shelter Plus Care in the Homeless Assistance Grants account. Amounts provided in FY 2002 are sufficient to cover Shelter Plus Care Renewals in 2003. In the future, Shelter Plus Care Renewals will be funded in the Homeless Assistance Grants account.

Guaranteed Loans.—The Community Development Loan Guarantee program (Section 108) has a proposed commitment level of $275 million in 2003. The credit subsidy/administrative cost estimate for the guaranteed loan program is $7 million in 2003.

Section 108 loan guarantees are used by Community Development Block Grant entitlement and nonentitlement communities (assisted by their State) to cover the cost of: acquiring real property; rehabilitating publicly owned real property; housing rehabilitation; and, certain other economic development activities. In addition, Section 108 has, in some cases, been used to finance the construction of housing by nonprofit organizations.

Guaranteed loans.—The Community Development Loan Guarantees program provides a mechanism for the Federal guarantee of private loans. There is an accompanying liquidating account which shows activity for Federal Financing Bank (FFB) direct loan activity, obligated prior to July 1, 1986. Also following is a status of privately financed guaranteed loan commitments made prior to 1992.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of loan guarantees that resulted from commitments in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

Guaranteed loans.—Guaranteed loan assistance under the Community Development Loan Guarantees program was provided to eligible communities to finance economic development activities, housing rehabilitation, development or expansion of public facilities, acquisition of real property, rehabilitation of publicly owned real property, and certain related expenses. In the past, the FFB financed these guaranteed loans. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 required private financing of all loan guarantees committed after July 1, 1986. FFB will continue disbursing loans for commitments approved prior to July 1, 1986. The activity shown in the above account reflects privately financed guaranteed loans for which commitments were made prior to 1992.

This account consolidates activity under the Section 202 Housing for the Elderly Program and the Section 811 Housing for the Disabled Program. In 2003, $1,024 million is requested for the Housing for Special Populations account, the same amount as was appropriated in 2002.

Housing for the Disabled.—$250 million is proposed for housing for persons with disabilities, including language to permit up to 25 percent of these funds to be earmarked for tenant-based assistance which increases the number of persons that can be assisted by maximizing the use of the private market.

Housing for the Elderly.—A total of $774 million is proposed for housing for the elderly. Of this amount $30 million is for the capital grant program to convert existing 202 properties to assisted living under appropriate conditions. These funds for capital grants are available to existing HUD elderly subsidized (Section 202) projects that convert some or all units to Assisted Living.

$44.0 million is provided for a service coordinator program that will serve both residents of HUD-assisted elderly housing, other eligible elderly residing in the neighborhood in which such projects are located on an exception basis, and residents of projects assisted under section 811.

The Housing Counseling Assistance Program provides comprehensive housing counseling services to eligible homeowners and tenants, including home purchase, financial management, and rental counseling. This program has been funded through a set-aside under the HOME program appropriation for the past several years.

The Housing Counseling Assistance Program supports the delivery of a wide variety of housing counseling services to homebuyers, homeowners, low-to moderate-income renters and the homeless. The primary objectives of the program are to expand homeownership opportunities, improve access to affordable housing and aid in HUD's commitment to bridging the gap of homeownership of minorities and other select groups in comparison to the National homeownership rate.

The Other Assisted Housing Account contains the programs listed below:

Rent supplement.—Rent supplement assistance payments will continue to be made on behalf of qualified low-income tenants in approximately 20,000 units which have not converted to section 8.

Section 235.—The Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 (Public Law 98-181) authorized a restructured section 235 (Homeownership Assistance) program based on a 10-year interest reduction subsidy. This replaced earlier versions of the program, the original and the revised versions. All were below interest rate mortgages for single family homes.

Section 236.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the section 236 Rental Housing Assistance Program which subsidizes the monthly mortgage payment that an owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. This interest subsidy reduces rents for lower income tenants.

IRP Rehab Grants.—Title V of the 1998 Appropriations Act (P.L. 105-65) establishes a program of rehabilitation grants for owners of eligible projects. An estimated $300 million of such grants are expected in 2002 and $100 million in 2003.

The Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere Program provided affordable homeownership opportunities for low-income families. Units were converted to homeownership from public and Indian housing properties in HOPE 1, from FHA-insured and Government-held multi-family properties in HOPE 2, and from Government-owned or -held single family properties in HOPE 3. HOPE Grants were used for property acquisition, rehabilitation, mortgage subsidies, security measures, and technical assistance. In addition, grants have been devoted to counseling and training of residents, and other activities intended to help them become economically self-sufficient homeowners. No funding is being requested for 2003. This schedule reflects the liquidation of prior year balances.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund into which rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in section 236 subsidized projects would be deposited.

The Housing and Community Development Amendment of 1978 authorized the Secretary, subject to approval in appropriation acts, to transfer excess rent collections received after 1978 to the Troubled Projects Operating Subsidy program, renamed the Flexible Subsidy Fund. Prior to that time, collections were used for paying tax and utility increases in section 236 projects. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1980 amended the 1978 Act by authorizing the transfer of excess rent collections regardless of when collected. This Budget proposes that the resources from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund continue to be transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund, with the exception of amounts required to make refunds of excess income remittances as authorized by Public Law 106-569.

FLEXIBLE SUBSIDY FUND
(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

From the Rental Housing Assistance Fund, all uncommitted balances of excess rental charges as of September 30, [2001] 2002, and any collections made during fiscal year [2002] 2003 (with the exception of amounts required to make refunds of excess income remittances as authorized by Public Law 106-569), shall be transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund, as authorized by section 236(g) of the National Housing Act, as amended. The Flexible Subsidy Fund assisted financially troubled subsidized projects under certain FHA authorities. The subsidies were intended to prevent potential losses to the FHA fund resulting from project insolvency and to preserve these projects as a viable source of housing for low and moderate-income tenants. Priority was given to projects with Federal insurance-in-force and then to those with mortgages that had been assigned to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The budget assumes that the account will continue to serve as a repository of excess rental charges appropriated from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund. Since 1996, these resources have not been used for new reservations but they continue to offset Flexible Subsidy outlays and other discretionary expenditures. In 2001, Congress enacted legislation which permits excess income balances in the Rental Housing Assistance Fund or transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund to be used for refunds of prior excess income remittances, as permitted by law.

The Homeownership Assistance Fund was established by the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983. It provided for the receipt of recaptures of budget authority, cash, and interest earnings under the restructured section 235 program. The funds were authorized to be used, to the extent approved in Appropriation Acts, by the Secretary to provide additional section 235 assistance payments for mortgagors who are unable to assume the full payment due under the mortgage after the termination of the original 10-year assistance payments contract.

The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) provides mortgage insurance to encourage lenders to make credit available to expand homeownership and to predominantly serve borrowers that the conventional market does not adequately provide for including: first-time homebuyers; minorities; lower-income families; and, residents of underserved areas (central cities and rural areas).

The Budget proposes an aggregate limitation of $160 billion on commitments to guarantee loans in 2003.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records administrative expenses for this program, as well as the subsidy costs, if any, associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and thereafter. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals.

The $50 million in 2003 direct loan limitation in the MMI Fund would permit the Department to use Purchase Money Mortgages (PMMs) to help finance the sale of acquired single family properties. HUD would extend credit for these single-family homes to community nonprofit organizations or local government entities who would be expected to sell the properties to low- and moderate-income buyers. The use of PMMs provides a tool for State and local nonprofit organizations to use in revitalizing communities, and creates enhanced homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families.

The Federal Housing Administration Fund currently consists of four separate insurance funds.

In order to present more clearly the operations of the various funds, FHA's budget transactions are separated into two major business segments. The basic single-family insurance programs in the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) fund and the multifamily Cooperative Management Housing Insurance (CMHI) funds form one segment. All other multifamily and other specialized insurance programs in the General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance funds (GI/SRI) form the other segment.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 creates a structure of three accounts for existing credit program. For each of the FHA business segments (MMI/CMHI and GI/SRI) there is a liquidating account, which records the revenues and costs associated with loan insurance committed prior to October 1, 1991, a financing account which records the revenues and costs associated with commitments to insure loans made after September 30, 1991, and, a program account which records the transactions associated with the program subsidy costs, if any, and the costs of administering the program.

This liquidating account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from MMI/CMHI loans insured prior to 1992 and is shown on a cash basis. All new activity in this program in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loans insured in any year) is recorded in the corresponding program (86-0183) and financing (86-4587 and 86-4242) accounts.

The program activity in the "Program Highlights" table shown below reflects only the activity in the MMI/CMHI liquidating and financing accounts. The GI/SRI program activity can be found with the GI/SRI liquidating account (86-4072).

Multifamily Products.—This account includes budget authority for multifamily insurance programs requiring positive credit subsidies, as well as for salaries and expenses and other administrative costs for all General and Special Risk Insurance Fund programs.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for the single family, multifamily, hospital, and Title I insurance programs of FHA's General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance Funds, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed or direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loan guarantees or direct loans that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of these programs. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are accounted for on a cash basis.

The Budget includes a reduction in the annual premium rate of multifamily Section 221(d)(4) loan guarantees from 80 basis points to 57 basis points. This reflects improved estimates of these loan guarantee subsidy cost.

The General Insurance fund provides for a large number of specialized mortgage insurance programs, including the insurance of loans for property improvements as well as for cooperatives, condominiums, nursing homes, rental housing and nonprofit hospitals.

The Special Risk Insurance fund provides insurance on behalf of mortgagors who otherwise would not be eligible for mortgage insurance. In addition, the fund provides insurance on mortgages covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations was not observed.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed and direct loans obligated prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis. New insurance and direct loan activity in 1992 and thereafter in the GI/SRI programs is recorded in corresponding program (86-0200) and financing (86-4077 and 86-4105) accounts.

Section 571 of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1998 established the Office of Multifamily Housing Assistance Restructuring within HUD to administer the program of mortgage and rental assistance restructuring. Included in the budget estimates for this account are projections for the financial operations of the office.

Restructuring authorities under the Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act of 1997 expire at the end of fiscal year 2006 except for binding commitments entered into prior to October 1, 2006.

Note.—Amounts for direct loan obligations reflect reservations of section 202 funds. Loan obligations shown under the program and financing schedule reflect loans that have reached the initial closing stage of processing.

The Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped Fund was established pursuant to section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended. The fund provided direct loans to nonprofit organizations building and managing housing projects for lower income persons who are elderly or disabled.

Projects included an assured range of necessary services for the occupants of such projects. In addition, the section 8 lower income housing assistance payments program has been used in conjunction with the section 202 program. Applications under the two programs have been processed simultaneously.

The data included in these schedules represent direct loan activities funded under the Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped Loan Fund. Further, activities in support of the needs of the elderly and disabled have been carried out under a grant program funded in the 1991 Appropriations Act (P.L. 101-507) and authorized in the National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101-625).

After April 1, 1992, all projects for which there were administrative reservations converted to the capital advance assistance program.

The program and financing schedule for this account summarizes the Federal government's obligations for this loan program.

Financing.—Repayments and interest income from loans continue to be available to pay for commitments of the fund.

The National Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974, as amended by the Manufactured Housing Improvement Act of 2000, authorizes development and enforcement of appropriate standards for the construction, design, and performance of manufactured homes to assure their quality, durability, affordability, and safety. All manufactured homes produced since the standards took effect on June 15, 1976 must comply with Federal construction and safety standards. The States are actively encouraged to participate in the program under compliance plans approved by HUD. New program requirements mandated by the Manufactured Housing Improvement Act of 2000 include procurement of an Administering Organization, formation of a Consensus Committee to recommend revisions to and interpretations of the manufactured housing standards, development and implementation of standards for installation of manufactured housing, and development and implementation of a dispute resolution program.

Fees are charged to the manufacturers for each manufactured home transportable section produced and will be used to fund the costs of all authorized activities necessary for the consensus committee, HUD, and its agents to carry out all aspects of the manufactured housing legislation. Fees are deposited in a trust fund administered by the Department, and a portion of the fee receipts are transferred to the salaries and expenses account to defray the direct administrative expenses of the program. In 2001, an estimated 338,565 transportable sections were produced, for a total of 191,249 manufactured homes.

The Manufactured Housing Improvement Act of 2000 created a Manufactured Housing Fees Trust Fund and made spending subject to appropriations. This account provides spending for activities formerly funded under Manufactured Home Inspection and Monitoring.

This account also presents activities formerly shown under the Interstate Land Sales account.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public with respect to purchases or leases of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 100 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. The fee receipts are permanently appropriated and have helped finance a portion of the direct administrative expenses incurred in program operations.

The estimated annual program activity level will continue at 1,020 filings, approximately the same estimated level as in recent years with a cost of $350,000.

GOVERNMENT NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

Federal Funds

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on privately issued securities that are backed by pools of FHA, Veterans Affairs (VA) and Rural Housing Service mortgages. The Ginnie Mae guarantee gives lenders access to the capital markets for funds to originate new loans. New FHA and VA loans are currently pooled into Ginnie Mae securities

Financing.—Ginnie Mae issuers are assessed commitment, guarantee and other fees to cover costs incurred by Ginnie Mae and to fund a reserve against possible future payments under the guarantee.

Operating results.—Fee collections, interest, and other income are expected to exceed expenses by $834 million in 2002 and $808 million in 2003.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the HUD mission. These functions are carried out internally and through contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, and educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

In 2003, the research program will expand funding for program evaluations and cover some of the increased costs associated with analyzing newly available 2000 census data to determine their implications for HUD programs. National Housing Surveys will continue in 2003. Research and evaluation activities will also support the Department in carrying out its responsibilities under the Government Performance and Results Act.

The Budget proposes an appropriation of $46 million in 2003 to fund fair housing activities that support efforts to end housing discrimination. Of the amount requested, $26 million is for the Fair Housing Assistance Program and $20 million is for the Fair Housing Initiatives Program.

The Fair Housing Assistance Program (FHAP), authorized by title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 as amended, provides funding to State and local agencies to assure prompt and effective processing of Title VIII (Civil Rights Act of 1968) complaints.

The funding requested for FHAP will support fair housing enforcement by increasing funding to support additional State and local fair housing organizations to meet the needs of currently underserved populations. It is estimated that the number of new State and local agencies with laws equivalent to the Fair Housing Act will increase to 98 in 2003 from 96 in 2002.

The Fair Housing Initiatives Program (FHIP), authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987, as amended by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, provides support to public and private organizations for the purpose of eliminating or preventing discrimination in housing and for enhancing fair housing opportunities. FHIP provides funding for projects that inform and educate the public, including housing providers, on the rights and obligations of the Fair Housing Act and about substantially equivalent state and local fair housing laws.

Title X of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-550), known as the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act, authorized the Secretary to establish the Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control Grant Program. The primary purpose of the program is to reduce the exposure of young children to lead-based paint hazards in their homes.

The program is a major part of a 10-year strategy to eliminate lead poisoning in children. The 2003 Budget includes a $16 million increase to $96 million for HUD's Lead Hazard Control Program competitive grants, and $10 million for the Healthy Homes Initiative. A request of $10 million to continue Operation LEAP is also included. These funds will be used to leverage the lead hazard control grant program.

The Lead Hazard Control Grant Program provides grants of $1 to $2.5 million to State and local governments and Indian tribes for control of lead-based paint hazards in privately owned, low-income owner-occupied and rental housing. The grants are also designed to stimulate the development of a housing maintenance and rehabilitation workforce trained in lead-safe work practices and a certified hazard evaluation and control industry. In awarding grants, HUD promotes the use of new, low cost approaches to hazard control that can be replicated across the nation.

The Healthy Homes Initiative will enable the Department to control additional childhood diseases and injuries that are caused by housing related factors. The initiative will allow for a demonstration that evaluates the methods of controlling two or more housing related diseases through a single intervention. A public education/outreach effort, to enable the public to act effectively to protect their children, will also be conducted.

The Office of Healthy Homes and Lead Hazard Control will continue its Technical Support program, which will include public education; technical assistance for State and local agencies, private property owners, HUD programs and field offices and professional organizations; quality control to ensure that the evaluation and control of lead-based paint hazards is done properly in HUD-assisted housing; development of standards, technical guidance, regulations and improved testing; and hazard control methods.

Section 7(j) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act established fees and charges from selected programs to offset the costs of audits, inspections and other related expenses that may be incurred by the Department in monitoring these programs. These funds are no longer needed. In 2003, the budget proposes a rescission of all unobligated funds.

This appropriation funds the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (the Office), which was established in 1992 to regulate the financial safety and soundness of two housing Government Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs)—Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. The Office was authorized in the Federal Housing Enterprise Safety and Soundness Act of 1992, which also instituted a risk-based capital standard for the GSEs, and gave the regulator enhanced authority to enforce those standards. The office is also required by statute to conduct on-site annual examinations at the GSEs to determine the condition of each enterprise for the purpose of ensuring their financial safety and soundness.

In order to treat OFHEO similarly to other financial regulators, including the regulator of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the Budget proposes legislation that would provide direct funding of OFHEO's activities with mandatory assessments on Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

The Working Capital Fund, authorized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, finances information technology and office automation initiatives which can be performed more efficiently on a centralized basis. In 2001 and 2002 the fund was financed from fees charged for services performed. In 2003, a direct appropriation is requested for the operations of the computer system and for development and modifications of Department-wide systems. Fees will continue for services to develop and modify systems where the benefit is limited to a specific program.

Wildland fire preparedness.—This activity funds the non-emergency and predictable aspects of the Department's wildland fire program. Preparedness includes readiness, operational planning, oversight, procurement, training, supervision, and deployment of wildland fire suppression personnel and equipment prior to wildland fire occurrence. It also includes activities related to program monitoring and evaluation, integration of fire into land-use planning, fire facility construction and maintenance, and fire research and fire science program activities.

Wildland fire operations.—This activity funds the emergency and unpredictable aspects of the Department's wildland fire management program. Wildland fire operations include emergency suppression, emergency rehabilitation, and hazardous fuels reduction. Suppression operations include the total spectrum of management actions taken on wildland fires in a safe, cost-effective manner, considering public benefits and values to be protected and consistent with resource objectives and land management plans. Suppression operations also include severity funding used to improve initial attack preparedness response capabilities when abnormal fire conditions occur resulting in fire seasons starting earlier than normal, lasting longer than normal, or exceeding average fire danger ratings for prolonged periods. Emergency rehabilitation of wildland fire areas is carried out to prevent land degradation and resource damages and to stabilize soils, structures, or other conditions or damage caused by wildland fires. Hazardous fuels reduction operations include all operational aspects of applying prescribed fire to reduce fuel loadings and promote ecosystem diversity. It also includes mechanical treatments. Funding requests are guided by the historical 10-year average of suppression and rehabilitation expenditures, adjusted for inflation, and a target level for hazardous fuels reduction operations.

Rural fire district assistance.—This activity provides for financial support to local and rural fire protection districts that protect small communities. These local firefighting agencies often provide a critical service in helping meet protection

The Central Hazardous Materials Fund is used to fund remedial investigations/feasibility studies and cleanups of hazardous waste sites for which the Department of the Interior is liable. Authority is provided for amounts recovered from responsible parties to be credited to this account. Thus, the account may be composed of both annual appropriations of no-year funds and of offsetting collections. The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. Section 9601 et seq.) requires responsible parties, including Federal landowners, to investigate and clean up releases of hazardous substances.

Permanent operating funds accounts include:

Operations and maintenance of quarters.—Funds in this account are used to maintain and repair BLM employee-occupied quarters from which rental charges are collected. Agencies are required to collect quarter rentals from employees who occupy Government-owned housing and quarters. This housing is provided only in isolated areas or where an employee is required to live on-site at a Federally owned facility or reservation.

Forest ecosystems health and recovery.—Funds in this account are derived from revenue generated from the Federal share of receipts from the sale of salvage timber from the Oregon and California grant lands, public domain lands, and Coos Bay Wagon Road lands. This account was established to allow the Bureau of Land Management to more efficiently and effectively address forest health. Funds can be used for other forest health purposes, including release from competing vegetation and density control treatments.

Timber sale pipeline restoration fund.—This fund provides for the deposit and use of fees collected by the BLM for sales of non-salvage timber pursuant to the timber salvage provisions of Public Law 104-19 and Public Law 105-83. Of the total deposited into this account, 75 percent is to be used for preparation of timber sales to fill the timber pipeline on lands administered by the BLM, and 25 percent is to be expended on the backlog of recreation projects on BLM lands.

Recreation fees.—This account holds funds that enable the BLM to retain and spend up to 15 percent of recreation receipts collected during the current year to offset fee collection costs.

Expenses, road maintenance deposits.—Users of certain roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys collected are appropriated for necessary road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available only for those lands (43 U.S.C. 1762(c), 43 U.S.C. 1735(b)).

Recreational fee demonstration program.—Fees collected by the BLM at recreation sites identified pursuant to provisions of the 2002 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act are deposited to this account. The temporary authority for this program expires at the end of fiscal year 2004. To ensure that fee revenue remains available for BLM sites after 2004, the Administration will propose legislation providing permanent fee authority. BLM returns 100 percent of these receipts back to the site where the fees were generated.

Acquisitions in Deschutes, OR from land sale receipts.—Pursuant to Public Law 105–221, the Oregon Public Lands Transfer Act, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to use the proceeds from sales in Deschutes County to purchase environmentally sensitive lands.

Operations and acquisitions in Nevada from land sale receipts.—Pursuant to Public Law 105–263, 85% of receipts from sales of public domain lands in southern Nevada are used to acquire environmentally sensitive land in the State, and to make capital improvements to areas administered by the NPS, FWS, and BLM in Clark County, NV. Included in this account is earnings on investments.

Lincoln County land sales.—Public Law 106–298 authorizes the Secretary to dispose of certain lands in Lincoln County, Nevada, and distribute the proceeds as follows: five percent to the state of Nevada, 10 percent to the County, and 85 percent to an interest bearing account that is available for expenditure without further appropriation.

Commercial film and photography fees.—Fees collected pursuant to Public Law 106–206 are used to recover costs incurred as a result of filming activities or similar projects, including but not limited to administrative and personnel costs. Also, a reasonable fee is collected for commercial filming activities or similar projects on Federal lands administered by the Secretary of the Interior.

Federal land disposal.—The Federal Land Disposal Account, P.L. 106–248 Stat. 616, provides that the Administration will conduct sales of lands that have been classified as suitable for disposal under current resource management plans. This law provides that receipts from such sales may be used to acquire non-Federal lands with significant resource values that fall within the boundaries of areas now managed by the Department of the Interior.

The Helium Act Amendments of 1960, Public Law 86-777 (50 U.S.C. 167), authorized activities necessary to provide sufficient helium to meet the current and foreseeable future needs of essential government activities.

The Helium Privatization Act of 1996, Public Law 104-273, provides for the eventual privatization of the program and its functions. In FY 2003, the Helium program will consist of:

- (a) continued storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (b) complete disposal of helium refining facilities and other excess property not needed for storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (c) oversight of the production of helium on Federal lands;
- (d) administration of in kind crude helium gas sale program.

The estimates assume that the helium program will continue to fund full implementation of the Helium Privatization Act.

The Minerals Management Service supervises exploration for, and the development and production of, gas, oil, and other minerals on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands; and collects royalties, rentals, and bonuses due the Federal Government and Indian lessors from minerals produced on Federal, Indian, and OCS lands.

Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands.—The program provides for: (1) performance of environmental assessments to ensure compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA); (2) conduct of lease offerings; (3) selection and evaluation of tracts offered for lease by competitive bidding; (4) assurance that the Federal Government receives fair market value for leased lands; and (5) regulation and supervision of energy and mineral exploration, development, and production operations on the OCS lands.

Minerals revenue management.—The Minerals revenue management program provides accounting, auditing, and compliance activities for royalties, rentals, and bonuses due from minerals produced on Federal, Indian, allotted and OCS lands. The program includes an automated accounting system to ensure that all royalties are properly collected.

General administration.—General administrative expenses provide for management, executive direction and coordination, administrative support, Federal building space and general support services.

The following are key performance measures for the Royalty and offshore minerals management account.

Environmental protection.—This activity funds those functions that directly contribute to ensuring that the environment is protected during surface coal mining operations. It also addresses those activities that ensure that coal operators adequately reclaim the land after mining is completed.

Under this activity, OSM provides regulatory grants to States to operate enforcement programs under the terms of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (SMCRA). It also provides for the operation of Federal and Indian land programs and the oversight of State programs. This activity also supports State regulatory program development and maintenance.

Environmental restoration.—This activity funds environmental reclamation efforts through the collection of civil penalties for post-SMCRA reclamation and funds from bond forfeitures. It also provides funding for underground and coal outcrop fires.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that States and Indian Tribes need to operate their regulatory programs. It provides technical outreach to States and Indian Tribes to solve problems related to the environmental effects of coal mining. The Applicant Violator System is funded from this activity.

Financial management.—This activity provides the resources for the managing, accounting, and processing of collections and for the pursuit of delinquent civil penalties. This includes developing and maintaining information management systems that support these functions and enhance the agency's ability to deny new mining permits to applicants with unabated State or Federal violations.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services, such as rent, telephones, and postage.

Environmental Restoration.—This activity funds those functions that contribute to reclaiming lands affected by past coal mining practices. Funds are used to restore land and water resources and the environment that have been degraded by mining prior to the passage of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA).

This activity provides reclamation grants to qualified States. It also provides for the Federal reclamation program, which includes the Federally-administered emergency reclamation program, and for high priority projects in States that do not have a reclamation program.

Funding is also provided within this account, for the Appalachian Clean Streams Initiative.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that the States and Indian Tribes need to operate their reclamation programs. OSM conducts technical studies on mining and reclamation-related problems. This activity also provides resources for the Small operators assistance program.

Financial Management.—This activity provides funds to identify, notify, collect, and audit fees from coal operators for the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund. OSM seeks to maximize voluntary compliance with the SMCRA's reclamation fee provisions.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services such as rent, telephones, and postage.

The following are the key performance measures for the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund account:

PERFORMANCE MEASURES

	2001 actual	2002 est.	2003 est.
Number of acres reclaimed on all abandoned coal mine sites.	8,600	8,200	6,900

The 2001 accomplishment for acres reclaimed is a calculated estimate. The accomplishments reported to OSM by States and Tribes for 2001 (13,808 acres) included more than one year. Also, estimates generally reflect the full number of projects funded; actual project completion may occur one to three years after initiation.

The U.S. Geological Survey provides research and scientific information to support the mission of the Department of the Interior and the science needs of the land and resource management bureaus of the Department. The U.S. Geological Survey also works in collaboration with other Federal, State, and Tribal cooperators to conduct research and provide scientific data and information concerning natural hazards and environmental issues and pertaining to the water, land, and mineral and biological resources of the Nation.

The budget for the U.S. Geological Survey continues to emphasize mission responsibilities to provide sound and impartial science in support of the land and resource management bureaus of the Department of the Interior and its thousands of other partners and customers. This budget focuses resources on those programs that more directly address the science needs of Interior Bureaus. At the same time, the budget reduces USGS funding for programs supporting outside customers in an effort to increase financial participation by these customers.

The budget for USGS includes $4 million for the Everglades restoration-related Cooperative Ecosystem Science Initiative (CESI), which USGS has previously received for reimbursable work conducted on behalf of the National Park Service. With the direct funding, USGS will continue to support interagency research, planning, monitoring, and assessment activities in support of Everglades restoration.

Mapping, remote sensing, and geographic investigations program.—The mapping, remote sensing, and geographic investigations program ensures a nationwide geographic information knowledge base by collecting, integrating, and making available, in printed and digital format, cartographic and geographic base data, remotely sensed data, data from classified sources, and multipurpose and special-purpose maps. The USGS is the lead Federal agency for civil mapping. Research is conducted in the mapping sciences, geography, and related disciplines in support of data production and applications. Activities related to the National Spatial Data Infrastructure support interagency and intergovernmental partnerships for establishing a national geospatial data clearinghouse, developing data standards, coordinating regional data production and sharing, and developing a data framework (data set) for the Nation.

Geologic hazards, resources, and processes.—The national program of onshore and offshore geologic research and investigations produces: (1) information on natural hazards of geologic origin such as earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, landslides, and coastal erosion; (2) geologic information for use in the management of public lands and in national policy determinations; (3) information on the chemistry and physics of the Earth, its past climate, and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being modified; (4) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps and analyses to address environmental, energy and mineral resource, and hazards concerns; (5) hazards, energy and mineral resource, and environmental assessments; and (6) improved methods and instrumentation for detecting and monitoring hazards, disseminating hazards information, and conducting assessments.

Water resources investigations.—The USGS water programs produce data, analyses, assessments and methodologies to support Federal, State, Tribal, and local government decisions on water planning, water management, water quality, flood forecasting and warning, and enhancement of the quality of the environment. The U.S. Geological Survey's water resources programs have a rich history of working cooperatively with other Federal agencies, States, and other entities to leverage Federal resources to meet their mutual water information needs.

Biological research.—The national program of biological research: (1) conducts biological research inventory and monitoring; (2) provides scientific information for the management of biological resources; and (3) predicts the consequences of environmental change and the effects of alternative management actions on plants, animals, and their habitats. The program conducts the high priority biological research needed by the Department of the Interior's land management bureaus and operates the Cooperative Research Unit program which provides research and information to resource managers, and trains natural resource professionals in partnership with university and State scientists.

Science support.—Science support provides for Bureauwide management; executive direction and coordination; administrative, human resources, and information resources management services, and financial and personnel systems support provided by DOI's National Business Center.

Facilities.—This activity finances: (1) USGS rental payments; (2) operation and maintenance for properties; and (3) deferred maintenance and capital improvement.

Reimbursable program.—Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States, Tribes, and municipalities for: cooperative efforts and proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records; proceeds from sale of personal property; reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission; and reimbursements from foreign countries and international organizations for technical assistance. Reimbursements from other Federal agencies are for mission related work performed at the request of the financing agency, and will be required to support certain ongoing USGS water quality-related programs in which the primary beneficiaries are non-Interior agencies.

Note.—Collections contained in this account include amounts that have been legislatively reclassified as intragovernmental funds.

Ecological services.—The Service provides technical assistance to prevent or minimize adverse environmental effects of development projects; restores trust species habitats; and, produces wetland maps of the United States. Financial assistance is provided to private landowners to restore or improve habitat for endangered species. Contaminants are investigated, monitored, and assessed for effects on trust resources. Activities are pursued to prevent species from becoming extinct, and to return them to the point where they are neither threatened nor endangered.

National Wildlife Refuge System.—The Service maintains the National Wildlife Refuge System consisting of 538 units, with waterfowl production areas in 201 counties and 50 coordination areas, totaling about 94 million acres. A total of $108 million is proposed for refuge maintenance as part of the Service's effort to address a backlog in deferred maintenance projects.

Migratory Bird Management.—The Service directs and coordinates national migratory bird programs.

Law enforcement.—The Service enforces federal laws, regulations, and international treaties for the protection of fish, wildlife and plants, including inspections of wildlife shipments entering or leaving the United States at ports-of-entry. The Service is authorized 253 special agents and 95 wildlife inspectors, and manages the Clark R. Bavin National Wildlife Forensics Laboratory in Ashland, OR, the National Wildlife Property Repository and the National Eagle Repository, both located in Commerce City, CO.

Fisheries.—The Service manages 70 national hatcheries, 9 health centers, and 7 technology centers for the production of fish species, protects and enhances inter-jurisdictional fishery resources, and provides technical assistance for the restoration and improvement of fish and wildlife populations and their habitats. Projects to improve aquatic resources are implemented through the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation and other partnerships.

General operations.—Provides policy guidance, program coordination, and administrative services to all fish and wildlife programs. The funds also support the Service's international activities, the National Conservation Training Center, and projects through the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation to restore and enhance fish and wildlife populations.

Funding for refuge, hatchery and law enforcement maintenance emphasizes the Service's commitment to the long-term stewardship of federal lands and facilities.

This account includes $58 million for Federal Infrastructure Improvement and $18 million for the Cooperative Conservation initiative which are part of the Conservation Spending Category.

As part of the 1999 Pacific Salmon Treaty Agreement between the U.S. and Canada, the U.S. agreed to reduce the harvest of Fraser River salmon by the non-Indian fishing fleet. Pursuant to this agreement, the Congress provided the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service with $5.0 million in 2000 under this account. The funds are to be awarded as a grant to the State of Washington to (1) meet the intent of the Pacific Salmon Treaty; (2) reduce the overall fleet capacity while maintaining a sustainable and economically viable fishery; and (3) provide economic relief to Washington salmon fishers.

Funds deposited into this account include direct appropriations and fines, penalties, and forfeitures collected under the authority of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (16 U.S.C. 707) and interest on obligations held in the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Fund. The North American Wetlands Conservation Fund supports wetlands conservation projects approved by the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission. A portion of receipts to the Sport Fish Restoration Account is also available for coastal wetlands conservation projects.

These projects help fulfill the habitat protection, restoration and enhancement goals of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan and the Tripartite Agreement among Mexico, Canada and the United States. These projects may involve partnerships with public agencies and private entities, with non-Federal matching contributions, for the long-term conservation of habitat for migratory birds and other fish and wildlife, including species that are listed, or are candidates to be listed, under the Endangered Species Act (16 U.S.C. 1531).

Wetlands conservation projects include the obtaining of a real property interest in lands or waters, including water rights; the restoration, management or enhancement of habitat; and training and development for conservation management in Mexico. Funding may be provided for assistance for wetlands conservation projects in Canada or Mexico.

The Cooperative Endangered Species Conservation Fund provides grants to States and U.S. territories for conservation, recovery, and monitoring projects for species that are listed, or species that are candidates for listing, as threatened or endangered. Grants are also awarded to States for land acquisition in support of Habitat Conservation Plans and species recovery efforts in partnership with local governments and other interested parties to protect species while allowing development to continue. The Fund is partially financed by permanent appropriations from the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury in an amount equal to five percent of receipts deposited to the Federal aid in wildlife and sport fish restoration accounts and amounts equal to Lacey Act receipts over $500,000. The actual amount available for grants is subject to annual appropriations.

The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes revenues through the sale of products from Service lands, less expenses for producing revenue and activities related to revenue sharing. The Fish and Wildlife Service makes payments to counties in which Service lands are located. If the net revenues are insufficient to make full payments according to the formula contained in the Act, direct appropriations are authorized to make up the difference.

In 1997, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service initiated the recreational fee demonstration program at selected refuges and other public sites. Entrance fees and other user receipts collected at sites are deposited into the Recreational fee demonstration program account.

The fee program demonstrates the feasibility of user-generated cost recovery for the operation and maintenance of recreation areas or sites and habitat enhancement projects on Federal lands. Fees are used primarily at the site to improve visitor access, enhance public safety and security, address backlogged maintenance needs, and meet other operational needs. The temporary authority for this program expires at the end of fiscal year 2004. To ensure that fee revenue remains available for refuge improvements after 2004, the Administration will propose legislation providing permanent fee authority.

The Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act, popularly known as the Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Restoration Act, created a program to fund the selection, restoration, rehabilitation and improvement of wildlife habitat, and wildlife management research. Under the program, States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands are allocated funds from the 11 percent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, the 10 percent excise tax on handguns, and the 12.4 percent tax on certain archery equipment. States are reimbursed up to 75 percent of the cost of approved wildlife and hunter education projects.

The Wildlife and Sport Fish Restoration Programs Improvement Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-408) amends the Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Restoration Act to authorize the Secretary of Interior to implement a multi-State conservation grant program and a firearm and bow hunter education and safety program which provides grants to the States.

Section 901 of Title IX of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002 (P.L. 106-553) authorizes a new grant program, the Wildlife Conservation and Restoration Account, to supplement existing funding available to the States and territories from the Sport Fish Restoration account and Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration account. The 2001 appropriation included $50 million to be used by State, territory or an Indian Tribe for the planning, development, revision and implementation of its wildlife conservation and restoration program and wildlife conservation strategy, including wildlife conservation, wildlife education, and wildlife-associated recreation projects.

The Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act, commonly referred to as the Dingell-Johnson Sport Fish Restoration Act (as modified by the Wallop-Breaux amendment) created a fishery resources, conservation, and restoration program funded by an excise tax on fishing and sporting equipment.

Since 1992 the Sport Fish Restoration Fund has supported coastal wetlands grants pursuant to the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act (P.L. 101-646). Additional revenue from small engine fuel taxes was provided under the Surface Transportation Extension Act of 1997.

The Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act requires an amount equal to 18 percent of the total deposits into the Sport Fish Restoration Fund, or amounts collected in small engine fuels excise taxes as provided by 26 U.S.C. 9504(b), whichever is greater, to be distributed as follows: 70 percent shall be available to the Corps of Engineers for priority project and conservation planning activities; 15 percent shall be available to the Fish and Wildlife Service for coastal wetlands conservation grants; and 15 percent to the Fish and Wildlife Service for wetlands conservation projects under Section 8 of the North American Wetlands Conservation Act (P.L. 101-233).

The Clean Vessel Act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to make grants to States, in specified amounts, to carry out projects for the construction, renovation, operation, and maintenance of pumpout stations and waste reception facilities. The Sport Fish Restoration Act, as amended, provides for the transfer of funds from the Sport fish restoration account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund for use by the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the purposes of this Act and for use by the Secretary of Transportation for State recreational boating safety programs (46 USC 13106(a)(1)). The Sportfishing and Boating Safety Act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to develop national and state outreach plans to promote safe fishing and boating opportunities and the conservation of aquatic resources, as well as to make grants to states for developing and maintaining facilities for certain recreational vessels.

Assistance is provided to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, and the District of Columbia for up to 75 percent of the cost of approved projects including: research into fisheries problems, surveys and inventories of fish populations, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat and provision of access for public use.

The Wildlife and Sport Fish Restoration Programs Improvement Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-408) amends the Dingell-Johnson Sport Fish Restoration Act to authorize the Secretary of Interior to implement a multi-State conservation grant program and provide funding for several fisheries commissions and the Sport Fishing and Boating Partnership Council.

The National Park System contains 385 areas and 84.4 million acres of land in 49 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, Samoa, and the Northern Marianas. These areas have been established to protect and preserve the cultural and natural heritage of the United States and its territories. Park visits total over 285 million annually. This appropriation funds the operation of individual units of the National Park System as well as planning and administrative support for the entire system. The budget makes repair and rehabilitation funds available for two years, to provide the flexibility needed to carry out these programs. In addition, repair and rehabilitation project funds are specifically appropriated only for repair and rehabilitation projects, which include but are not limited to facility, campground, and trail rehabilitation; roadway overlay and/or reconditioning; bridge repair; wastewater and water line replacement; and the rewiring of buildings, and for operation of the National Park Service automated facility management software system and for comprehensive facility condition assessments.

Note.—The activities previously financed under Department of the Interior, National Park Service, Federal Infrastructure Improvement, from LWCF in 2001 are presented in these schedules.

Line Item Construction.—This activity provides for the construction, rehabilitation, and replacement of those facilities needed to accomplish the management objectives approved for each park. Projects are categorized as facility improvement, utility systems rehabilitation, historic preservation, and natural resource preservation.

Special Programs.—Under this activity several former activity and subactivity components are combined. These include Emergency and Unscheduled Projects, the Seismic Safety of National Park System Buildings Program, Employee Housing, Dam Safety, and Equipment Replacement.

Construction Planning.—This activity includes the project planning function in which funds are used to prepare working drawings, specification documents, and contracts needed to construct or rehabilitate National Park Service facilities.

Pre-Design and Supplementary Services.—Under this activity, provisions are made to undertake workloads in conformance with improvement recommendations of NAPA. Functions include conditions surveys and special reports to acquire archaeological, historical, environmental and engineering design information which represents requisite preliminary stages of the design process.

Construction Program Management and Operations.—This activity complies with NAPA recommendations to base fund construction program management through offices in Washington, D.C. and Denver. In 2003, this effort will be enhanced through additional funding to competitively source construction program management capability.

General Management Plans.—Under this activity, funding is used to prepare General Management Plans and keep them up-to-date to guide National Park Service actions for the protection, use, development, and management of each park unit; and to conduct studies of alternatives for the protection of areas that may have potential for addition to the National Park System.

Recreational fee demonstration program.—The National Park Service and other land management agencies have initiated a demonstration fee program that allows parks and other units to collect new or increased admission and user fees and spend the revenue for park improvements. This temporary authority, provided in section 315 of section 101(c) of Public Law 104-134 as amended or supplemented by section 319 of section 101(d) of Public Law 104-208, section 5001 of Public Law 105-18, sections 107, 320 and 321 of Public Law 105-83, section 327 of section 101(e) of Public Law 105-277, section 336 of Public Law 106-291 and section 312 of Public Law 107-63 expires at the end of fiscal year 2004. To ensure that fee revenue remains available for park improvements after 2004, the Administration will propose legislation providing permanent fee authority.

Non-demonstration parks fee program.—Under section 310 of Public Law 106-176, the National Park Service may retain recreation fees collected at NPS sites that are not part of the Recreational Fee Demonstration program or that fall within the deed-restricted parks fee program. Revenues are used in the same manner and for the same purposes as provided under the fee demonstration program, and this authority expires upon the termination of that program. No fee-collecting parks (except deed-restricted) are expected to remain outside of the Recreational Fee Demonstration Program as a result of legislation removing limits on the number of parks in the Program.

National park passport program.—Proceeds from the sale of national park passports for admission to all park units are to be used for the national passport program and the National Park System in accordance with section 603 of Public Law 105–391. By law, up to 15 percent of proceeds may be used to administer and promote the national park passport program and the National Park System, and net proceeds are to be used for high priority visitor service or resource management projects throughout the National Park System.

Deed-restricted parks fee program.—Park units where admission fees may not be collected by reason of deed restrictions retain any other recreation fees collected and use them for certain park operation purposes in accordance with Public Law 105–327. This law applies to Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Lincoln Home National Historic Site and Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Site.

Transportation systems fund.—Fees charged for public use of transportation services at parks are retained and used by each collecting park for costs associated with the transportation systems in accordance with section 501 of Public Law 105–391.

Educational expenses, children of employees, Yellowstone National Park.—Revenues received from the collection of short-term recreation fees to the park are used to provide education facilities to pupils who are dependents of persons engaged in the administration, operation, and maintenance of Yellowstone National Park (16 U.S.C. 40a).

Payment for tax losses on land acquired for Grand Teton National Park.—Revenues received from fees collected from visitors are used to compensate the State of Wyoming for tax losses on Grand Teton National Park lands (16 U.S.C. 406d–3).

This appropriation finances 60 percent of programmatic matching grants-in-aid to the States and certified local governments, as well as grants to Indian tribes.

The President's budget proposes $30 million in funding for Save America's Treasures in the National Park Service Historic Preservation Fund to provide assistance to preserve America's most threatened historical and cultural heritage for future generations. These treasures include the significant documents, objects, manuscripts, photographs, works of art, journals, still and moving images, sound recording, historic structures and sites that document and illuminate the history and culture of the United States.

No funding is requested for a grant for the National Trust for Historic Preservation to address maintenance needs at 20 National Trust Historic Sites, since this grant was one-time in nature.

Park concessions franchise fees.—Franchise fees for concessioner activities in the National Park System are deposited in this account and used for certain park operations activities in accordance with section 407 of Public Law 105-391. By law, 20 percent of franchise fees collected are used to support activities throughout the National Park System generally and 80 percent are retained and used by each collecting park unit for visitor services and for purposes of funding high-priority and urgently necessary resource management programs and operations.

Concessions improvement accounts.—National Park Service agreements with private concessioners providing visitor services within national parks can require concessioners to deposit a portion of gross receipts or a fixed sum of money in a separate bank account. A concessioner may expend funds from such an account at the direction of the park superintendent for facilities that directly support concession visitor services, but would not otherwise be funded through the appropriations process. Concessioners do not accrue possessory interests from improvements funded through these accounts.

Park buildings lease and maintenance fund.—Rental payments for leases to use buildings and associated property in the National Park System are deposited in this account and used for infrastructure needs at park units in accordance with section 802 of Public Law 105-391.

Operation and maintenance of quarters.—Revenues from the rental of Government-owned quarters to park employees are deposited in this account and used to operate and maintain the quarters.

National Maritime Heritage Grants Program.—Of the revenues received from the sale of obsolete vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet, 25 percent are used for matching grants to State and local governments and private nonprofit organizations under the National Maritime Heritage Grants Program and for related administrative expenses in accordance with 16 U.S.C. 5401. Program authorization expires at the end of 2006.

The Operation of Indian Programs appropriation consists of a wide range of services and benefits provided to Indian Tribes, Alaskan Native groups, and individual Native Americans.

Tribal priority allocations.—This activity includes the majority of funds used to support ongoing programs at the local Tribal level. Funding priorities for Tribal base programs included in Tribal Priority Allocations are determined by Tribes. Although budget estimates include specific amounts for individual programs, funds may be shifted among programs within the total available for a Tribe or a Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) agency or regional office at the time of budget execution.

Other recurring programs.—This activity includes ongoing programs for which funds are (1) distributed by formula, such as elementary and secondary school operations and Tribal community colleges; and (2) for resource management activities that carry out specific laws or court-ordered settlements.

Non-recurring programs.—This activity includes programs that support Indian reservation and Tribal projects of limited duration, such as noxious weed eradication, cadastral surveys, and forest development.

Central office operations.—This activity supports the executive, program, and administrative management costs of central office organizations, most of which are located in Washington, DC.

Regional office operations.—The BIA has 12 regional offices located throughout the country. Regional Directors have line authority over agency office superintendents. Most of the agency offices are located on Indian reservations. Virtually all of the staff and related administrative support costs for regional and agency offices are included within this activity. Regional Directors have flexibility in aligning their staff and resources to best meet the program requirements of the Tribes within their region.

Special programs and pooled overhead.—Most of the funds in this activity support law enforcement and bureau-wide expenses for items such as unemployment compensation, workers compensation, facilities rentals, telecommunications, and data processing. This activity includes the Bureau's two post-secondary schools, the Indian police academy, the Indian Arts and Crafts Board, the Indian Integrated Resources Information Program, and non-education facilities operation and maintenance.

Note.—Obligations incurred under allocations from other accounts are included in the schedule of the parent appropriation as follows:

The Department of the Interior: Bureau of Land Management: "Firefighting"

The Department of Transportation: Federal Highway Administration: "Federal-Aid Highways"

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The Bureau of Indian Affairs may carry out the operation of Indian programs by direct expenditure, contracts, cooperative agreements, compacts and grants, either directly or in cooperation with States and other organizations.

Appropriations for the Bureau of Indian Affairs (except the revolving fund for loans, the Indian loan guarantee and insurance fund, and the Indian Guaranteed Loan Program account) shall be available for expenses of exhibits, and purchase of not to exceed 229 passenger motor vehicles, of which not to exceed 187 shall be for replacement only.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds available to the Bureau of Indian Affairs for central office operations, pooled overhead general administration (except facilities operations and maintenance), or provided to implement the recommendations of the National Academy of Public Administration's August 1999 report shall be available for tribal contracts, grants, compacts, or cooperative agreements with the Bureau of Indian Affairs under the provisions of the Indian Self-Determination Act or the Tribal Self-Governance Act of 1994 (Public Law 103-413).

In the event any tribe returns appropriations made available by this Act to the Bureau of Indian Affairs for distribution to other tribes, this action shall not diminish the Federal Government's trust responsibility to that tribe, or the government-to-government relationship between the United States and that tribe, or that tribe's ability to access future appropriations.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds available to the Bureau, other than the amounts provided herein for assistance to public schools under 25 U.S.C. 452 et seq., shall be available to support the operation of any elementary or secondary school in the State of Alaska.

Appropriations made available in this or any other Act for schools funded by the Bureau shall be available only to the schools in the Bureau school system as of September 1, 1996. No funds available to the Bureau shall be used to support expanded grades for any school or dormitory beyond the grade structure in place or approved by the Secretary of the Interior at each school in the Bureau school system as of October 1, 1995. Funds made available under this Act may not be used to establish a charter school at a Bureau-funded school (as that term is defined in section 1146 of the Education Amendments of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 2026)), except that a charter school that is in existence on the date of the enactment of this Act and that has operated at a Bureau-funded school before September 1, 1999, may continue to operate during that period, but only if the charter school pays to the Bureau a pro rata share of funds to reimburse the Bureau for the use of the real and personal property (including buses and vans), the funds of the charter school are kept separate and apart from Bureau funds, and the Bureau does not assume any obligation for charter school programs of the State in which the school is located if the charter school loses such funding. Employees of Bureau-funded schools sharing a campus with a charter school and performing functions related to the charter school's operation and employees of a charter school shall not be treated as Federal employees for purposes of chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code (commonly known as the "Federal Tort Claims Act"). As part of the Administration's Competitive Sourcing Initiative, Interior plans to complete public-private and direct conversion competitions for 15 percent of the FTE identified on its fiscal year 2000 FAIR inventory as non-governmental in nature. Based on the percent of competitions won and lost, Interior estimates an FTE reduction of about 1,000 for the entire Department.

The Personnel Summary reflects this reduction in the Salaries and Expenses account, however, actual reductions will be spread among the various Departmental accounts where they occur.

The Government Management Reform Act, P.L. 103-356, established the Franchise Fund Pilot Program. Pursuant to the Act, the Department of the Interior was designated as one of six executive branch agencies authorized to establish a franchise fund. Section 113 of the General Provisions of the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1997, P.L. 104-208, established in the Treasury a franchise fund pilot. This fund is to be available for the cost of capitalizing and operating administrative services as the Secretary determines may be performed more advantageously as central services. The budget extends through the end of fiscal year 2003 the authority for the franchise fund pilot program.

Until October 1, 1994, the United States exercised jurisdiction over the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands according to the terms of the 1947 Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations. These responsibilities were carried out by the Department of the Interior.

The Department of the Interior is seeking no additional appropriations for the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. Compacts of Free Association have been implemented with the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and, as of October 1, 1994, the Republic of Palau. Assistance to the Republic of Palau is now contained in the "Compact of Free Association" account.

Remaining funds in the "Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands" account will be used to meet final transition responsibilities of the United States. Outlays from numerous on-going infrastructure construction projects in the Republic of Palau and the other two entities will continue as provided by the Compacts of Free Association and appropriation laws, and will be reported as Trust Territory expenditures until such time as the activities cease.

COMPACT OF FREE ASSOCIATION

For economic assistance and necessary expenses for the Federated States of Micronesia and the Republic of the Marshall Islands as provided for in sections 122, 221, 223, 232, and 233 of the Compact of Free Association, and for economic assistance and necessary expenses for the Republic of Palau as provided for in sections 122, 221, 223, 232, and 233 of the Compact of Free Association, [$23,245,000] $20,745,000, to remain available until expended, as authorized by Public Law 99-239 and Public Law 99-658. The peoples of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia approved Compacts of Free Association negotiated by the United States and their governments. The Compact of Free Association Act of 1985 (Public Law 99-239) constituted the necessary authorizing legislation to make annual payments to the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia. Payments began in 1987 and will continue for fifteen years, totalling an estimated $2.3 billion, to aid in the development of these sovereign nations.

Section 231 of the Compact of Free Association contains a formula for two additional years of assistance if negotiations are underway to extend provisions that expire at the end of the fifteenth year. Negotiations are currently underway between the United States and both the Federated States of Micronesia and the Republic of the Marshall Islands which are expected to produce a new agreement that would be incorporated in the fiscal year 2004 President's Budget.

The Compact of Free Association with the Republic of Palau was implemented under the terms of Public Law 99-658 on October 1, 1994. This compact will provide annual benefits to the Republic totalling an estimated $600 million over the fifteen-year period that began at the implementation date.

Under the Natural Resource Damage Assessment and Restoration Fund (Restoration Fund), natural resource damage assessments will be performed in order to provide the basis for claims against responsible parties for the restoration of injured natural resources. Funds are appropriated to conduct damage assessments, restoration, and program management. In addition, funds will be received for the restoration of damaged resources and other activities and for natural resource damage assessments from responsible parties through negotiated settlements or other legal actions by the Department of the Interior.

Restoration activities include: (1) the replacement and enhancement of affected resources; (2) acquisition of equivalent resources and services; and, (3) long-term environmental monitoring and research programs directed to the prevention, containment, and amelioration of hazardous substances and oil spill sites.

The Restoration Fund operates as a departmentwide program, incorporating the interdisciplinary expertise of its various bureaus and offices. Natural resource damage assessments and the restoration of damaged natural resources are authorized by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.), Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251 et seq.), the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (33 U.S.C. 2701 et seq.), and the Act of July 27, 1990 (16 U.S.C. 1911 et seq.). Since 1992, amounts received by the United States from responsible parties for restoration or reimbursement in settlement of natural resource damages may be deposited in the Fund and shall accrue interest.

managed separately by the Federal and Alaska State governments, although activities are coordinated with the Trustee Council to maximize restoration benefits.

Funding from the settlements, as well as interest, is provided to the Federal and Alaska State governments to restore the resources and services damaged by the 1989 oil spill. Restoration activities were initiated in 1992 and habitat protection was begun in 1993.

Habitat protection and acquisition is one of the principal tools of restoration. The Trustee Council has underway two habitat protection and acquisition programs, a large parcel program that protects blocks of land in excess of 1,000 acres and a small parcel program that recognizes the unique habitat qualities and strategic restoration value that smaller tracts provide. Funding from the Exxon Valdez civil and criminal settlements, the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and private partnerships work together as an integrated approach to the restoration program. The Council has been working with large and small landowners, on a willing-seller basis, in the spill-impacted area to protect approximately 645,247 acres of habitat.

Executive direction.—This activity supports the Office of Special Trustee for American Indians, the Trustee’s advisory board, and other Tribal representative groups. Under the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994, the Special Trustee for American Indians is charged with general oversight for Indian trust reform efforts departmentwide. Additionally, in 1996, at the direction of the Congress, direct responsibilities and authorities for Indian Trust Fund Management were transferred to the Special Trustee from the Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs.

Program operations, support, and improvements.—This activity supports the management and investment of approximately $3 billion held in trust for Tribes and individual Indians. Resources support the implementation of trust management reform efforts and the accurate collection, investment, disbursement, and provision of timely financial information to Indian Tribes and individual Indian monies (IIM) account holders.

This appropriation funds a program to consolidate fractional interests in Indian lands. Funds will be used to purchase small fractional interests from willing individual Indian landowners. Consolidation of these interests is expected to reduce the Government's costs for managing Indian lands and promote economic opportunity on these lands. The Department will lease tracts of land with consent of fewer than 100 percent of the owners, which will assist in using previously issued tracts, including those containing oil and gas resources. This program is authorized under the Indian Land Consolidation Act Amendments of 2000 (P.L. 106-462) and other authorities.

Commencing with 2000, most Tribal trust funds, including special funds, managed by the Office of Special Trustee were reclassified as non-budgetary. Ownership of these funds did not change, nor did the Federal Government's management responsibilities; changes were made for presentation purposes only. Some Tribal trust funds will remain budgetary, in either this Tribal Special Fund or the Tribal Trust Fund presented later in this section. Funds in the Tribal Special Fund are those not designated in law as a trust, and generally are funds held and invested to carry out obligations of the Secretary of the Interior.

The unobligated balances reflected above include only those assets invested in U.S. Treasury securities; most of the assets of these funds are in investments held outside Treasury.

This consolidated display presents the activities associated with the following accounts:

Cochiti Wetfields Solution.—In 1994, the Army Corps of Engineers transferred $4 million pursuant to P.L. 102-358 to fund the Interior's responsibilities under the settlement agreement between Cochiti Tribe, the Corps, and Interior. The Secretary of the Interior is responsible for maintenance, repair, and replacement of a drainage system constructed by the Corps for the Cochiti Pueblo.

Tribal Economic Recovery Fund.—This fund is authorized by the Three Affiliated Tribes and Standing Rock Sioux Tribe Equitable Compensation Act of 1992 (P.L. 102-575) and holds funds which have been appropriated pursuant to the Act. Beginning in 1998, interest earned on the principal of this fund is available for both Tribes for economic development, education, and social services programs.

Southern Arizona Water Rights Settlement Act.—This Cooperative Fund was established to provide a source of funds to carry out the obligations of the Secretary under sections 303, 304, and 305 of the Act (Title III, P.L. 97-293, 96 Stat. 1274-1285). Only interest accruing to the fund may be expended.

Tribal Trust Funds.—Tribal funds are deposited into a consolidated account in the U.S. Treasury pursuant to: (1) general or specific acts of Congress and (2) Federal management of Tribal real properties, the titles to which are held in trust for the Tribes by the United States. These funds are available to the respective Tribal groups for various purposes, under various acts of Congress, and are subject to the provisions of Tribal constitutions, bylaws, charters, and resolutions of the various Tribes, bands, or groups.

Northern Cheyenne Indian Reserved Water Rights Settlement Trust Fund.—Funds transferred provide for the establishment of a $21.5 million trust fund for the Northern Cheyenne Indian Tribe. These funds may be used by the Tribe to make $11.5 million available to the State of Montana as a loan to assist in financing Tongue River Dam project costs; land and natural resources administration, planning, and development; land acquisition; and any other purpose determined by the Tribe.

In addition, this fund holds $31.5 million for the enlargement and repair of the Tongue River Dam project.

The Crow Creek Sioux Tribe Infrastructure Development Trust Fund.—The Crow Creek Sioux Tribe Infrastructure Development Trust Fund of 1996 (P.L. 104-223, 110 Stat 3026) establishes a Crow Creek Sioux Tribe Infrastructure Development Trust Fund. In 1997, $27.5 million was deposited into the Fund. The Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (P.L. 100-497) established the National Indian Gaming Commission as an independent agency within the Department of the Interior. The Commission monitors and regulates gaming activities conducted on Indian lands. Operating costs of the Commission are financed to the greatest extent possible through annual assessments of gaming operations regulated by the Commission. The 2003 request will provide the additional operating expenses needed by the Commission, as authorized by the Act, to conduct effective oversight of the recent growth in Indian gaming. Legislation will be proposed to change the current statutory limitation on annual assessments.

The budget assumes that the first oil and gas lease sale in the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) would be held in 2004, resulting in the leasing of 400,000 to 600,000 acres and producing $2.4 billion in receipts from bonuses which would be shared 50/50 between the Federal government and the State of Alaska. The Federal share of the first lease sale bonus bids would be used by the Department of Energy to fund increased solar and renewable energy technology research and development over seven years.

[SEC. 320. None of the funds in this Act may be used for planning, design or construction of improvements to Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House without the advance approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.]

SEC. [321] 316. Amounts deposited during fiscal year [2001] 2002 in the roads and trails fund provided for in the 14th paragraph under the heading “FOREST SERVICE” of the Act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 843; 16 U.S.C. 501), shall be used by the Secretary of Agriculture, without regard to the State in which the amounts were derived, to repair or reconstruct roads, bridges, and trails on National Forest System lands or to carry out and administer projects to improve forest health conditions, which may include the repair or reconstruction of roads, bridges, and trails on National Forest System lands in the wildland-community interface where there is an abnormally high risk of fire. The projects shall emphasize reducing risks to human safety and public health and property and enhancing ecological functions, long-term forest productivity, and biological integrity. The projects may be completed in a subsequent fiscal year. Funds shall not be expended under this section to replace funds which would otherwise appropriately be expended from the timber salvage sale fund. Nothing in this section shall be construed to exempt any project from any environmental law.

[SEC. 323. No timber sale in Region 10 shall be advertised if the indicated rate is deficit when appraised under the transaction evidence appraisal system using domestic Alaska values for western red cedar: Provided, That sales which are deficit when appraised under the transaction evidence appraisal system using domestic Alaska values for western red cedar may be advertised upon receipt of a written request by a prospective, informed bidder, who has the opportunity to review the Forest Service’s cruise and harvest cost estimate for that timber. Program accomplishments shall be based on volume sold. Should Region 10 sell, in fiscal year 2002, the annual average portion of the decadal allowable sale quantity called for in the current Tongass Land Management Plan in sales which are not deficit when appraised under the transaction evidence appraisal system using domestic Alaska values for western red cedar, all of the western red cedar timber from those sales which is surplus to the needs of domestic processors in Alaska, shall be made available to domestic processors in the contiguous 48 United States at prevailing domestic prices. Should Region 10 sell, in fiscal year 2002, less than the annual average portion of the decadal allowable sale quantity called for in the current Tongass Land Management Plan in sales which are not deficit when appraised under the transaction evidence appraisal system using domestic Alaska values for western red cedar, the volume of western red cedar timber available to domestic processors at prevailing domestic prices in the contiguous 48 United States shall be that volume: (i) which is surplus to the needs of domestic processors in Alaska; and (ii) is that percent of the surplus western red cedar volume determined by calculating the ratio of the total timber volume which has been sold on the Tongass to the annual average portion of the decadal allowable sale quantity called for in the current Tongass Land Management Plan. The percentage shall be calculated by Region 10 on a rolling basis as each sale is sold (for purposes of this amendment, a “rolling basis” shall mean that the determination of how much western red cedar is eligible for sale to various markets shall be made at the time each sale is awarded). Western red cedar shall be deemed “surplus to the needs of domestic processors in Alaska” when the timber sale holder has presented to the Forest Service documentation of the inability to sell western red cedar logs from a given sale to domestic Alaska processors at price equal to or greater than the log selling value stated in the contract. All additional western red cedar volume not sold to Alaska or contiguous 48 United States domestic processors may be exported to foreign markets at the election of the timber sale holder. All Alaska yellow cedar may be sold at prevailing export prices at the election of the timber sale holder.)

The Forest Service shall offer in fiscal year 2002 such concession prospectuses under the regulatory exemption, except that, any prospectus that does not meet the requirements of the regulatory exemption shall be offered as a service contract in accordance with the requirements of 41 U.S.C. 351–358.]

Prior to initiating any project, the Secretary shall consult with potentially affected holders to determine what impacts the project may have on the holders. Any modifications to the authorization shall be made within the terms and conditions of the authorization and authorities of the impacted agency.

Program direction and policy coordination.—The Attorney General of the United States is responsible for leading the Department of Justice in accomplishing its missions. The Attorney General is assisted by the Deputy Attorney General, the Associate Attorney General, Department policy-level officials, and the Justice Management Division. The General Administration appropriation provides the resources for the programs and operations of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, the Associate Attorney General, and their Offices, the several Senior Policy Offices, and the Justice Management Division.

Joint Automated Booking System.—The Joint Automated Booking System (JABS) performs three major functions: (1)

facilitates rapid identification of individuals under arrest or detention through automation of the booking process and an interface with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) fingerprint identification system; (2) minimizes duplication of data entry by multiple law enforcement agencies during the booking process, and; (3) promotes data sharing of arrest records among JABS participants and other interested parties. When implemented, JABS will provide a rapid conduit to the FBI for offender identification and a current, nationwide reference for criminal offenders, arrests, cases and related data to aid in criminal investigations and prosecutions.

IDENT/IAFIS Integration.—The Automated Biometric Identification System/Integrated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (IDENT/IAFIS) integration project is designed to support the apprehension and prosecution of criminal aliens and to provide state and local law enforcement personnel with direct access to Immigration and Naturalization Service data through IAFIS. With a real-time connection between the two systems, IDENT/IAFIS integration will provide INS the capability to determine whether an apprehended person is the subject of a currently posted Want/Warrant or has a record in the FBI's Criminal Master File. Collaterally, the integration of IDENT and IAFIS will enable cognizant law enforcement agencies to obtain all relevant immigration information as part of a criminal history response from a single FBI search request. IDENT/IAFIS integration is proceeding in an incremental manner with a careful attention to the technical aspects as well as the programmatic and operational effects associated with the project before initiating the full scale development and implementation of the integrated system.

In 2003, resources are proposed to provide funding for the Department of Justice conversion of its wireless radio communications to narrowband operations. Federal Government agencies are required by 47 U.S.C. 903(d)(1) to make more efficient use of their radio spectrum. The National Telecommunications and Information Administration's (NTIA) implementing regulations require that all Federal spectrum users narrow, by one-half, the bandwidth used to transmit radio signals by the year 2005 for Very High Frequency (VHF) allocations and 2008 for Ultra High Frequency (UHF) allocations. The Department's 2003 budget continues the implementation of the Justice Wireless Network (JWN). Requested resources will be allocated to support components' existing legacy land mobile radio systems; support JWN operations and maintenance requirements; invest in new narrowband infrastructure and subscriber equipment; and support management and operating requirements of the Wireless Management Office.

Counterterrorism Fund.—$35 million is requested for the costs of providing support to counter, investigate, or prosecute domestic or international terrorism. In 2003, the Department expects that this entire amount will be used to reimburse the Drug Enforcement Administration for costs associated with providing intelligence support to the FBI and other agencies conducting counterterrorism activities. Balances carried over from previous years will be used for other appropriate reimbursements.

The Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act (CALEA) of 1994 authorizes the Attorney General to reimburse telecommunications carriers for costs associated with modifying digital equipment installed before January 1, 1995, in order that court-authorized wiretaps may be performed.

The Omnibus Consolidated Appropriations Act of 1997 (P.L. 104-208) extended eligibility for reimbursement to telecommunications equipment manufacturers and providers of support services. In addition to direct appropriations to the Fund, Congress authorized Federal agencies with law enforcement and intelligence responsibilities to transfer to the Fund unobligated balances that are available until expended, upon compliance with Congressional notification requirements.

With the appropriations provided in 2001, total funding for the program has reached $500 million, the authorization level provided in the Act.

This program includes the Office of the Pardon Attorney (OPA) and the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR). The Pardon Attorney receives and reviews all petitions for clemency, i.e., commutation of sentences and pardons. The Executive Office for Immigration Review contains the Immigration Judge function, the Board of Immigration Appeals, the Office of the Chief Administrative Hearing Officer, and the Office of Management and Administration. EOIR was established January 1, 1983, to improve the immigration hearing and appeal process.

Additional funding of $9.195 million is proposed to provide adjudicative support for INS' enforcement activities. This coordination involves hiring additional Immigration Judges, attorneys, and support staff who will allow EOIR to maintain current performance levels. Workload for the activity follows:

The Detention Trustee reports to the Deputy Attorney General and is responsible for the centralized management of the Department detention resource allocations, to include the Cooperative Agreement Program, exercising financial oversight of detention operations, and ensuring the implementation of efficiency and effectiveness improvements in Department detention operations.

For FY 2003, $5,000,000 is included for the creation of a National Clearinghouse for Detention Space. The clearinghouse will serve as a national repository for State and Local governments and private detention space providers to electronically post vacancies, rates, services, administrative costs, availability, mode of transport and medical facilities and services. Detention space and service providers will be required to supply their daily rates, which includes cost and any applicable service fees, as well as the basis for the calculation of the rates. Those posting vacancies will also be required to list and provide a means for verification of their credentials and accreditations. The goal in creating this nationwide electronic detention space clearinghouse is to enable Federal users to find more cost-efficient space where they need it and avoid paying for costly transportation and services they do not need. In addition, the Detention Trustee will contract for a business process re-engineering study to examine the advisability, feasibility and cost-effectiveness of contracting out the Joint Prisoner and Alien Transportation System (JPATS).

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) was statutorily established in the Department of Justice on April 14, 1989. The OIG investigates alleged violations of criminal and civil laws, regulations, and ethical standards arising from the conduct of the Department's employees. The OIG provides leadership and assists management in promoting integrity, economy, efficiency, and effectiveness within the Department and in its financial, contractual, and grant relationships with others. Also by statute, the OIG reports to the Attorney General, Congress, and the public on a semiannual basis regarding its significant activities.

The Audit function is responsible for independent audits and reviews of Department organizations, programs, functions, computer security and information technology systems, and financial statement audits. The Audit function also conducts or reviews external audits of expenditures made under Department contracts, grants, and other agreements.

The Investigations function investigates allegations of civil rights violations, bribery, fraud, abuse and violations of other laws, rules and procedures that govern Department employees, contractors, and grantees. This function also develops these cases for criminal prosecution, civil action, or administrative action. In some instances the OIG refers allegations to components within the Department and requests notification of their findings and of any disciplinary action taken.

The Evaluation and Inspections function conducts analyses and makes recommendations to decision makers for improvements in Department programs, policies, and procedures. In addition, this function also conducts shorter and more time-sensitive reviews and evaluations to provide managers with early warnings about possible program deficiencies.

The Oversight and Review function investigates allegations of significant interest to the American public and Congress and of vital importance to the Department.

The Executive Direction and Control function provides program direction for the OIG. Responsibilities include policy development, legal counsel, Congressional affairs, planning, budget, finance, personnel, procurement, automated data processing, and general support services.

The United States Parole Commission makes decisions to grant or deny parole to Federal and D.C. Code prisoners serving sentences of one year and a day or more, sets conditions of parole, supervises parolees and mandatory releasees, recommitts parolees in the event of violations of the conditions of supervision, and determines the termination of supervision in accordance with the Parole Commission and Reorganization Act of 1976.

In addition, the Commission seeks to improve the rehabilitation process by monitoring an effective parole supervision program through U.S. and District of Columbia probation officers and through research studies that evaluate the effectiveness of parole programs. During 2001, the U.S. Parole Commission assumed responsibility for parole revocation hearings and supervision of District of Columbia parolees under the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act (P.L. 105-33).

Since the workload associated with Federal inmates and D.C. inmates will continue beyond the Commission's termination date of November 1, 2002, the Budget includes funding for these activities through 2003. The Administration will finalize plans for the continuation of the Commission's statutory responsibilities over the next several months.

The Federal Government is represented in each of the 94 judicial districts by a U.S. Marshal. The primary missions of the U.S. Marshals Service are protection of the Federal judiciary, protection of witnesses, execution of warrants and court orders, and custody and transportation of unsentenced prisoners. It is the principal support force in the Federal judicial system and an integral part of the Federal law enforcement community.

Reimbursable program.—Federal funds in 2002 are derived primarily from the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts for the court security program and inspectors for court security, the Assets Forfeiture Fund for seized assets management, the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force Program for multi-agency drug investigations, the U.S. Air Force for the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Program for transportation security services provided by the U.S. Marshals Service, and the Office of National Drug Control Policy and the Centers for Disease Control for security services. Non-Federal funds are derived from State and local governments for witness protection and for the transportation of prisoners pursuant to State writs and from fees collected from service of civil process and sales associated with judicial orders.

This appropriation is used to pay fees and expenses to witnesses who appear on behalf of the Government in litigation in which the United States is a party. Factors over which the Department of Justice has little, or no, control affect the costs incurred. The U.S. Attorneys, the U.S. Marshals, and the Department's six litigating divisions are served by this appropriation.

Fees and expenses of witnesses.—Pays the fees and expenses associated with the preparation and presentation of testimony on behalf of the United States for fact witnesses, who testify as to events or facts about which they have personal knowledge, and for expert witnesses, who provide technical or scientific testimony. This program also pays the fees of physicians and psychiatrists who examine accused persons upon order of the court to determine their mental competency.

Protection of witnesses.—Pays subsistence and other costs to ensure the safety of Government witnesses whose testimony on behalf of the United States places them or their families in jeopardy.

Victim compensation fund.—Pays restitution to any victim of a crime committed by a protected witness who causes or threatens death or serious bodily injury.

Private counsel.—Pays private counsel retained to represent Government employees who are sued, charged, or subpoenaed for actions taken while performing their official duties (private counsel expenditures may be authorized for congressional testimony as well as for litigation in instances where government counsel is precluded from representing the employee or private counsel is otherwise appropriate);

D.C. Court Informant Protection.—Pays for the short term protection and temporary relocation of informants for the District of Columbia Superior Court.

Alternative Dispute Resolution.—Pays the costs of providing Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) services in instances wherein the Department has taken the initiative to use such services and in those matters wherein the courts have directed the parties to attempt a settlement using mediation or some other ADR process.

Reimbursable program.—Receives reimbursement from States and localities to cover the costs of maintaining those State and local organized crime witnesses and their families who have been accepted into the witness protection program.

The Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984 established the Assets Forfeiture Fund, into which forfeited cash and the proceeds of sales of forfeited property are deposited. Authorities of the fund have been amended by various public laws enacted since 1984. Under current law, authority to use the fund for certain investigative expenses shall be specified in annual appropriation acts. Expenses necessary to seize, detain, inventory, safeguard, maintain, advertise or sell property under seizure are funded through a permanent, indefinite appropriation. In addition, beginning in 1993, other general expenses of managing and operating the asset forfeiture program are paid from the permanent, indefinite portion of the fund. Once all expenses are covered, and statutorily mandated transfers are accomplished, the balance is maintained to meet ongoing expenses of the program. Excess unobligated balances may also be allocated by the Attorney General in accordance with 28 U.S.C. 524(c)(8)(E).

The Justice Prisoner and Alien Transportation System (JPATS) is responsible for transporting by air all Federal prisoners and detainees, including sentenced, pretrial, and illegal aliens, whether in the custody of the U.S. Marshals Service, the Bureau of Prisons, or the Immigration and Naturalization Service. JPATS also provides prisoner transportation to the Department of Defense, and State and local law enforcement, on a full cost recovery reimbursable and space available basis. JPATS transports prisoners and detainees on a full cost recovery reimbursable basis with participating Executive Departments and agencies without sacrificing the safety of the public, Federal employees, or those in custody. Proceeds from the disposal of aircraft will be deposited into the Fund. In FY 2003, the Detention Trustee will contract for a business process reengineering study to examine the advisability, feasibility and cost-effectiveness of contracting out JPATS.

This appropriation provides reimbursements to agencies within the Department of Justice that participate in the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDETF) Program. The OCDETF Program consists of a nationwide structure of 9 regional task forces that combine the resources and expertise of its 11 member Federal agencies, in cooperation with State and local investigators and prosecutors, to target and destroy major narcotic trafficking and money-laundering organizations. The task forces perform the following activities:

1. Law Enforcement.—This activity includes the resources for direct investigative and support activities of the task forces, focusing on the disruption of drug trafficking controlled by various organized crime enterprises. Organizations participating under the law enforcement function are the Drug Enforcement Administration, Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Customs Service, Internal Revenue Service, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Marshals Service, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

2. Drug Intelligence.—This activity includes the resources to maintain Regional Drug Intelligence Squads (RDIS) in selected regions. The squads gather and disseminate raw data for strategic, operational and tactical intelligence purposes and provide regional intelligence linkage to the National Drug Intelligence Center (NDIC) and member agencies' headquarters.

3. Prosecution.—This activity includes the resources for the prosecution of cases generated through the investigative efforts of task force agents. Litigation efforts are targeted selectively on the criminal leadership involved in drug trafficking and are intended to dissolve organized illicit enterprises. This includes activities designed to secure the seizure and forfeiture of the assets of these enterprises. Participating agencies are the U.S. Attorneys, Criminal Division and Tax Division.

4. Administrative Support.—This activity includes the resources for a Washington-based administrative staff in the Criminal Division, which provides policy guidance, central coordination, and administrative support to the headquarters of the 11 member Federal agencies and the 9 regional task forces. The administrative staff is also responsible for financial management, records management, and maintenance of a case tracking system.

The planned distribution of obligations for 2002 and 2003 among the participating Federal agencies, as well as the actual distribution for 2001, is as follows:

The OCDETF program has refocused efforts to target major drug trafficking organizations by intensive investigative coordination and increased intelligence sharing. The total number of investigations is expected to decrease as priority is placed on more sophisticated national targets, which will be more workload and resource intensive in nature.

The mission of the FBI is to uphold the law through the investigation of violations of Federal criminal law; to protect the United States from foreign intelligence and terrorist activities; to provide leadership and law enforcement assistance to Federal, State, local and international agencies; and to perform these responsibilities in a manner that is responsive to the needs of the public and is faithful to the Constitution of the United States.

The FBI Strategic Plan: 1998–2003 establishes a three-tier framework to achieve this mission: (1) foreign intelligence, terrorist, and criminal activities that directly threaten the national or economic security of the United States; (2) crimes that affect the public safety or undermine the integrity of American society; and (3) crimes that affect individuals and property. Through this framework, the FBI will focus its resources and operational strategies on threats that affect the security of the Nation and crime problems that are national in scope.

National and Economic Security. FBI investigations in this tier encompass threats and criminal acts that are of such importance to the U.S. national interests that they must receive priority attention by the FBI. Within this tier, strategic goals have been established to:

—identify, prevent, and defeat intelligence operations conducted by any foreign power within the United States, or against U.S. interests abroad, that constitute a threat to U.S. national security;

—prevent, disrupt, and defeat terrorist operations before they occur;

—create an effective and ongoing deterrent designed to prevent criminal conspiracies from defrauding major U.S. industries and the U.S. Government; and —deter the unlawful exploitation of emerging technologies by foreign powers, terrorists, and criminal elements.

Criminal Enterprises and Public Safety. FBI investigations in this tier target criminal organizations, such as the La Cosa Nostra, drug traffickers, violent gangs, and other groups that exploit social, economic or political circumstances at a significant cost to the Nation. Investigations often transcend jurisdictional and national boundaries, and often are conducted by the FBI in partnership with other Federal agencies, such as the Drug Enforcement Administration, and State and local law enforcement. Strategic goals have been established to:

—identify, disrupt, and dismantle existing and emerging organized criminal enterprises whose activities affect the United States;

—identify, disrupt, and dismantle targeted international and national drug trafficking organizations;

—reduce public corruption at all levels of government with special emphasis on law enforcement operations; and

—deter civil rights violations through aggressive investigations and proactive measures.

Individuals and Property. Violent street crimes, interstate theft, crimes against children, and environmental crimes are among the offenses where the FBI is expected to respond quickly and efficiently. Many Federal crimes involving offenses against individuals and property are also State and local crimes and FBI investigative strategies recognize the generally primary role of State and local law enforcement. The FBI works closely with State and local law enforcement through Safe Streets Task Forces and similar working groups and by providing investigative expertise and technical and forensic assistance. In support of this strategy, the FBI has established a strategic goal to reduce the impact of the most significant crimes that affect individuals and property.

FBI investigations and operations are conducted through a world-wide network of 56 major field offices, over 400 resident agencies, and 4 information technology centers located throughout the United States and Puerto Rico; the FBI Academy complex at Quantico, Virginia; a fingerprint identification center in Clarksburg, West Virginia; 44 foreign liaison posts; and, FBI Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

A number of FBI activities are carried out on a reimbursable basis. Since 1997, the FBI has been reimbursed for investigations of health care fraud and abuse as a result of the enactment of the Health Care Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (P.L. 104–191). Additionally, the FBI is reimbursed for its participation in Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement programs and by other Federal agencies for certain investigative services, such as preemployment background inquiries and fingerprint and name checks. The FBI also is authorized to conduct fingerprint and name checks for certain non-federal agencies.

For 2003, $446.3 million in enhancements are proposed in support of Tier I counterterrorism activities. The proposed enhancements support operational, information technology, and infrastructure needs. Highlights of these initiatives include: (1) enhanced counterterrorism capabilities; (2) enhanced capability for cyber crimes investigations; (3) improvement of security for FBI personnel, facilities, and information; and (4) enhanced information technology equipment, systems, and telecommunications services.

The mission of the DEA is to control abuse of narcotics and dangerous drugs by restricting the aggregate supply of those drugs. In order to safeguard Americans, DEA will disrupt/dismantle the leadership, command, control and infrastructure of drug syndicates, gangs and traffickers of illicit drugs that threaten Americans and erode the quality of life in our communities. At the Federal level, DEA is the lead drug law enforcement agency. DEA accomplishes its objectives through coordination with State, local, and other Federal officials in drug law enforcement activities, development and maintenance of drug intelligence systems, regulation of legitimate controlled substances activities, and enforcement coordination and intelligence-gathering activities with foreign government agencies.

Cooperation among Federal law enforcement agencies is extensive, especially within the nine Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement (ICDE) regional task forces. DEA's involvement is integral to this nationwide coordinated enforcement strategy. With the ICDE program and the expansion of other agency cooperative efforts, overall drug enforcement capabilities have been significantly strengthened in recent years.

The activities of the DEA are divided into the following general categories:

Enforcement—

Domestic enforcement.—This activity encompasses DEA's general efforts to eliminate or immobilize major drug trafficking organizations and thereby reduce the domestic supply of illicit drugs.

Domestic Enforcement includes the majority of the activities encompassed within DEA's 21 domestic field divisions and the Special Operations Division. These activities include efforts to reduce the availability of illicit drugs by immobilizing targeted organizations that are substantially responsible for importation and distribution of drugs and by focusing enforcement operations on specific drug trafficking problems. This program also includes DEA's Regional Enforcement Teams (RET), an initiative designed to provide a proactive, mobile regional investigative element to better develop intelligence, and investigate and target drug organizations operating in America's smaller communities. DEA's RET program (4 teams) is equipped with the investigative equipment and vehicles needed to ensure a high degree of mobility and to support the performance of even the most complex of investigations.

State and local task forces.—This activity encompasses efforts to reduce drug availability and immobilize major drug trafficking organizations through intergovernmental cooperation with State and local law enforcement agencies and through DEA's Mobile Enforcement Team Program. There are currently 155 program-funded (109 funded by DEA, and 46 funded by the High Intensity Drug Trafficking appropriation) and 54 provisional State and Local Task Forces and 24 Mobile Enforcement Teams participating in the program.

Measures reported in past years, such as arrests, indictments, and convictions, are not considered useful indicators of the outcome or impact of law enforcement activities by the Department of Justice. The Department and DEA have developed new and more meaningful performance measures as part of implementing the Government Performance and Results Act. The measures below reflect the new focus on priority targets and the planned outcomes of disruption and dismantlement.

	2001 actual	2002 est.	2003 est.
Domestic Priority Targeted Organizations identified	498	474	514
Number of PTO disrupted/dismantled (Int'l Nexus)	30	14	18
Number of PTO disrupted/dismantled (Nat/Reg Nexus)	24	14	18
Cooperative (State & Local) PTO identified	134	114	124
Number of PTO disrupted/dismantled (Local Nexus)	12	7	9

Foreign cooperative investigations.—This activity encompasses efforts to (1) disrupt, as close to the source as possible, production of opium, heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and illicitly produced and diverted legitimate dangerous drugs destined for the United States, and (2) collect and disseminate intelligence regarding narcotics production and trafficking.

Chemical diversion control.—This activity seeks to reduce the diversion of legitimately produced controlled chemicals into illicit channels at all levels of distribution, and to provide the leadership and support necessary to ensure that State and local agencies and the chemical industry establish and maintain programs and policies to control diversion. The Drug Diversion Control activities are funded from the Drug Diversion Control Fee Account.

Investigative Support—

Intelligence.—This activity encompasses the collection, analysis, and dissemination of drug intelligence in support of the enforcement operations of DEA and other Federal, State, and local agencies.

DEA laboratory services.—This activity encompasses laboratory analysis of evidence and expert testimony in support of the investigation and prosecution of drug traffickers.

DEA training.—This activity encompasses entry level training for all special agents, diversion investigators, and intelligence analysts; advanced, in-service and specialized training for investigative and other personnel; executive, mid-level management, and supervisory training for appropriate agency officials; and foreign language training for DEA personnel assigned to overseas and border offices as needed. In 2003, training will focus on basic agent, in-service and specialized training activities.

Research, engineering, and technical operations.—This activity provides high quality and timely radio communications capability, technical and investigative equipment assistance support, maintenance and operation of an aircraft fleet, and research programs directly related to the DEA law enforcement and intelligence functions.

ADP and telecommunications.—This activity encompasses automated data processing, to include the FIREBIRD NETWORK, and telecommunication support on a nationwide and worldwide basis.

Records management.—This activity encompasses effective and efficient records management, Freedom of Information/Privacy Act, and library support.

Program Direction—

Management and Administration.—This activity encompasses the overall management, contracting, and direction of DEA to include personnel, general services, financial management and Equal Employment Opportunity functions.

Reimbursable program.—The primary reimbursements to DEA are for the Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force program, the training of foreign drug law enforcement officials (funded by the Department of State), and the expenses incurred in managing seized assets and other purposes for which DEA is reimbursed from the Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund.

Public Law 102-395 established the Diversion Control Fee Account in 1993. Fees charged by the Drug Enforcement Administration under the Diversion Control Program are set at a level that ensures the recovery of the full costs of operating the various aspects of the program. The purpose of this program is to prevent, detect, and investigate the diversion of controlled substances from legitimate channels, while at the same time ensuring an adequate and uninterrupted supply of controlled substances required to meet legitimate needs.

The measures below reflect the level of activity performed by this program.

The mission of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) is to enforce provisions of the law which govern lawful entry and presence within the United States, and provide immigration benefits and services to individuals and entities (e.g., employers) entitled under law. The mission is accomplished through INS' operational offices located on the border, in the interior and overseas, and through numerous special facilities (e.g., detention centers, application processing centers, national records repository, training centers) throughout the United States. Accomplishing the enforcement and benefits/services mission of the INS requires significant investment in physical infrastructure and equipment, administrative support services, and maintenance; and a competent, diversified, motivated and productive workforce. INS addresses its mission through several goals that are used to target and monitor performance.

Immigration enforcement.—This account contains resources for preventing illegal entry into the United States, facilitating the entry of qualified persons, and investigating criminal organizations that facilitate illegal migration. This includes inspection of applicants for admission, patrol of the border, and locating aliens who are in the United States following illegal entry or violation of status after legal entry. Apprehensions are made through the inspection of places of employment, by the investigation of information about the location of undocumented aliens, and through investigative case work. Also included are resources for the Service's nationwide anti-smuggling program and for the detention and removal of illegal aliens.

Border Enforcement.—Effectively control the border by securing the land border, ports of entry and coasts of the United States against illegal migration. In coordination with other agencies and through enhanced integration of INS' overseas, border and interior intelligence operations, this activity seeks to (1) prevent illegal entry by comprehensive border protection programs, including increased Border Patrol strength, (2) concentrate resources at the major problem sources, ports of entry and border points, and (3) gather, analyze, and disseminate intelligence regarding illegal migration to target enforcement efforts on criminal activities, smuggling, fraud, and terrorism.

	2001 actual	2002 est.	2003 est.
Interceptions of mala fide and offshore travelers	34,594	20,000	20,000
Offshore prosecutions assisted by INS personnel	514	515	515
Deportable aliens apprehended (border patrol)	1.2 million	1.0 million	1.0 million
Smugglers apprehended (border patrol)	9,586	12,000	13,000
Southwest Corridors controlled (border patrol)	8	8	9

In addition, a component of immigration enforcement is the inspection of lawful travel and commerce across the borders to the United States. This activity seeks to (1) expand the use of techniques and technologies that promote and expedite lawful entry, including implementation of a comprehensive entry exit system, (2) increase the number of registered Dedicated Commuter Lane participants, and (3) work cooperatively with the U.S. Customs Service and other Federal agencies at ports-of-entry. The measures below reflect the expected outcomes from these activities.

	2001 actual	2002 est.	2003 est.
Total persons inspected (land only)	414,361,743	400,000,000	414,000,000
Inadmissible aliens intercepted (land ports)	414,496	419,000	429,000
Land-border wait times that did not exceed 30 minutes	84%	82%	90%
Alternative Inspection system usage (annual)	3,860,296	3,860,296	4,000,000
Total persons inspected (air and sea)	91,532,388	91,532,000	91,532,000
Inadmissible aliens intercepted (air and sea)	279,084	284,000	294,000
Commercial air flights to clear primary inspection in 30 min ..	79%	70%	79%
Passenger manifest data submitted electronically by the carrier	85%	87%	98%

Interior Enforcement.—Maximize deterrence to unlawful migration and enforce immigration laws in the interior through effective and coordinated use of resources to reduce the incentives of unauthorized employment and assistance; address interior smuggling and benefit and document fraud; and increase intergovernmental cooperation and the integration of activities among law enforcement entities at all levels of government. In coordination with other agencies and through enhanced integration of INS' overseas, border and interior intelligence operations, this activity seeks to (1) increase prosecution and forfeiture activities to disrupt and dismantle criminal, smuggling, and benefit and document fraud organizations, and (2) target worksite enforcement activities toward employers who intentionally hire unauthorized workers in selected industry and geographic areas or engage in related smuggling and fraud ventures.

Also included are Federal funds in 2003 derived primarily from the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force program for multi-agency drug investigations and the Asset Forfeiture Fund for seized assets. The measures below reflect the expected outcomes from these activities.

Cases (investigations):	2001 actual	2002 est.	2003 est.
Smuggling cases completed (investigations)	2,885	2,900	3,050
Fraud cases presented (investigations)	346	210	210

Detention and Removals.—Maximize deterrence to unlawful migration and enforce immigration laws by removing deportable inadmissible aliens expeditiously, and increase intergovernmental cooperation and the integration of activities among law enforcement entities at all levels of government. In coordination with other agencies and through enhanced integration of INS' overseas, border and interior intelligence operations, this activity seeks to (1) Identify, process and remove deportable aliens and those criminal aliens eligible for deportation who are incarcerated in Federal, State and local institutions, (2) strengthen coordination with Federal, State and local law enforcement entities to identify, detain, and remove aliens, particularly those involved in terrorism, violent gangs and criminal activities, and (3) provide adequate, safe, humane and efficiently run detention bedspace and a transportation capability that meets aliens detention and removal obligations. In 2003, $615 million would be transferred to the Detention Trustee to improve efficiency in the acquisition of bed space.

Immigration Services.—Deliver services to the public in a timely, consistent fair and high quality manner. This activity encompasses efforts to (1) Establish and maintain an asylum process that is fair and timely, and that denies meritless claims quickly without discouraging legitimate seekers of asylum, (2) establish and maintain immigration and naturalization processes that deliver benefits to our customers in a fair, accurate and timely manner, (3) make "user friendly" customer service an integral, permanent aspect of all INS activities, and (4) provide employers, benefit providers and other appropriate entities with immigration information and alien status, and the assistance and tools needed to allow them to comply with the laws while safeguarding the civil and privacy rights of citizens and aliens alike. The 2003 Budget continues to support a five-year, $500 million initiative to support a universal six-month processing standard for all immigration applications.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., was created by Congress in 1934 and is a wholly-owned Government corporation. Its mission is to employ and train Federal inmates through a diversified program providing products and services to other Federal agencies. These operations are conducted in such a manner as to offer a minimum of competition to private industry and labor. Employment provides inmates with work, occupational knowledge and skills, plus money for personal expenses and family assistance.

The Corporation strives to provide additional industrial employment opportunities at existing and planned institutions.

Budget program.—Federal Prison Industries, Inc., operations are entirely self-sustaining. No appropriations are required. The amounts used by the Corporation for administrative expenses are subject to a congressional limitation. Information regarding this limitation is provided separately following this account.

Financing program.—Revenues are derived entirely from the sale of products and services to other Federal agencies. Operating expenses are applied against these revenues, resulting in operating income or loss. Earnings surplus to the needs of the manufacturing operations, capital improvements and cash reserves are used to pay accident compensation.

Operating results.—To date, Federal Prison Industries, Inc., has returned to the Treasury a total of $82 million of retained income excess to the Corporation's needs. No contributions from budget authority have been made to offset deficits for non-revenue producing outlays since the inception of the fund.

The Office of Justice Programs (OJP) carries out policy coordination and general management responsibilities for the Bureau of Justice Assistance, Bureau of Justice Statistics, National Institute of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Office for Victims of Crime, and six program offices. The following OJP programs are funded through the Justice Assistance account.

Research, evaluation, and demonstration programs.—Funds provide for and encourage the development of basic and applied research for the improvement of Federal, State, and local criminal, civil, and juvenile justice systems; new methods for the prevention and reduction of crime and the detection, apprehension, and rehabilitation of criminals; and the dissemination of the results of such research efforts. In 2003, funding is requested for a comprehensive hate crimes study and the expansion of the Arrestee Drug Abuse Monitoring system to 50 sites.

Technology centers.—These technology centers were established to bring technology information directly to law enforcement agencies, principally to State and local levels, and to provide a source of objective technology information. In 2003, funding is requested to continue research and development of technology to assist State and local law enforcement to combat terrorism.

Criminal justice statistical programs.—Funds provide for the collection and analysis of statistical information concerning crime, victims, offenders, criminal justice processes, juvenile delinquency, and civil disputes in support of public and private policy and decisionmaking about society's response to crime; planning, coordination, implementation and provision of technical assistance to States to initiate innovative applications of communications and information systems technology for State and local criminal justice systems; and assurance of conformity with privacy and security regulations.

Missing children.—Funds are used to reduce the incidence of crimes against children, particularly kidnaping and sexual exploitation, by assisting families, citizen groups, law enforcement agencies and government institutions in a national effort to insure the safety and protection of children. In 2003, funding is requested to expand the Internet Crimes Against Children Task Forces.

Regional information sharing system.—Funds aid State and local law enforcement agencies in the exchange of intelligence information.

National White Collar Crime Center.—Funds provide assistance to State and local law enforcement and regulatory agencies in addressing multi-jurisdictional white collar crimes.

Counterterrorism Programs.—Beginning in 2003, the activities of the Office for Domestic Preparedness are funded within the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Management and administration.—Funds provide executive direction and control, program operation, and administrative support of the Office of Justice Programs.
